All Factions Claim Victory In Wisconsin Primaries

Dewey's Triumph Surprises G. O. P.; Third Term Move Held Dead Issue

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The virtual sweep of Wisconsin G. O. P. delegates by New York District Attorney Dewey and a more than 3-to-1 Roosevelt lead over Vice President Garner brought sharply conflicting interpretations yesterday.

Garner managers, in a statement, immediately declared the third-term issue dead and buried and declared President Roosevelt "could not be elected if nominated."

Supporters of the third-term movement said Wisconsin voters have demonstrated their demand for the President's reelection and said Mr. Roosevelt "already is drafted."

Republican regulars, startled by Dewey's sweeping lead over Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, took comfort from Wisconsin's sharply increased Republican ballot and predicted a G. O. P. victory there in November.

Vandenberg Shut Out

Both New Deal and anti-New Deal camps said they found solace in the following results from Tuesday's Wisconsin and New York primaries:

President Roosevelt captured 22 out of Wisconsin's 24 delegates to the Democratic convention and more than tripled Garner's vote in the Presidential preference race. Garner claimed only two delegates.

Dewey, the young New York Republican, boomed into the G. O. P. presidential bandwagon lead by walking off with the entire Wisconsin Republican delegate slate. Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, won none.

The total Democratic vote cast in the Wisconsin primaries moved up from behind to take a lead over the combined Republican vote cast for Dewey and Vandenberg delegate-candidates. But this G. O. P. vote showed a marked gain over 1936 primary returns, when the President's Democratic majority more than doubled the Republican vote cast for Senator Borah.

President Gets N. Y. Vote

In the only four New York Congressional districts where Garner candidates for delegates struck at the third term, they were beaten by uninstructed delegates, believed favorable to Roosevelt. The President thus was apparently assured of the 94 convention votes of his home State.

In New York's only Congressional district contest directed against Dewey, the Republican district attorney won, 6 to 1, apparently assuring him of the bulk of New York's 92 delegates. Frank Gannett, Rochester publisher, will claim the rest.

Deny "Stop Dewey" Pact

Possibility of a Vandenberg alliance with Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, in a "stop Dewey" movement was suggested in one quarter, but the headquarters of both continued to deny any mutual aid compact.

Despite the more than 3-to-1 combined Presidential preference vote lead for the President over the Vice President, and apparent election of all but two Roosevelt delegates, antithird term Democrats and leading Republicans contended the third term is definitely checkmated.

They argued that if the Wisconsin trend were followed nationally, then a swing of even half the Garner vote to the impressive Republican

House Told Communists Plot To Control Canal, Supply Ships

Working Through Maritime Unions, Keefe Declares, to Strike If Time Comes; Members on U. S.-Owned Craft, He Says

The Party Goes to College

Reaching for Defense Key

Representative Frank B. Keefe (Republican), of Wisconsin, told the House late yesterday that Communist-trained seamen have been employed on War Department supply ships operating between New York and the Panama Canal.

He charged that the leaders of the C. I. O. maritime unions—Joseph Curran and Harry Bridges—have been "conniving with the agents of Stalin" for control of the American merchant marine.

"In the event of national emergency, which might involve war with the Soviet," Representative Keefe said, "they would be in a position by means of sabotage to completely wreck not only our merchant marine, but perhaps its most valuable adjunct, the Panama Canal."

Representative Keefe mentioned the names of two graduates of a secret training school conducted by the Communist Party, and which has been called the "Red Annapolis."

Ed Bruen, one of the graduates, he said, was a member of the crew of the S. S. Panama, of the Government-operated Panama Railroad Line. He charged that Bruen was delegate of the National Maritime Union, C. I. O., on that vessel.

When Earl Browder spoke at Madison Square Garden on the day of his conviction on passport frauds, Representative Keefe said, he received the following telegram from some of the crew of the S. S. Panama:

"A group of seamen aboard the S. S. Panama enthusiastically greet your summation speech. The exposure of the attempted frameup is evident despite the meager press reports. With leaders like you the American working class is assured of victory. Signed: Seamen aboard S. S. Panama.

This telegram, Representative Keefe said, was quoted on the front page of the Daily Worker in its issue of January 24, 1940.

"I direct your attention to the fact," he told the House, "that this message was sent to Browder from a Government-owned and operated ship whose crew are paid with Federal Government funds."

Another graduate of the Communist Party school, he said, was

John R. Young Is Approved For D. C. Post

Senate Confirms Local Resident As Commissioner

The Senate yesterday confirmed John Russell Young as District Commissioner without discussion after Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee, had called at the White House to thank President Roosevelt for recent appointments of District residents to local jobs.

Young will not take office until after April 15, when the resignation of George E. Allen becomes effective.

Senator King said he has thanked the President for the appointments of David Pine as United States District Court justice and of Edward M. Curran as United States Attorney, as well as that of Young.

Other District matters were discussed, Senator King said, but he declined to divulge their nature.

Blossom Festival Put Off to April 12, Queen's Birthday

A local thundershower last night ushered into the Capital area a warm spell, which it was believed, will spur Washington's delinquent Japanese cherry trees into bloom.

Meanwhile the cherry blossom festival committee yesterday voted to delay the blossom ceremonies until April 12, one week later than had been previously planned.

The new date coincides with the birthday of the festival queen, Rose Cauliflower, whose coronation will take place at that time at the Tidal Basin.

The Weather Bureau last night predicted warmer temperatures for the next two days. Today will be cloudy, with some showers early in the day. It will be slightly cooler tonight, with warm and fair weather returning tomorrow.

Farm Bureau Hits 4 Points In Credit Bill

Federation Fears Plan Would Boost Cost of Operation

By Hedley Donovan.
Post Staff Writer

The American Farm Bureau Federation yesterday expressed emphatic opposition to four major provisions of the Jones Farm Credit bill.

R. E. Short, president of the Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation and a director of the national federation, appeared before the House Agriculture Committee to outline the organization's views.

The federation, Short testified, fears that the pending legislation would increase the cost to the Government of operating the farm credit system and, to that extent, jeopardize other phases of the Federal agricultural program.

The only permanent solution of the farm credit problem is attainment of "fair prices and fair income" for farmers, bringing agriculture into a parity position and increasing "the debt-paying ability of farmers," he asserted.

Near End of Hearings

Short said the federation views with "grave concern" those sections of the Jones bill which would:

Permit the governor of the Farm Credit Administration to set up county committees in place of the present farm loan associations.

Require the governor to refinance all farm debts wherever the indebtedness exceeds the productive value of the farm, whether or not such refinancing is approved by the farm loan associations or Federal land banks.

Forbid foreclosure proceedings or deficiency judgment suits against land bank borrowers who deed over to the bank full title to the mortgaged property.

End the present arrangement by which borrowers take five per cent

Woodrum Says Venality Charge Against WPA Official Is False

By John B. Oakes.
Post Staff Writer

With 1941 WPA estimates scheduled for presentation to Congress today, Chairman Woodrum of the House subcommittee handling relief yesterday denied that there had been evidence of "venality" on the part of a high WPA official in Washington.

Representative Woodrum aimed his denial specifically at a story in yesterday's Post which quoted an anonymous source as making the charge of "venality," on the basis of data reported Tuesday to the special WPA Investigating Committee.

Subsequent to Woodrum's statement on the floor of the House, The Post's informant renewed his assertion that "venality" would be revealed when the results of the investigation are made public.

Representative Woodrum declared that "there is absolutely no foundation under the blue vault of heaven" for The Post article. He said that at Tuesday's meeting of the investigating committee, at which the WPA data was presented by the committee's attorney, "the word 'venal' did not appear . . . nor was there anything suggesting any question upon the personal character or integrity of any high WPA official in Washington."

The investigators' report offered at this meeting, said Representative Woodrum, covers "a great many transactions, some of which in due course of events will undoubtedly be criticized upon the floor of the House."

"The WPA committee has a mass of evidence," he added, "some of which will come in for criticism . . . There has been no whitewashing, there has been no suppression and

Army Funds Cut, Alaska Base Denied

House Committee Makes $67,357,660 Slash, Votes Down 437 of 496 Planes

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The faltering Congressional economy drive hit the Army yesterday, bringing from the House Appropriations Committee a $785,999,094 Army Supply bill, cut $67,357,660 below President Roosevelt's recommendations.

Hardest hit phase of the military program were Air Corps plans. The committee struck out funds for a $12,734,000 air base at Anchorage, Alaska, and allowed only 59 of the 496 warplanes proposed in the budget.

Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, immediately protested elimination of the Alaskan base, declaring himself "very much concerned" at the House action. He said it was highly important that a start be made on the Anchorage base because of the need for protecting naval bases now being established in the territory.

More for Rivers, Harbors

However, in another phase of the economy struggle, a Senate appropriations subcommittee voted, 5 to 4, to add $25,000,000 for rivers and harbors projects to the War Department civil functions bill. The measure already had been increased $45,000,000 above the House-approved total.

Yesterday's $25,000,000 addition came in the face of President Roosevelt's warning against additional rivers and harbors appropriations.

Elimination of 330 of the planes provided in the budget, Gen. Marshall said, was in accordance with new Administration policy of permitting the Allies to take Army planes on order so that newer type craft can later be delivered.

In all, the Air Corps was cut $56,664,310—$20,884,010 in cash and the remainder in contractual authority—below budget estimates. A total of $175,762,162 was allowed.

In addition to the cash curtailment of the total Army budget, the committee allowed but $44,940,000 of a proposed $87,780,500 of contract authorization for next year.

Presentation of the bill coincided with publication of a warning from Gen. Marshall that developments in the European War "should be paralleled by added precautions in this country."

Wants More Regulars

"If the situation grows more desperate," he declared, "we should add to the numbers of seasoned troops in the Regular Army and to the strength of the National Guard. If Europe blazes in the late spring or summer, we must put our house in order before the sparks reach the Western Hemisphere."

Marshall told the committee during the closed hearings that $37,-

Alarm Broadcast For Sugar Heiress

White Plains, N. Y., April 3 (INS).—Police teletypes in eight Eastern States tonight clattered out a description and alarm for Sylvia Ladd von Gontard, comely blonde 20-year-old heiress who disappeared last evening after a conference with her White Plains attorney.

The girl, daughter of the late Alexander Carl Friedrich von Gontard, sugar and coffee magnate, had made the appointment with her attorney to discuss litigation in connection with her father's estate which included property and securities in the United States and Germany.

An alarm was broadcast at request of Sylvia's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Ladd von Gontard, who resided with her daughter at a New York hotel.

No 'Phoney' Peace, Says Reynaud

Weapon Is Forged And We're Going To Use It, French Premier Tells U. S.

By the Associated Press

Paris, April 3.—Premier Reynaud, fresh from a session with his inner war cabinet and military leaders, told America tonight that "France and England are strong and strong enough to win" the war and will conclude no "phoney" peace with Adolf Hitler.

France has "forged the weapon" against totalitarian Germany and "now we are going to use it," he said.

Using American slang in a radio broadcast to the United States, Reynaud defined "phoney" as "counterfeit," and outlined France's purpose as follows:

"From the outset 'we must finish it' has been the formula which summed up all our thoughts. And that means no 'phoney' peace after a war which is not 'phoney' in any respect.

Victory Needed for Peace

"Hitler's Germany will not succeed in selling us that counterfeit," he continued. "Totalitarian Germany has been totally insincere. It would be madness to believe that by signing some kind of a compromise with her we should be signing anything other than our death warrant for the following day."

Never in history, Reynaud declared, has true peace been preceded by anything short of a victory on the battlefield. Peace in this war, he added, would be impossible until the Allies have beaten Germany "on the battlefield."

In his high, clear voice, Reynaud paid his respects to Soviet Russia as a "betrayer" of democracy and an "accomplice" of Nazi Germany in aggression.

French Approve Roosevelt Note

Every Frenchman knows that his civilization is threatened by Nazism and its Soviet accomplices, he said.

Referring to Sumner Welles' visit to Europe, the premier said that after the war "we must return to a sane conception of (free trade) exchange. I should like to exchange goods with the planet Mars if I could. For every country the vital space is the whole world."

Reynaud recalled that a memorandum from President Roosevelt, which Welles handed the French government, stressing the necessity for a liberal trade policy in international relations after the war, "has received the approval of the French government." He said the Allies, united "into one single force for war, as well as for peace," would start first on disarmament after the war is concluded and then pass to economic questions.

Church Favorite 'Too Militant' For These Days

Los Angeles, April 3 (AP).—The old-time Sunday school favorite, "Onward Christian Soldiers," is "too militant in spirit for these troublous times," the Music Educators' National Conference was told today.

D. Sterling Wheelwright, organist of the Latter Day Saints Chapel, Washington, D. C., the speaker, added:

"At this time when the world is filled with thoughts of war and we in this country are imbued with the hope that America will keep out of war, let's slight those rousing Sunday school songs which use armies and hosts and banners as figures to arouse a militant spirit."

Justice Pierce Butler, of the Supreme Court, left his estate of $162,310 to his widow, Mrs. Anna M. Butler, in a 12-line will he drew June 26, 1934.

Justice Butler died last November 16 at the age of 73, and his will was filed for probate in the District Court yesterday.

The estate included Justice Butler's home at 1229 Nineteenth street northwest and about $130,000 in securities.

Britain Gives Churchill Control of All Forces To 'Get on With War'

Chamberlain to Be Only Check on Him; Sir Samuel Hoare Made Air Minister

By Drew Middleton.
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, April 3.—Winston Churchill, fighting heir to Great Britain's lofty traditions, became her "man of battle" tonight in a drastic shake-up of the cabinet which made him director of all the nation's warring services.

Standing close behind the pudgy volatile figure of the First Lord of the Admiralty in the figures emerging from Prime Minister Chamberlain's third government shift of the war are two other key men—Sir Kingsley Wood and Sir John Simon.

Reporting with Churchill to Chamberlain as heads of war committees, they form a war cabinet in fact if not in name.

Sir Kingsley, who traded his Air Ministry with Sir Samuel Hoare for the latter's post as Lord Privy Seal, will head the Home Policy Committee.

Food His Problem

He will direct, discuss and advise on social and domestic problems of wartime, including food and agriculture—vital to this importing, heavy-eating nation of 45,000,000 "shopkeepers."

To Sir John Simon, silvery-haired and silent veteran of finance, remains the staggering task of presiding over the cabinet's economic policy committee. As chancellor of the exchequer he directs Great Britain's mighty offensive of pounds, shillings and pence.

With the nation quickening to the increased tempo of aerial warfare and with Germany's Marshal Goering declaring the Reich will strike on the West, Chamberlain bowed to public clamor to "fight the war" by making the 65-year-old Churchill head of the vital service committee. He remains first lord of the admiralty, as well.

In this group will serve Oliver Stanley, the war secretary; Sir Samuel Hoare, the new air minister, their chiefs of staff and Churchill's own first sea lord—Admiral Sir Dudley Pound.

Also in the Churchill committee is Leslie Burgin, minister of supply, who, although under almost continuous fire for the last six weeks, confounded prophets and remained in the cabinet.

Council of Veterans

Thus three seasoned veterans—Sir Kingsley Wood, 59; Sir John Simon, 67, and Churchill, 65—will combine with the 71-year-old Chamberlain to lead the nation through whatever is coming.

The cabinet's only outstanding change in actual ministry assignments was the shift of Sir Samuel Hoare for Sir Kingsley Wood. Sir Kingsley, although roundly criticized for failure to maintain a high rate of airplane production, still is regarded highly as an organizer and "driver."

Actually it was the difference in organization of the government which made tonight's shuffle a notable one.

Press Is Critical

Chamberlain's actions failed to evoke unanimous approval of Thursday morning's press.

Labor's Daily Herald sharply criticized the lack of broader changes, declaring the reorganization showed "more forcibly than ever that Mr. Chamberlain is out of touch with the mood of the nation."

"The nation wants to win the war quickly. It demands of the premier

King's Uncle To Be Viceroy Of Canada

Earl of Athlone, Queen Mother's Brother, Succeeds Lord Tweedsmuir

Copyright by New York Times

London, April 3.—The appointment of the 66-year-old Earl of Athlone, King George's uncle and Queen Mother Mary's brother, as the new Governor-General of Canada, succeeding Lord Tweedsmuir, who died in Montreal February 11, was announced officially tonight.

The earl, who has had a distinguished record as soldier and statesman, is a well-known traveler and has recently been cooperating with the Oxford Group's Moral Rearmament campaign. He was named Governor-General of Canada in May, 1914, when he was Prince Alexander of Teck, to succeed the Duke of Connaught. When the last war broke out, however, the Duke of Connaught was persuaded to extend his term of office.

Won Distinction in France

When that extension ended in 1916, the Earl of Athlone was on active service in France, where he distinguished himself, and his appointment as Governor-General of Canada was canceled.

His new post will mark the earl's second experience as a governor-general. He was appointed governor-general of South Africa on October 27, 1923, succeeding Prince Arthur of Connaught. He proved so successful in the job that his period of office was prolonged and he remained in it seven years altogether.

During his term of office in South Africa he passed through some difficult crises, such as the flag bill controversy, in which he helped to keep alive the spirit of conciliation between the Dominion and the mother country.

The Earl of Athlone is not expected to go to Canada for three or four weeks, during which time he will select a staff.

Princess Alice, the Countess of Athlone, will accompany her husband. The couple stayed in Buckingham Palace Monday night and dined with the King and Queen.

Educated at Sandhurst

Commenting on the Athlone appointment, Vincent Massey, Canadian high commissioner, said it would be received by Canadians everywhere with enthusiasm, adding that Canadians would be proud to welcome so distinguished a public servant.

(In Ottawa, Prime Minister Mackenzie King revealed the appointment is conditional. The earl has not felt able to accept for the full term, which is five years, on account of possible exingencies which may require his presence at home.)

Born the third son of the Duke of Teck and the late Princess Mary Adelaide, the earl is the only surviving brother of Queen Mary. He married Princess Alice February 10, 1904.

He has been governor of Windsor Castle since 1931 and chancellor of London University since 1932.

New York, April 3.—Large-scale buying in steels, motors and other industrial shares piled up the biggest stock market volume today since the autumn war boomlet.

Many stocks finished 1 to around 4 points higher as the entire market picture brightened. Corporate bonds joined the advance in the heaviest trading since December and most commodities chimed in with moderate gains.

Providing what brokers called "old-fashioned leadership," United States Steel jumped 3½ to 62¾ and Bethlehem 3¾ to 80¾, both the highest in weeks. Republic gained 1¾ at 22½ and Youngstown Sheet 2¾ at 44.

Fire Alarm Box Or Police Phone, It Still Costs $25

Despite his plea that he mistook a fire alarm box for a police telephone, Robert Goodman, colored, 40, of Chain Bridge, Va., was fined $25 by Police Judge John P. McMahon yesterday.

Before passing sentence on Goodman, who was arrested Monday at Twenty-sixth and P streets northwest, Judge McMahon pointed out the danger firemen are under when they answer an alarm. "A false alarm," the judge said," also keeps equipment from answering legitimate alarms."

Goodman, according to police, was standing beside the alarm box when three fire companies arrived. He said he had been attacked by three men and robbed of $8 and thought he was summoning the police.

Census Taker Makes a Social And Statistical 'Hit' in District

Hearty appetites, a taste for strong drink and the ability to make a good fourth at bridge appeared yesterday to be the prime requisites of Washington census enumerators.

With minor exceptions, an estimated 45,000 persons in the District have cordially received the Census Bureau nose counters since the fact-finding campaign started Tuesday.

"The only difficulty encountered by our enumerators," said Garnett Brown, area manager, "is the insistent demand from citizens that they stay and chat, eat or drink."

At a meeting of squad leaders late yesterday, it was reported that the public "is almost too cooperative." Only in a few instances have counters reported snags—and all of these were straightened out.

Hostile receptions soon give way to enthusiastic response and the desired information has been obtained in every case, Brown said.

"Many persons questioned," he added, "appear surprised that we don't want more data. We're getting along splendidly and it looks like we'll clean up our job in record time."

Throughout the country, a telephone check revealed last night, 15,000,000 persons have been interviewed in the two-day-old census.

Representative Dan Reed (Republican), of New York, was among a small number who yesterday declined to answer questions pertaining to income.

"To answer such questions," said Reed, "would be in violation of my oath of office." He returned his absentee census form to Jamestown, N. Y., with income questions missing.

But Census Bureau officials said they already knew the necessary information and would fill in the

THE GREAT EMBASSY SCANDAL

Only when (and if) the Allies capture Berlin, and find the papers which the Nazis claim they found when they captured Warsaw, will it become certain which ones the Nazis "found" and which ones they forged, to prove that the United States of America really "caused" the war.

Harlan Miller

At the State Department responsible officials think it would require a squad of handwriting experts and specialists in the chemistry of paper to get to the bottom of the forgeries.

* * * *

Clumsy and stupid as diplomatic forgeries and forgers always turn out in the long run, observers here are convinced that the Nazi propaganda office, in Berlin, has cleverly combined genuine but innocuous documents, which prove nothing, with fake documents calculated to prove that Ambassadors Kennedy and Bullitt were indiscreet.

* * * *

Most, though by no means all, of the Americans who consort with the German Embassy crowd here are ardent Roosevelt haters.

If Thomsen, the acting ambassador, was consulted by Berlin, he might well have advised the Nazi foreign office that such documents would be a tough hurdle for the New Deal in the 1940 campaign. (Note: The German propaganda center in the United States is in Battery Place, New York, where American sentiment is closely, if clumsily, watched.)

"—some forged, some genuine."

Nasty gossip is already current here that the Nazi foreign office had some American help in Berlin in laying this propaganda egg.

But a preliminary scrutiny of internal evidence has already convinced officials here that even such documents as may have been forged do not prove what the Nazi propaganda office, in its press releases, claims they prove.

* * * *

One might expect some of the screwballs on Capitol Hill to fall for this crude piece of propaganda. But surely not statesmen of the stature of Senators Holt and Reynolds and Congressman Ham Fish! They're supposed to be dry behind the ears. Yet at the drop of a propaganda egg they yell for probes and impeachments!

* * * *

Some Americans of impeccable standing here are extremely intimate with the Nazi Embassy, and with perfect legality, too, if not with propriety.

One State Department official once declined to speak off-the-record at a small luncheon gathering because one of these gentlemen would have been present.

"Everything I might say," said the diplomat, "would be reported to the German Embassy within one hour."

* * * *

As revealed in this column several months ago, our State Department has kept a careful tabulation of Nazi propaganda in and against the U. S. A.

If you observe a sudden soft pedal on the Berlin-Warsaw revelations of "American war guilt," you can deduce that Berlin doesn't want this tabulation published.

* * * *

But the claim of "American war guilt" for Germany's invasion of Poland is no more preposterous than many another tidbit of Berlin's clumsy propaganda which has laid eggs all over the landscape:

The claim that England sank the Athenia the day the war began—when a Nazi submarine commander wears a decoration for it.

"—America's war guilt."

Letters mailed to French soldiers at the front that their wives are unfaithful.

A Berlin broadcast that the Graf Spee was victorious and unscathed, heard by thousands who saw her limp into Montevideo.

* * * *

The allegation that the British fired "gas shells" at the Graf Spee, laughed at by naval men all over the world.

Reports of Warsaw's capture two weeks premature.

The claim that neutral ships in the North Sea were sunk by "British" mines.

* * * *

Excursion of neutral journalists to Sylt to prove the British bombardment had been harmless—at the spots shown.

The claim that the Ark Royal had been sunk.

Any day now Berlin may prove that Roosevelt is a secret Morgan partner and that Hull has his clothes made in London.

About all that can be said for the more aromatic bits of German propaganda is that it's juicer than the British.

Harvard Has Communists, Dies Told

6 Other Colleges In New England Have Clubs, Witness Says

A pallid, 24-year-old Young Communist leader by the name of Thomas Francis Patrick O'Dea yesterday told the Dies Committee that there were Young Communist groups in Harvard and a half-dozen other prominent New England colleges.

Head of the Young Communist League in Massachusetts, O'Dea doggedly refused to reveal the names of any of his Young Communist associates on the grounds that they would be put on a "blacklist" and thrown out of their colleges or their jobs.

Indicating that the witness would be cited for contempt Chairman Dies declared at the close of the hearing that he intended "to cite all who refuse to answer questions." Two contempt citations against recalcitrant Communist witnesses have already been approved by the House and a third is awaiting House action.

O'Dea, a slight young man with wavy blond hair and small moustache, balked against attempts of committee members to draw him into a discussion of policies of the American and Russian governments.

But he said that "of course" he owed "exclusive allegiance" to the United States and that, as an American citizen, he had a right "to be for or against any piece of legislation." He refused to answer the oft-repeated Dies Committee question as to his allegiance in case of a Russian-American war on the grounds it was "hypothetical."

Refuses to Answer

O'Dea said that the Harvard Young Communist League had 35 to 60 members, "presumably" all Harvard students. When he was asked to name the secretary of this group, he declined to reply because it would expose the secretary to "persecution."

A sharp tangle ensued between Committee Counsel Robert Lynch and O'Dea's attorney, Sol Cohn, over the Constitutional right of the witness to keep silent. After ordering Cohn's protest against the "blacklist" be stricken from the record, Dies directed O'Dea to answer—but to no avail.

O'Dean told the committee that there were "75 to 100" Young Communists scattered through various New England colleges such as M. I. T., Dartmouth, Boston University, Amherst and Radcliffe, as well as Harvard. He placed the total membership for his district, which includes Massachusetts and neighboring States, at "300 to 350."

When Representative Starnes (Democrat), of Alabama, queried O'Dea about Russia's record as a force for peace, the witness started to launch into an explanation and then snapped:

"This isn't a history class. I don't see why we have to go into historical record."

Clash on Stand

A moment later, in answer to another question, O'Dea demurred with the observation that "that's a matter of opinion."

"I don't give a hang about your opinion," hetorted Starnes.

"Well, I wish you'd stop asking for it then," O'Dea replied.

When Representative Dempsey (Democrat), of New Mexico, asked O'Dea if he would agree with everything that Communist Leader Earl Browder said, O'Dea observed that "that's a ridiculous question."

"Sometimes I have to ask ridiculous questions of ridiculous people," Dempsey shot back.

Asked about Communists picketing the film "Gone With the Wind," O'Dea declared the movie was "vicious and unhistorical, and if Abraham Lincoln were alive, he'd do it with them."

A leaflet issued by the Harvard Young Communist League, entitled "Is the New Deal Being Scuttled—Are We Heading Toward War?" was put in the record, along with a letter from the New York office of the Communist Party criticizing the leaflet with the observation that "the New Deal today is certainly not something the masses should support."

Wallace Hits Crippling Taxes On Chain Store

Expresses Opposition To Patman Bill, Cites Consumer Benefits

By the Associated Press

Secretary Wallace yesterday opposed the Patman bill to place graduated taxes on individual units of chain store systems.

He expressed his views in a letter to Chairman McCormick (Democrat), Massachusetts, of the House ways and means subcommittee considering the measure.

After stating that the bill obviously would drive out of business the larger interstate systems of chain stores and adding that "probably many of the smaller chains would also find it impossible to operate under these added taxes," Wallace wrote:

"Studies of the Federal Trade Commission and other agencies have indicated that the food chains have been able to introduce a number of economies into the marketing system by the development of integrated mass methods of food distribution.

"The Department of Agriculture holds no brief for any particular type of food distributor, but it does believe that greater efficiency and lower costs in the marketing of farm products are of great importance to the farmer and the consuming public."

After acknowledging that the department was well aware of the "dangers" associated with the growth, of large corporations whether they be handlers of food or any other commodity, Wallace continued:

"Certainly it should be possible to provide suitable regulations which will prevent abuses and dishonest practices by chain stores. This department would be in favor of any such regulation.

"However, we think it would be unwise and unnecessary to give up the economies which have been brought about by chain store distribution in order to prevent certain practices which may not be in the public interest."

U. S. May Audit Credit Union Books

New legislation to authorize auditing of the books of all District credit unions by the General Accounting Office, for which the unions would pay a small fee, was ordered yesterday by a subcommittee of the Senate District Committee.

Following a second hearing on the Capper bill to transfer control to the superintendent of insurance, Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, suggested that District officials draw up a new bill to conform with the wishes of credit union spokesmen.

May 1 Decreed Health Day For Children

President Urges Year-Round Program In His Proclamation

By the Associated Press

President Roosevelt called upon all citizens yesterday "to take steps needed to strengthen and extend health protection and medical care for mothers and children in every community" as he proclaimed May 1 as Child Health Day.

In his proclamation the President invited "all agencies and organizations interested in child welfare to unite upon that day in observance of such exercises as will awaken the people of the Nation to the fundamental necessity of a year-round program for the protection and development of the health of the Nation's children."

The proclamation read:

Whereas, the Congress by joint resolution of May 1, 1928, 45 Stat. 617, has authorized and requested the President of the United States to issue annually a proclamation setting apart May 1 as Child Health Day: Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate the first day of May of this year as Child Health Day, and invite all agencies and organizations interested in child welfare to unite upon that day in the observance of such exercises as will awaken the people of the Nation to the fundamental necessity of a year-round program for the protection and development of the health of the Nation's children.

And I hereby call upon the people of the United States to consider the recommendations for conserving the health of children made by the White House Conference on Children in a Democracy and to take steps needed to strengthen and extend health protection and medical care for mothers and children in every community. I also call upon the boys and girls of the Nation to note the gains in health they have made during the past year and to share in efforts to improve the health of children and of our whole population.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington, this third day of April, in the year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and forty and of the Independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and sixty-fourth.

totals could block the President's reelection in November.

Means Nothing, Some Say

Two adept analysts at the Capitol declared the primary returns signified nothing.

Representative Drewry, of Virginia, chairman of the Congressional Democratic campaign committee, said so many factors were involved that few reliable conclusions can be drawn from such primary contests. Representative Drewry is personally opposed to a third term.

Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, who failed to signal his Progressive following which way to vote, said: "I don't think you can look on this primary vote as any indication of what will happen in November." LaFollette said several hundred thousand voters will participate in the November elections who apparently took no part in Tuesday's primary balloting.

In Dallas, Texas, E. B. Germany and Mrs. Clara Driscoll, co-chairmen of the Garner-for-President national committee, said it is "demonstrated conclusively that the third-term issue is dead."

"In the first place," said their joint statement, "only the army of job-holders and check-receivers who were pressed into service, coupled with a last-minute invasion of the Democratic primary by Progressives, prevented the election of an entire Garner slate of 24 delegates.

"Drafted," Guffey Declares

"In the second place, a larger vote was polled in the Republican primary than in the Democratic primary. (This is not borne out by the later returns.—Editor's note.)

"The result clearly prove that the two-term tradition will be repeated. Mr. Roosevelt could not be elected if nominated. The third-term issue is dead."

In sharp contrast, Senator Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, and other ardent third-term advocates at the Capitol argued that the President now will be forced to run. Guffey said the Wisconsin vote confirms what he has previously said: "That the people and not the President will decide the question of a third-term. I think President Roosevelt is already drafted."

Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, another Roosevelt supporter, said the vote proved "the third-term issue cuts little figure with the people," but added: "I think it was a vote for liberalism rather than a vote for Roosevelt."

This didn't quite square with the view of Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, third-term opponent, that the Wisconsin vote was a "swing away from the left," or with the elation of G. O. P. members at the increased Republican vote.

McNary, Martin Encouraged

Senate Minority Leader McNary said, "It looks good for us in November," and House Republican Leader Martin, himself regarded as a dark horse candidate, said "it is very encouraging and sustains us in our view that we will carry the elections this fall."

Senator Austin, of Vermont, assistant Senate Minority leader, said the vote was "encouraging to Republicans from two angles"—the approximately 30 per cent vote against a third term, and the improved G. O. P. showing.

Some Democrats took alarm at the vote and called for an end of party differences to forestall a Republican victory in the fall. Senator Miller (Democrat), of Arkansas, said, "it means the Democrats must end factional differences and get together. We need a little harmony."

He indicated no harmony could be expected on the third-term issue.

Senator Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith, of South Carolina, agreed the Democrats are "hopelessly split."

New Deal Senators took a contrary view.

"Victory" for President

Senator Minton, of Indiana, Senate majority whip, and a Paul McNutt supporter if the President fails to run, said "I don't see anything in these primary returns to discourage the third-term movement."

Senate Majority Leader Barkley called it "a great victory for the President." Senator Schwellenbach, of Washington, said it demonstrated the President's "great popularity." Senator Neely, of West Virginia, predicted Dewey will be the Republican nominee, Mr. Roosevelt the Democratic nominee, and the President will win.

Britain Makes Churchill Chief To Push War

a thorough spring-cleaning of his cabinet from top to bottom. He responds with a feeble flick of a duster," said the Herald.

Forty-five minutes before the British release time for the news of the cabinet reorganization, the German radio broadcast it in German. The announcer accompanied the detailed list of changes with the statement that Churchill had been "promoted from the rank of war monger to the rank of supreme war monger" and said Sir Kingsley Wood had been forced out by Churchill because Sir Kingsley, a diminutive man, was "too short to excel Churchill in lying."

The text of the British announcement was made available to newspapers and news agencies in London at about 8 p. m., (2 p. m., E. S. T.), with the express stipulation it be not published or broadcast until midnight British summer Time (6 p. m., E. S. T.). (The Germans, presumably, obtained it before then through access to European news agency reports in some neutral capital such as Amsterdam.)

Mastery Complete

In his announcement of the shakeup, Chamberlain said Churchill's assignment as head of the armed services committee would enable him to "keep under constant review the main factors in the strategical situation and the progress of operations and to make recommendations to the war cabinet on the general conduct of the war."

In addition, the resignation of Lord Chatfield as minister of defense coordination, leaves Churchill almost undisputed mastery over the fighting services. Furthermore, he will control the work of the ministry of supply.

Thus Churchill's natural exuberance and daring will be checked only by the cold logic of Neville Chamberlain, the hardware maker turned statesman.

It is no secret that Churchill has desired authority of some sort over the other services since the start of the war.

He always has declared that the blackest mark on his record, the grim and bloody failure of the Gallipoli landing during the World War, might never have been made had he then had direction over army forces, as well as the fleet.

His new position makes him not only the highest executive of the admiralty, Britain's chief instrument of blockade, but Britain's chief strategist as well.

More than any other Briton, he will have the ear of Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, the Allied generalissimo, in the periodic meetings of the supreme war council.

Together they will be running the Allied side of the war—and Churchill stands for action.

In another cabinet shift Robert S. Hudson, who, even at 54, is called one of the Conservative Party's "bright young men," replaces Sir John Gilmour, who died Saturday, as minister of shipping. Hudson's old job, secretary for overseas trade, was given to Geoffrey Shakespeare, the admiralty's parliamentary and financial secretary.

Shakespeare in turn is succeeded by Sir Victor Warrender.

Lord Woolton, an insurance magnate, succees W. S. Morrison as minister of food. Morrison takes the post of postmaster general from Maj. George C. Tryon, who becomes chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. Lord De La Ware, head of the Board of Education, trades posts with Herwald Ramsbotham, first commissioner of works.

Seal Urges Padlocks For 'Firetraps'

Corporation Counsel Asks Licenses to Force Heed to Regulations

Authority to padlock local rooming houses disregarding fire protection regulations will be recommended to the District Commissioners by Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal, he said last night.

In addition to this authority, Seal said he also would recommend that each rooming house be licensed as a means of compelling landlords to pay strict attention to these regulations. He said the District has been powerless in most instances to compel the landlord to do such things as erecting fire escapes or even to supply fire extinguishers.

Meanwhile, Chairman William T. Schulte of the police and fire subcommittee of the House District Committee yesterday announced he would continue hearings next week on the blaze which cost the lives of three persons Monday.

Expects List of Firetraps

He said he expected later this week a complete list of the "100 or more fire traps," which Building Inspector John W. Oehmann said existed here. Col. Oehmann testified to this effect at the hearing Tuesday. He said these "firetraps" were equally hazardous as the White Court Apartments, 2131 O street northwest, scene of Monday's fire.

Meanwhile, it was made clear yesterday by officials that the H. G. Smithy Co., are the agents for the White Court Apartments and not the owners.

Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee yesterday commended the police and fire subcommittee for its prompt action and expressed hope that the hearing would continue and bring to light the "weaknesses" in the building laws. District officials have for some time been working on a new building code.

Cites Difficulties

Col. Oehmann yesterday said many rooming houses or apartments are without fire protection facilities, but that under the present regulations he has found it difficult to force compliance. The limited number of inspectors also has been a handicap, he said.

He pointed out an instance where difficulty was encountered in locating the owner of a rooming house in Northwest Washington. The house was without a fire escape, fire extinguishers or fire alarms.

At the time of the inspection, March, 1939, the house had 21 tenants. Col. Oehmann said registered letters were sent to the owner, but had been returned by the Postoffice because of lack of proper address. Hence, it was impossible to serve notice on the owner to comply with the regulations.

Yesterday Seal suggested that the notice could be published in the Washington papers and if the owner still refused to comply the District could step in and make the necessary changes. The bill could be added to the real estate tax bill on the property. Seal did not know, however, where money could be found in the District appropriation for this type of work.

Urges Padlocks

Padlocking the property or requiring a license to operate is his suggestion to remedy the situation.

Maj. Patrick H. Tansey, acting Engineer Commissioner, is hopeful that the proposed city-wide survey by the National Board of Underwriters will uncover all "local firetraps." He said the underwriters report on "firetraps" would probably cause landlords to comply readily with fire protection regulations.

Meanwhile, Maj. Tansey will meet again today at 1 p. m. with a special committee of District officials working on the report on the White Court blaze.

Mrs. Tyser was a native of France. She had lived in this vicinity about 18 years. The funeral will take place Saturday morning from St. John's Catholic Church, Forest Glen. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery, Washington.

Grand Jurors Soon to Weigh Howard Killing

Curran Says Case Will Be Scheduled Within a Few Days

Grand jury hearing of charges that Jerome Howard, 25, murdered his 66-year-old mother at her home at 815 Taylor street northwest, will be scheduled in a few days, District Attorney Edward M. Curran said yesterday.

The murder was discovered last Saturday as a result of an investigation by reporters from The Post of strange occurrences at the house. Howard had been hiding in the locked and shuttered house with his mother's body for several days.

Curran indicated that the case will be one of the first heard by the new grand jury, which was impaneled by Justice Peyton Gordon in the District Court yesterday.

As grand jury foreman, Justice Gordon named 47-year-old John C. McIntosh, chief draftsman for the Potomac Electric Power Co. The court instructed the jurors to follow the lead of Government counsel in making their investigations and deprecated aimless inquiries.

Miles Named Head of Army Intelligence

General, Now Stationed At London, Will Sail For U. S. This Month

Brig. Gen. Sherman Miles, American military attache at London and a native of Washington, has been named chief of military intelligence, the War Department announced yesterday.

MILES

The son of the late Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, commander of the armies of the United States, will sail from Genoa, Italy, about April 20 to take up his duties here. He relieves Col. E. R. Warner McCabe, who is on leave pending his retirement this summer.

General Miles has had numerous assignments with the intelligence branch since his graduation from West Point in 1905. He was military attache to Bucharest, Rumania; Sofia, Bulgaria, and Petrograd from 1912 to 1916; and the American military representative to Turkey from 1922 to 1925.

During the World War, Miles was with the intelligence division of the First Army Corps, participating in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives. Later he was assistant chief of staff for military intelligence of that corps and an instructor at the artillery school at Langres, France. He served with the Peace Commission until 1919.

Born here September 5, 1882, General Miles has been on duty at the War Department and Fort Myer numerous times. He was assigned to the war plans division of the general staff here from 1934 to 1938.

Blow in West Will End War, Goering Says

Sure Fuehrer Will Strike Eventually, He Tells Nazi Youth

By the Associated Press

Berlin, April 3.—Field Marshal Goering, Adolf Hitler's political heir, told millions of German children today that Hitler had mobilized all his forces for "a decisive blow in the West."

"It is here," he said, "that the decisive blow must be struck."

The mighty German army, he told the breathless children, will attack on the west as it did in the Polish blitzkreig "when Hitler is determined to put an end to this war." He gave no further clue to the time of the attack.

Von Brauchitsch on Tour

As Goering spoke Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch was inspecting troops on the Western Front, especially those stationed in the Rhineland. The tour, which started Sunday, ended tonight.

Goering spoke over a nationwide radio hook-up from the festival hall of the air ministry to school children and apprentices in factories who forgot their studies or dropped their tools to hear the one-hour address.

Immediately before Goering were assembled youths employed in the air ministry as office boys, messengers and apprentices as well as members of the Hitler youth flying corps.

"Having their rear and flanks secure," said Goering, "the German armed forces in one firm bloc are facing Britain and France in the west. It is here that the decisive blow must be struck, and for this decisive blow the Fuehrer has mobilized all resources."

Goering said England and France "criminally started" the war and that "because they have done this misdeed, destiny will . . . give them their answer."

"Through us," he said, "fate will give them this answer. Now they will learn what it means to attack Germany. In 18 days Poland was destroyed in lightning-like fashion. Our enemies should note that we have not become weaker, but infinitely stronger as a result of these blows.

Orators Are Busy

"Just as we dealt out our blows there, so will we aim ours at them when it is time to show that Germany is determined to put an end to this war—of that I am convinced."

Meantime Nazi orators are becoming very busy. Besides Goering, Propaganda Minister Goebbels anud Robert Ley, head of the Labor Front, today expressed confidence in what Goebbels said would become "the most brilliant victory of Germna history."

Hundreds of small district Nazi rallies are being held regularly at which speakers discourse on such themes as "Why we will win this war" and "England, the taskmaster of nations."

House Unit Cuts Funds for Army

000,000 was needed to completely equip the "Initial Protective Force"—the Regulars, National Guard and trained reserves which would be mobilized immediately in time of war. A total of $240,000,000 will be required, in addition, to provide the equipment for the 1,000,000-man force which would be recruited or drafted in an emergency, he said.

The committee diverted $14,250,000 from funds requested for procurement planning and industrial mobilization for direct war orders to curtail this deficit.

Plans for holding four Army maneuvers simultaneously this August were revealed with the publication of the hearings. Regular Army and National Guard troops of the District, Maryland and Virginia will go to northern New York for three weeks of war games, in which more than 124,000 soldiers will participate.

The committee allowed 21 days training with pay for the National Guard and 6 days rations for week-end exercises. Armory drills were cut from 60 to 48.

Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of Air Corps, told the committee that the Army was "paying too much" for its planes and revealed that the National Academy of Science had been asked to study means of reducing aircraft costs. He testified the "carrying charges" for the Air Corps during the next five years will run $1,180,000,000.

The committee allowed $130,000 for drawing plans for the new Army Medical Museum and Library here, but declared that while there is "an unquestioned need" for the new structure, it could not legally recommend the $470,000 carried in the budget for the site. The act authorizing the project, it was said, provided for the Secretary of War to erect the building on Government-owned land, while the budget would have the Public Buildings Administration buy land and put up the structure.

Stenographer to Speak

Albert Schneider, official stenographer of the House Committee, of 7516 Fourteenth street northwest, will speak on reporting at a meeting at 7:30 tonight of the District of Columbia Chapter of the Associated Stenotypists of America in the clubroom of Town House, Nineteenth and F streets northwest.

'Venality' Charge False, Says Woodrum

there will be none, but the committee is going to proceed in an orderly way."

Presents Estimates

Pointing out that Col. Harrington will present his 1941 estimates to the committee today, the Virginia Representative asserted that "this blanket charge of 'venality' is manifestly unfair procedure. It is very unfair to any Government official to have to appear before a Congressional committee with such a charge as that hanging over him, and that charge hangs over every WPA official."

Representative Woodrum told the House that "the specific question was asked in our conference yesterday—and inasmuch as this press statement is very unfair to the person, I will state this much—as to whether or not the personal integrity and character of the high WPA official was involved and the answer was in the negative."

Representative Woodrum declared that "nothing was stated" at Tuesday's conference "which in any way reflected in the slightest degree the character or integrity of Col. Harrington, of the WPA." (The Post's informant likewise emphasizing that Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA administrator, was not the "high official" to whom he had previously referred.)

"I have disagreed with Col. Harrington in his official acts in the past," Woodrum said, "and I am confident I shall do so in the future with reference to some things that I understand are coming on for consideration by the committee of the House, but I think it is very unfair when articles of this kind appear."

Cites Committee Aims

The investigating committee, he said, "is interested in trying to improve this relief program; it is interested in seeing to it that the funds which the Congress appropriates for destitute people will go to those people and it will do whatever it can to bring that about."

"It is not interested, I believe, and certainly speaking for myself I am not interested, in any public performance or in any scandal or in any unnecessary airing of things of that sort," he stated.

Representative Woodrum concluded with the assurance that "everything the committee has received will be open for the consideration and the use of members of the committee as well as members of the House in due time."

When he appears today before the relief subcommittee (which is composed of the same members as the WPA Investigating Committee), Col. Harrington is expected to ask for a 1941 appropriation of $975,000,000. It was thought possible, however, that he might request the House not to impose the usual requirement that the money be spread over the entire year.

France Gives Maximum Terms to 36 Communist Ex-Deputies

By the Associated Press

Paris, April 3.—A military tribunal, pushing the government's drive to stamp out Communist influence in France, today imposed maximum five-year sentences on 36 former Communist deputies.

Eight others of 44 on trial for disseminating Communist propaganda also were found guilty but because of extenuating circumstances received suspended four-year sentences. All lose their civil rights, however, and must pay fines ranging up to 5,000 francs (about $112.50).

In the secret proceedings nine of the former deputies were convicted in absentia, never having been apprehended since the government launched its anti-Communist drive. The nine fugitives are to be tried later on treason charges which involve the death penalty.

Among those missing are Jacques Duclos, former vice president of the Chamber; Maurice Thorez, former general Secretary of the Communist Party in France; Gabriel Peri and Arthur Ramette.

Besides denying civil rights to those let off with suspended sentences, the court directed that they must maintain their residences at a specific place to be fixed by the military authorities.

Until the party was dissolved September 26, the Communists held 79 seats in the Chamber of Deputies. Some of them who took oaths of allegiance to France still hold their seats but not as Communists.

The French campaign against Communists was one aftermath of the Soviet-German accord and was a factor in straining Soviet-French relations which reached a low point last week, when Russia's Ambassador to Paris, Jacob Surits, was withdrawn at the request of France.

Communist Plot Revealed Against Canal

House Told Party Is Working Upon Crews of Supply Ships

Harry Stoudt, who sailed as a member of the crew of the S. S. Ancon, also a War Department supply ship. He said Stoudt made a number of trips on this vessel.

"While ashore in the Canal Zone," Keefe said, "he (Stoudt) set up an organizing committee for Canal Zone workers. In addition to being a member of the crew, Stoudt at this time carried credentials as an organizer for the East Coast Longshoremen's Organizing Committee, which was set up by Harry Bridges for the purpose of trying to 'take over' the East Coast longshoremen.

"Finally Joseph Curran, president of the N.M.U., and Bridges agreed to send Stoudt into the Canal Zone to stay there indefinitely as an organizer for the C. I. O. Maritime Committee.

"It is well known, however, that Stoudt's activities in the Canal Zone were more concerned in colonizing for the Communist Party than they were in organizing for any trade movement.

Could Tie Up Canal

"In a report made to Curran, chairman of the C. I. O. maritime committee, Soudt stated that the workers in the Canal Zone could be of 'great help' in the event that another maritime strike occurred on either the East or the West coast of this country.

"The inference drawn here is very clear, as there is only one way in which these canal workers could be of 'great help' to a maritime strike on either coast. The 'great help' would be the tying up of our ships attempting to make passage of the canal and the refusal of the canal workers to take these ships through the canal locks."

As he spoke, Representative Keefe held in his hand a book just off the press entitled "We Accuse." It was written by Jerry King, former secretary of the National Maritime Union, C. I. O.; Ralph Emerson, former Washington legislative agent of the N. M. U., and Fred Renaud and Lawrence McRyn.

Representative Keefe said that "We Accuse," based on actual records, demonstrated beyond a reasonable doubt "that the National Maritime Union of America, headed by Joseph Curran, president, is under the absolute control of the Communist Party."

Protests Smothered

"Real American seamen like the authors of this volume," he continued, "have protested in vain against the tactics of the disciples of Stalin, who have by trickery, deceit, sabotage and espionage finally assumed complete and absolute control of this maritime union.

"These loyal Americans, including the authors of this volume, have been driven from their union by the Communist control, and when they have attempted to fight back and present the truth and facts, they have become the victims, as is always the case, of a smear campaign conducted through the medium of the Communist Daily Worker, the Communist-inspired Pilot and other Communist papers."

(Referring to an expose by The Washington Post three years ago of the Communist training school for seamen, or the "Red Annapolis," Representative Keefe said:

"When the school was conducted in 1937, it was thoroughly exposed by Edward Folliard, one of The Washington Post's ace reporters. However, the Communist Party again in 1939 reopened their school but conducted it more secretly. In spite of the party's attempts to avoid publicity, the knowledge of the operations of the 1939 school came into possession of the seamen who were fighting communism in our merchant marine, and this whole subject is thoroughly treated in the book, 'We Accuse.'"

Representative Keefe said that Ferdinand Smith, a graduate of the "Red Annapolis," is secretary of the N. M. U., and that Frederick Myers, another graduate, is national organizer for the N. M. U.

Are Party Couriers

The purpose of the Communist Party in starting this school, the Wisconsin member said, was to turn out "key men" who could control labor policies aboard American ships and act as couriers for carrying the party's confidential reports from one country to another.

Leading up to his charge that Bruen and Studt had been serving on War Department vessels, Representative Keefe said:

"The War Department under the administration of Secretary Woodring controls and operates the Panama Railroad Co., for the Federal Government. This company operates three large, new passenger and cargo ships between the port of New York and the Canal Zone; namely, the Ancon, the Panama and the Cristobal.

"The primary purpose of these ships is to act as carriers of essential supplies from this country to the Canal Zone for national defense purposes. These ships are manned by merchant seamen. The War Department hires seamen only through the 'hiring hall' of the National Maritime Union, C. I. O., although it has no contract or closed shop agreement with the unions.

"Naturally, there would be no contract in this case, for the same reason that there is no contract signed between the Federal Government and any of its employes here in Washington.

"However, when a vacancy occurs among the unlicensed personnel on any of these three ships while in the port of New York, the port officials of the line instruct their office force to call upon the National Maritime Union to obtain the necessary replacement. As the port of New York is the only place where any hiring of seamen takes place for this line, it is apparent that the National Maritime Union gets the exclusive privilege of supplying seamen for these ships."

Representative Keefe said that the N. M. U., although looking with favor on graduates of the Communist Training School, frowns on the training of seamen in the schools established by the United States Maritime Commission and Coast Guard, and for which $1,000,000 has been allocated.

"The fact is," he said, "that attempts by officials of the Maritime Commission to secure employment for the graduates of their training school on the ships of the Panama Railroad Line of the War Department have been politely stymied."

Bishop Corrigan Tells Catholics They Must Lead Fight to Keep America Free of Alien Isms

JOHN F. CROSBY BISHOP CORRIGAN WILLIAM J. NEALE

Neale, club president, was pictured with Bishop Corrigan at yesterday's dinner of the Calvert Club. Crosby was principal speaker at the reception for the rector of Catholic University, who was elevated Tuesday to titular bishop of Bilta

Vigorously attacking atheism as "the enemy within our gates," the Most Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, newly-consecrated bishop of Bilta, last night charged Catholicism with the responsibility of defending the country against the "intellectual kidnaping" that has taken place in Europe.

In his first public talk since his elevation Tuesday the new bishop assured an audience of 500 who had gathered to pay him tribute at the Willard Hotel, that Catholics in the United States were so well organized they could withstand the tide of disbelief and "save the country from Europe's fate."

The new bishop pointed out that in the 150 years the Catholics have risen to become a power in a Protestant country.

To Build Leaders

The Bishop said that Catholic University, of which he is rector, would do its duty by supplying leaders for American Catholics. He said that Pope Pius XI, almost from his deathbed, had commanded Catholic University to become the center of Catholic teaching in the United States and to lead the fight against the "religious oppression" that is rampant in Europe.

Earlier the new bishop heard distinguished guests at the function, which was sponsored by the Calvert Club of Washington, praise his elevation, as well as pay tribute to his outstanding career in education.

John F. Crosby, Assistant Attorney General in the Wilson Administration, who eulogized Bishop Corrigan, declared that our democracy was young and that we could not be sure it held the answer to our philosophic needs.

Must Be Consecrated

"Our country cannot long remain the sanctuary of the liberty and dignity of man," he said, "unless it remains consecrated to the everlasting source of that dignity."

Toastmaster at hte affair was William J. Neale, president of the Calvert Club. On the program was George O'Connor and his quartet, and Miss Katherine Kane, harpist. Among the guests were: Archbishop John G. Murray, S. T. D., of St. Paul, Minn.; Msgr. Patrick McCormick, vice rector of Catholic University; Dr. Leslie C. Garnett, chancellor of National University; Dr. H. Curly Byrd, president of Maryland University; Msgr. Lawrence Sheehan, director of Catholic Charities in Washington; Dr. John Fitzpatrick, provost of Columbus University, and Edward Curran, the new district attorney.

Pan American Airway Elects Stanley, Kilner to Its Board

Two retired officers of the fighting forces, with high rank and with wide experience in international affairs and both well known in Washington, were elected to the board of directors of Pan American Airways in New York yesterday.

They are Admiral William H. Stanley, former Chief of Naval Operations, and Brig. Gen. Walter G. Kilner, former assistant Chief of the Air Corps of the Army. Their election filled vacancies existing on the airline's board.

Admiral Stanley represented the United States at the London Naval Conference in 1935 and 1936 and, upon his retirement as rear admiral, was made admiral by Congress. Gen. Kilner served in the Far East, Europe and Latin America and as chief of staff, General Headquarters Air Force.

Juan T. Trippe, Pan American president, said the new directors do not represent any special stockholder interests. Their experience in international affairs, he said, would be of great value to the airline in meeting "aggressive future competition of large foreign flag air systems in the international field" and their counsel would be of great assistance in "better discharging growing responsibilities of the Pan American Airways system's connection with national defense."

Stella McGarvey, Congress Library Employe, Dies

Miss Stella Mcarvey, 45, an employe of the Library of Congress for 17 years, died yesterday at Doctors' Hospital after a brief illness.

A native of Pennsylvania, Miss McGarvey was the daughter of Mrs. Anna McGarvey. She lived at 610 Park road northwest.

Surviving, besides her mother, are four brothers, William Joseph and Raymond, of Washington, and Bernard, of Daytona Beach, Fla.; and five sisters, Miss Helen E. and Miss Gertrude McGarvey, of this city; Mrs. John Ferry, of Bethlehem, and Mrs. Edward Boyle, of Audenreid Pa. Funeral services will be at 830 a. m. tomorrow from St. Gabriel's Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Allies Need U.S. Aid to Win, Canada Told

Official Says Nation Must Do All in Power To Enlist Support

By the Associated Press

Cannington, Ontario, April 3.—The Ontario attorney general, Gordon Conant, today told an audience of farmers and business men that is is Canada's duty to "do everything within our power to enlist the active support of the United States in the cause of the Allies."

Saying the success of the Allied cause "may be very doubtful" unless active participation of the United States is made effective at an early date, Conant declared:

"If the United States wants to build the St. Lawrence waterway, by all means let us join them. If they want access to Alaska over Canadian soil, there should be no hesitation in settling the matter. In fact, nothing short of impairment of our status as a sovereign nation would be too much for Canada to offer as a sacrifice on the altar of liberty and freedom.

"The Allies need America . . . They need even more the moral and particularly the material resources of our great neighboring republic to the south . . .

"Every day the United States delays in joining the Allies will only prolong the war and increase the effort and the sacrifice that the United States may yet be called upon to make to save herself from the fate that now threatens all the democracies of the world.

"In the last war their entry undoubtedly turned the scales and resulted in victory which materialized in November, 1918 . . .

"A clear declaration of policy at this time, supporting the Allies and declaring it to be the intention of the United States to enter the contest in their behalf, would materially affect the whole situation, probably to the extent of bringing an end to hostilities.

"Surely Germany would see the futility of her mad project . . . I am confident she would seek an early peace rather than risk the ultimate extermination that would be her fate."

Forrester Promoted

The Navy announced yesterday promotion of Thomas F. Forrester, First Marine Brigade, Fleet Marine Force, Quantico, Va., to rank of first lieutenant in the Volunteer Marine Corps Reserve.

Rains at Susquehanna Source Bring Fears of New Flood

By the Associated Press

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 3.—Heavy rains started falling again tonight in the flood-stricken Susquehanna River valley.

The downpour, ranging from the headwaters in New York State south through the hard-hit Wilkes-Barre area of northeastern Pennsylvania, raised anew the fear of further danger which had abated with the subsiding flood waters during the day.

Sleet and hail accompanied driving rain in some sections. Hailstones were so large they broke a window.

Towanda, farther up the north branch of the Susquehanna from Wilkes-Barre, reported heavy rain that "looked as if it would keep falling all night."

Observers had agreed a heavy, prolonged fall would be required to send the river back toward the flood crest that had left thousands temporarily homeless here and down the valley beyond Sunbury—65 miles away—in the last three days.

The Federal-State Flood Forecasting Service, however, said the rains were not expected to cause "any serious" change in the falling river unless weather conditions changed drastically.

Communities along the Susquehanna shared with State and Federal agencies a twofold task: Immediate emergency steps to safeguard health and to feed and clothe the remaining homeless, and the shaping of a broader long-range program of flood safeguards.

Close watch was kept for outbreaks of disease. Serum was pooled at Wilkes-Barre, ready for use in case of typhoid fever. Three scarlet fever cases at Wilkes-Barre were isolated. Fifty tons of chloride of lime was trucked in to purify drinking water. Two movable laboratories on State trucks went to Williamsport, Sunbury and towns in the Wilkes-Barre area, to test water supplies.

The Red Cross, which estimated 30,000 were homeless in the flood zone when the water was at its highest, set $100,000 as the goal for a fund drive for emergency relief.

British Warned By Japanese On Blockade

Threaten Steps To Halt 'Illegal' Action by Warships

By the Associated Press

Tokyo (Thursday), April 4.—Warning that Japan objects to extension of the European war to "waters near Japan" and has made several representations to the British naval attache in Tokyo against cruising warships, an admiralty spokesman said today the Japanese navy would "take action" if Britain's blockade of Soviet Russia is done "illegally."

His statement generally was interpreted to mean that Japan would consider "illegal" any British activity in Chosen Strait in an effort to stop commerce to the Russian Far Eastern port of Vladivostok.

The spokesman declined to specify what would be regarded as "illegal" action, however.

Britain Warned

He said the British attache had been warned that Japan finds cruising warships "near Japanese waters very unpleasant."

The strait, off the coast of Korea, and but 75 miles from Japan, is the most feasible route for Russian ships to reach the Soviet Far Eastern port of Vladivostok.

"The spokesman said furthermore, that while the Japan Sea is not territorial waters, it is a Japanes lake in Japanese eyes. The British navy can take any action it pleases there, but the reaction in Japanese sentiment would be strong."

Japanese regarded the British action in stopping a Japanese ship and removing German seamen last January almost in sight of Japanese shores as an affront to national sentiment.

The Japan Sea, between Japan and the mainland, extends from Chosen Strait on the south to Vladivostok and beyond on the north. The sea is about 500 miles wide at the widest point.

Blockade Touches California

Copyright by New York Times

Los Angeles, April 3.—The long arm of the Allies' economic blockade touched the California coast today, as 4,000 tons of copper ingots consigned to initial delivery at Vladivostok remained stranded at San Pedro because departure of the Russian steamer booked to take the metal has assertedly been canceled.

Possible seizure by British and French men-of-war patrolling the Asiatic coast is believed to be the reason for the ship's failure to sail.

The copper shipment is from Arizona smelters and was to have been the first consignment in a planned movement of considerable proportions from this port to Vladivostok.

Farm Credit Bill Opposed

Short conceded that the present farm credit system has not been "fully cooperative," but asserted that the Jones bill would render the cooperative features of the system "virtually meaningless."

He said there could be "no reasonable objection" to several features of the Jones bill, including the retirement of farm loan bonds which bear interest rates higher than the present cost of money.

Short maintained, however, that most of the "desirable" objectives of the measure could be achieved under existing legislation.

The committee is expected to conclude hearings tomorrow and take up the bill in executive sessions next week. Short will complete his testimony today, and the committee will also hear Frank Boice, vice president of the National Livestock Association. Representatives of the American Bankers Association are to appear before the committee tomorrow.

Short contended that "the removal of the right to foreclose on a borrower removes the sense of personal responsibility which is essential to the maintenance of sound credit institution." The authority to enforce collection of a debt need not be "harshly exercised," he added.

The federation favors continuance of the present 3½ per cent interest rate on land bank loans for five years, he stated. The Jones bill would cut rates to 3 per cent.

Short said the federation has consistently fought for measures to "bring agriculture into a parity position and thereby increase the debt-paying ability of farmers."

Appeals for 'Time'

The witness appealed to the committee to take "plenty of time" before acting on the bill. The legislation had been introduced "very suddenly," he said.

Chairman Marvin Jones (Democrat), of Texas, replied that "practically everything in this bill has been discussed for years."

Representative Phil Ferguson (Democrat), of Oklahoma, asserted that whatever strength the land banks now possess comes from a common assumption that the Federal Government will not allow their bonds to go into default.

"In this bill we look the Government 'guarantee of the bonds straight in the face," he said, "instead of maintaining the fiction that the loan associations and land banks are holding up the bonds."

U. S. Could Bar Trust Looting, Attorneys Say

Senate Witnesses Tell of Millions Lost by Investors

By the Associated Press

Witnesses with direct experience in untangling the snarled affairs of what they termed "looted" investment trusts testified before a Senate Banking Sub-Committee yesterday that Federal regulation of such institutions could have prevented losses to the public running into millions of dollars.

Alfred A. Cook, attorney for the trustee of Continental Securities Co., and Hugh Fulton, a special assistant United States district attorney, told the committee of "fraud" and "razzle-dazzle" methods which they attributed to certain investment trust promoters and operators.

Agreeing with Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, whose bill to regulate investment trusts and investment companies occasioned the hearing, that many such institutions are honestly and efficiently managed for the public benefit, the witnesses cited the cases of the Continental and the Insurance Shares Corporation, however, as examples of the need for Government supervision.

Acquittal Recalled

In the former case, Cook testified, efforts at criminal prosecution for larceny resulted in acquittals, while Fulton related the story of prosecutions that resulted in several convictions connected with Insurance Shares operation.

Without commenting on the proposed legislation generally, the witnesses praised provisions which would require consent of common stockholders to certain transactions and disclosure of specified matters.

Fulton told the committee it was "very difficult" to conduct criminal prosecutions for investment trust mismanagement under the present law because it was necessary to show that criminal intent, not an honest mistake in judgment, was involved.

$3,300,000 to $50,000

In the cases described by the witnesses, sales of certain securities by promoters to the investment trusts they controlled resulted in losses to the companies and profits to the sellers. At the same time, they said, good securities owned by the corporations were sold to make possible the purchase of less valuable substitutes.

Cook testified that after "looters and conspirators" obtained control of Continental in this manner in October, 1937, assets valued at $3,300,000 in the company's portfolio were reduced to securities worth not more than $50,000.

In the Insurance Shares Corporation, Fulton told the committee, an initial investment of $15,000,000 by the public dwindled to $300,000.

Mrs. Roosevelt To Go on Air

New York, April 3 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will become a radio commentator April 30, in a nationally broadcast program, Franklin Bruck, head of the advertising agency bearing his name, announced tonight.

Bruck said Mrs. Roosevelt had signed a year's contract to broadcast twice weekly from 1:15-1:30 p. m (E. S. T.), on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and that the program would be carried over the combined networks of the National Broadcasting Co.

Justice Pine Gives Woman Decree In His First Case

Justice David A. Pine, former District attorney, granted his first decress in the District Court yesterday, awarding a divorce to Mrs. Mary L. Gibbs, 3419 Reservoir road northwest, who charged her husband with desertion.

Justice Pine gave Mrs. Gibbs custody of her 8-year-old son and ordered the husband, John W. Gibbs, of Hillsboro, Va., to pay $10 a month for the boy's support and $100 for attorney's fees.

"I was surprised and delighted by the honor of presenting the first case before Justice Pine," declared Richard A. Harman, Mrs. Gibbs' attorney. "It was a pleasure to see both his patience and the skill with which he grasped the essentials of the matter in hand and cut through the details to the important points."

Post-Dispatch Editorial Hits Back at Judge

Won't Be Gagged, Says Publisher; Appeals Contempt Verdict

St. Louis, April 3.—Circuit Judge Thomas J. Rowe today found Chief Editorial Writer Ralph Coghlan and Cartoonist Daniel R. Fitzpatrick of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch guilty of contempt of court in connection with an editorial campaign of the newspaper. The newspaper was fined $2,000; Coghlan was sentenced to 20 days in jail and fined $200 and Fitzpatrick to 10 days in jail and a fine of $100.

Later in the day the Missouri Supreme Court issued a "stop order" temporarily blocking enforcement of Judge Rowe's fine, and then granted a writ of habeas corpus ordering the two executives freed on bonds of $500 each pending a hearing.

It ordered no further action in the case temporarily, gave the Post-Dispatch five days to file suggestions in support of the plea, the State attorneys five days thereafter to answer in opposition and the newspaper five additional days to reply to the opposition.

After that the case will go into the court for a decision whether to issue the certiorari and review the contempt case.

The newspapers' attitude in the controversy, which is described as an issue involving the Bill of Rights, is presented in the following which will appear as an editorial by Publisher Joseph Pulitzer in the Post-Dispatch tomorrow:

The Post-Dispatch has been found guilty of contempt in the criminal division of the circuit court. We are condemned because we published two editorials and a cartoon severely criticizing recent actions of that court. Those criticisms concerned the trials of John P. Nick, a labor racketeer, and State Representative Edward M. Brady, who were accused of extorting $10,000 from moving picture theater owners in St. Louis.

What is the real issue in this case? Is it the judge, Thomas J. Rowe, jr.?

It is not.

Is the issue confined to the technical accuracy of Judge Rowe's rulings, to the sufficiency of the evidence, or to the severity of the Post-Dispatch's criticism of the judge's actions in throwing the cases out of court instead of letting them go to the jury?

It is not.

Is the issue the drumhead court-martial nature of this proceeding which permits the judge to be prosecutor, judge and jury in his own case?

Debatable as this question is, it is not the issue.

Is the issue the bungling of another case by our futile circuit attorney, enabling these labor racketeers to thumb their noses at organized society and walk out with their unholy gains, unmolested by the criminal laws?

Again, it is not.

The real issue in this case has to do with the most sacred part of the Constitution of the United States—the Bill of Rights. This Bill of Rights is the very heart of the American form of government. It consists of the first ten amendments to the Constitution, without the assurance of which the Constitution itself would never have been adopted. The reason for this lay in the fears of the young American tradesmen, farmers and lawyers who drew up the Bill of Rights that they were in danger of losing those liberties for which they had risked their lives in the American Revolution.

Those are the liberties which the Statue of Liberty so dramatically symbolizes. They are the liberties that spell American human freedom. That freedom which represents the burning, scorching, blazing difference between American democracy and German national socialism, Italian fascism and Russian communism. Those liberties give every good citizen in the United States, within certain eminently proper limitations, the right to worship as he pleases, speak as he pleases, assemble and criticize as he pleases and edit a newspaper as he pleases.

This last right is known as freedom of the press. Its guarantee is to be found in the first amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which reads as follows:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances."

A similar provision stands in the Constitution of Missouri.

Out of this amendment restraining Congress from abridging the freedom of the press there has grown in this country a code of law including countless decisions of the courts protecting the press from unwarranted attacks not only by Congress, by the State Legislatures and by the Executive, but by the courts themselves.

What has freedom of the press to do with this charge of contempt?

For years the Post-Dispatch, striving to comply with the provisions of its founder's platform published daily at the masthead of this page, has been exploring and exposing and condemning the rottenness and incompetence that festers in local administration of law. Conversely, and for the same motive, the Post-Dispatch has upheld and lauded judges and prosecutors who are doing their work well; likewise, the Post-Dispatch has joined every movement instituted by the oar association to take the courts out of politics, to modernize the State's criminal code and otherwise to protect and preserve the majesty of the law.

When a judge cites a newspaper for contempt of court, he can, or he may think he can, silence that newspaper. In that event, there would inevitably recur miscarriages of justice such as have shamed us far too often in the recent past. Even now, with the press free to comment and the people free to judge, the recent record of some courts and some public officials is appalling. We could fill this page with instances of defective indictments, inexcusable delays, packed juries, incredible incompetence on the part of prosecutors, and threatened, bribed or murdered witnesses. In the case of the election frauds alone, thousands of felonies have been committed in St. Louis in the last few years and not a single election crook has gone to prison.

If a newspaper is to be gagged by being haled into court to answer a charge of contempt whenever a judge has felt the sting of editorial criticism, that means the end of the power of press to tell the people about the failures and evils of their courts. That means the end of freedom of the press.

We do not believe that American courts or the American people will accept such a revolutionary departure from American principle. On behalf of American newspapers in general, big and little, rich and poor, powerful and obscure, we accept this challenge.

Legion Posts Donate $170 To Blood Bank

3 Groups Contribute In Campaign for Fund For Children's Hospital

Three American Legion posts swelled the Children's Hospital blood and serum bank fund by $170.55 yesterday.

James E. Walker Post No. 26, headed by Dr. William F. Nelson, announced it is transmitting a check for $100, proceeds of a benefit card party held March 1 at the Twelfth Street Y. M. C. A. The post auxiliary, of which Mrs. Emma Jackson is chairman, cooperated in the party.

The Washington Post, co-sponsor of the campaign with Station WJSV and the American Contract Bridge League, received $60.55 from Bunker Hill Post, No. 31, whose benefit party was held Monday night.

"Please accept our congratulations on the splendid work your paper did in this campaign," wrote Post Commander John R. Weitzel. "We are happy to have had a small share in it."

The third Legion check was from Department of Justice Post No. 41, which raised $10 for the fund.

A complete report on the campaign will be published in The Post later in the week.

blank spaces for him. They know his salary as a member of Congress is $10,000 and his travel and other allowances exceed $50.

Local enumerators have had numerous and novel experiences since their city-wide door-rapping trek started. A few, Brown said, have dropped out because the going got too tough—but they were quickly replaced and the job continued.

One counter met resistance at the home of a northwest housewife who refused to talk even before he had opened his mouth. He patiently explained purposes of the census and a little while later not only had all his data, but an invitation to dinner and bridge afterwards.

"Snakes" Bothered Him

Another enumerator was talking to a family on a houseboat in the Potomac River. While he collected his information, the boat was towed downstream into another census district. Baffled, the counter had to call his office to learn whether he should continue or turn the unfinished business over to another enumerator. He was told to finish.

A second enumerator along the river called the central office and said he couldn't go on because "snakes in the bushes were bothering him."

Double Standard?

After a spell of quiescence, the Dies Committee has this week resumed its accustomed place in the spotlight with two attention-compelling activities.

The first was a raid on two Communist offices in Philadelphia and the seizure there of evidence which Chairman Dies describes as the "most amazing" obtained by the committee in two years of investigation. The second was the melodramatic testimony of a young lady who charged, before the committee that William Dudley Pelley, the Silver Shirt leader, had conspired in 1934 to "seize control of New York" and "eventually" Washington.

It may be only coincidence that agents of the Dies Committee were carrying out a raid on Communist centers while the committee itself was concentrating on the posturing of subversive elements at the opposite end of the political spectrum, It is quite possible, however, that the juxtaposition of these two developments was the result of design.

The Dies Committee has been accused of showing far greater vigor in exposing Communists and their fellow travelers than in denouncing our quasi-Fascist groups. It is questionable, however, that the disclosure at this time of an alleged plot by William Dudley Pelley to overthrow the Government in 1934 will serve as an effective answer to that charge. In the first place, the plot, if there was a plot, is now six years old and in the second place it almost looks as though the idea was to drown out the name of Pelley in hilarious laughter.

The committee's zeal in going after the Communists, however, bears the stamp of serious purpose. One notes that there have been no raids on the headquarters of Fascist organizations comparable to those on Red centers, no publication of lists of fellow travelers, no evidence as to where they obtain funds for disseminating doctrines quite as dangerous to democracy as those of the comrades.

The impression persists that Chairman Dies has two standards—one for the disciples of Moscow and another for the disciples of Berlin and Rome. And this is the more interesting because the committee's report did try to maintain some sort of balance in the issue of subversion from the left and from the right.

John A. Hobson

John A. Hobson, who died in London this week after an extremely productive lifetime of 81 years, was a man who left a real and lasting impression on the thinking of his times.

As an economist Hobson was in the nineteenth century tradition of Richard Cobden and John Bright. But he successfully avoided classification in any limited school of thought. He was a Liberal who had very serious doubts regarding the principle of laissez faire; a radical who while undoubtedly influenced by Marx was never a Marxian.

He dubbed himself an "economic heretic," but in time his heresies came to be regarded, if not as conventional, at least as not meriting the shocked surprise with which they were originally greeted. Thus it is now taken for granted that capitalism is passing through a period of crisis, a contention which appeared fantastic to Hobson's contemporaries when he predicted it at the end of the 1880's.

When Hobson began his study of economics that "dismal science" was still dominated by the mechanical and unrealistic concept of the "economic man," a wholly mythical creature who was supposed to react to economic stimuli the way Pavlov's dogs reacted to the sound of a bell. Hobson's approach was humanistic. He regarded economics not as "the science of wealth," nor even as a valid science at all, but more as a study of human behavior. Such an attitude was by no means as commonplace half a century ago as it has since become.

Hobson will perhaps best be remembered for his pioneer study of the dynamics of imperialism, in which his theory of the crisis stage in capitalism and his strong humanitarian feelings found perfect expression. A prolific writer—he was the author of 36 books and innumerable articles—he never wrote anything which can not be reread today with stimulus and interest.

What Bargaining Unit?

Three of the amendments to the National Labor Relations Act sponsored by the House Labor Committee are simple and constructive. One would allow employers to petition the NLRB for an election of collective bargaining representatives in cases of dispute among contending employe groups. Others would increase the membership of the board to five and prevent employer-employe contracts from being upset in less than a year through shifts in union affiliations.

The fourth amendment, sponsored by Mrs. Norton's committee, is extremely complicated. Whenever a majority of the employes in any craft should so request, the board would be required to recognize them as an appropriate collective bargaining unit. As C. I. O. spokesmen point out, this would permit the A. F. of L. to "carve out" small craft units from large industrial unions. It might have the effect of intensifying the hostility between these rival labor organizations instead of bringing them closer together.

As a matter of fact, the proposed amendment is very close to the policy followed by the NLRB before the appointment of Dr. William M. Leiserson to the board. When a craft union could show that it was an established entity the board permitted members of that craft to vote in a separate election. If a majority voted to bargain through the craft unit, it was given that right.

After Dr. Leiserson took part in the board's decisions a majority held that this so-called "globe" doctrine should not be controlling in cases where industrial unions had previously won exclusive bargaining rights. Dr. Leiserson particularly objected to the upsetting of employer-employe contracts to permit small craft groups to establish separate collective bargaining units. Under the Norton committee amendment, however, the board would be compelled to revert to that practice.

To write so rigid a provision into the law at a time when labor organization is undergoing many changes might prove to be particularly unwise. It is true that the present arrangement, in which the NLRB has broad discretion to determine the proper collective bargaining unit, is not satisfactory. But this weakness of the present law does not justify the enactment of a rigid formula that would tend to arrest the evolution of labor organizations.

The Smith Committee investigating the NLRB favors the Garrison amendment which would prevent the board from designating a collective bargaining unit in case of dispute between rival unions. This proposal is based on the sound theory that no governmental agency should undertake to prescribe collective bargaining units which organized labor must use. While this provision might be abused by selfish minority factions, it nevertheless has the virtue of leaving to labor itself the question of how it shall be organized.

Obviously this is a question that should be carefully weighed by the House after extensive debate. That body should be given a chance to decide, not only which of these proposed amendments is preferable, but also to what extent other proposals of the Smith Committee should be incorporated into the NLRB bill. In the circumstances the efforts of the Labor Committee to have its amendments considered under drastic limitations upon debate and without the right of amendment seem to be utterly inexcusable.

Dewey Wins Wisconsin

Returns from Wisconsin's primaries appear to be significant chiefly for the victory they give to Thomas E. Dewey over Senator Arthur Vandenberg. Some allowance should be made for the fact that Senator Vandenberg was not active in the campaign while Mr. Dewey made a strenuous bid for delegates to the Republican National Convention. Yet the fact remains that the young New York district attorney has achieved a sweeping victory.

The large vote for Mr. Dewey will doubtless give his supporters in other States increased determination. He now appears to be a formidable contender for the Republican Presidential nomination. But much water must yet run over the political dam before the G. O. P. assembles in convention to choose its standard bearer. When the candidates meet in final contest at Philadelphia the Wisconsin primary may or may not appear to have been an event of national significance.

On the Democratic side, new hope and disappointment appear to be mixed in strange combinations. Undoubtedly sponsors of the third-term movement hoped that the Roosevelt slates would make a better showing than they did. On the other hand, the 30 per cent of the vote won by Vice President Garner certainly does not show any burst of enthusiasm over his candidacy.

Some observers believe that both Postmaster General Farley and Federal Security Administrator McNutt lent considerable strength to the third-term delegates in the Democratic primary. When all the third-term opponents have had their say, however, they must still face the fact that an overwhelming majority of the Democrats in Wisconsin who went to the polls favor the renomination of the President. Certainly that will be sufficient to encourage continuation of the movement, unless the President voluntarily takes himself out of the race.

In Terms Of Human Life

It is becoming steadily more apparent that every test to which the governmental machinery of the District is put reveals a shocking inadequacy. A few weeks ago indignation was aroused by the exposure of conditions at Blue Plains. Those findings were added to disturbing data regarding the Children's Receiving Home, the National Training School for Girls, some of our public schools and various other municipal institutions.

Now the O street fire has brought to light an astounding neglect of basic precautions against tragedies of this sort. Building Inspector Oehmann has reported to a House subcommittee that important structural changes were made in the ill-fated White Court Apartments without the permission of District authorities. Six unauthorized apartments were added to the structure after the permit for remodeling had been granted, and other changes with a vital bearing upon fire hazards appear to have been made.

More important than this specific case, however, are the indications that Washington's building code is being systematically flouted. Col. Oehmann admits that thousands of Washington residents risk their lives nightly in "firetraps," some of them more hazardous than the White Court Apartments. Some building owners, he told the committee, make changes "and then let us find them out if we can." Even when such violations of the building code are prosecuted, he complained, convictions lead to small fines and the fire hazards remain uncorrected.

Behind this alarming picture of lax enforcement looms the fundamental fact that the District's present government is utterly inadequate to cope with the problems of a modern city. No doubt Col. Oehmann needs more building inspectors, as he reported to the investigating committee. But, more than that, the city needs a government with sufficient power to correct situations of this sort.

It would be absurd to blame Congress or the President for the O street fire. In all probability neither has any information as to the neglect of safety regulations in the Capital City. Yet the fact remains that they jointly hold all the power to correct conditions which every year cost the lives of many times the number of citizens who perished and were injured in this fire.

Congress cannot be expected to look after the details of safety regulations in the District. For that very reason it should assign the task to a local government strong enough to do the job. The prompt investigation of fire hazards here by Representative Schulte's committee is a constructive step. But no amount of investigation will relieve Congress of its responsibility for establishing a municipal authority competent to deal with these conditions.

It Still Moves

The world came to an end at precisely 3 o'clock in the afternoon of April 1, 1940. Of course it was not the world we live in. If it had been, you wouldn't be reading this. It was only a model of this vale of tears rigged up in the Fels Planetarium in Philadelphia and used to demonstrate what might conceivably happen if and when the universe goes berserk.

But, until it became evident that the announcement of the earth's imminent destruction was only a publicity stunt to call attention to a demonstration in the planetarium, newspaper offices and radio stations were flooded with frantic inquiries.

This incident is another illustration, if any more were needed, of the fact that the progress of science has made men not less credulous but more. The disposition to believe anything, no matter how fantastic or outrageous, has been strengthened by the circumstance that the unbelievable has so regularly occurred. And there is something singularly persuasive, as Orson Welles' radio adaptation of H. G. Wells' "War of the Worlds" demonstrated, about voices emanating from a radio cabinet.

The Millerites who, garbed in white robes and chanting hymns, waited on hillsides a century ago for the end of the world won many converts to their fatalistic creed without the aid of modern science. We wonder what would have happened to them and other sects with similar beliefs in the imminent destruction of our planet, if they had had a broadcasting station at their disposal.

"It is irony for us to sympathize with the Chinese and yet sell junk metal to Japan to be made into missiles to shoot them with," asserts an editor. That's right—scrap irony.

We're so far behind with our worrying it looks as if we'll have to spend the day after tomorrow worrying about yesterday.

Political Utterances

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Thomas E. Dewey in the vigorous prosecution of his candidacy for the Republican Presidential nomination, not only sticks to the role of the implacable prosecutor of criminals in his campaign utterances but reminds us very strongly of political utterances in the days of Andrew Jackson (whose opponents did not even leave his wife immune to their scurrilous attacks).

The passions engendered by the Civil War caused the "bloody shirt" to be waved even as late as the first Cleveland campaign of 1884. Toward the close of the last century, however, vitriolic abuse, mendacious generalities and baseless detraction disappeared from campaign oratory, in response to the universal cultural advance of the people.

But now comes Mr. Dewey with the charge that the Works Progress Administration constitutes "a calendar of unpunished crime," and that it is a story of men and women thrown on and off relief to meet the election needs of a power-hungry Administration," guilty of "broken covenants, disloyalty to the Constitution, abuse of power, intimidation, coercion, extortion and larceny, all committed against the underprivileged and helpless unemployed."

The charges brought by Mr. Dewey against this "power-hungry" Administration are considerably worse than the articles of impeachment upon which Andrew Johnson was tried and escaped conviction by one vote.

The financial, industrial and social legislation of the New Deal Administration has done more for humanity at large than can be found in any century since the beginning of the Christian era.

THOMAS H. R. CLARKE.

Wanderlust

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The wanderlust is calling, calling me across the lands by seaming rivers veined, among the hills flame-colored, deeply stained, and where the limpid lakes lay languidly—the wanderlust is calling, calling me. The wanderlust is calling, calling me to sunburnt deserts 'neath a cloudless sky, and where the mountains look from towers on high toward amber isles set in a turquoise sea—the wanderlust is calling, calling me away from iron gods and grinding mills, away from restless men and human ills to where horizons beckon luringly—the wanderlust is calling, calling me.

FREDERICK FARRELL.
Washington, April 1.

Police Force

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There would be no complaint of the work of our fine police if they were permitted to attend to matters of importance and not compelled to concentrate on handing out parking tickets.

Writing last month a story of Washington life for a prominent magazine, I inquired into the iron severity with which trifling violations of our myriad parking rules are punished by fine or imprisonment when the culprits are without influence or friends.

The police don't get part of the fine money; that common notion is unfounded, in fact. I did find, however, in the District ordinances that extra diligent officers may be allotted extra pay, and that insufficiently zealous officers may be dropped from the force. And the police must make their records at the expense of those of us who don't belong to the untouchables.

The easy and approved way is by tucking parking tickets under our wind-shield wipers. Not only approved, but enjoined; inquiring among the police, I was credibly informed that the officers on patrol are reprimanded when they don't dispose of their books of tickets; that the precincts are in competition, and that the captain is reprimanded by the inspector when his precinct falls behind in fines collected. And that one precinct—the one at which I inquired by proxy—collected $1,500 in fines over the last week-end.

"Assault On Home Rule"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Allow me to compliment you on your clear exposition of the facts concerning the anti-lynching bill in your editorial, "Assault On Home Rule." It is unbelievable that responsible men would fan fires to win political favor and set a dangerous precedent in making a law.

Fire Department Reorganization

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your leading editorial Tuesday, April 2, deserves another Pulitzer reward for its second paragraph. "It will be scant comfort to the injured victims and others who lost their property to know that a searching investigation into the circumstances surrounding the fire has been inaugurated. No amount of rigid inspection can wipe out this fire or repair the damage it has done. But the community has a vital interest in this inquiry. If District officials are awake to their responsibilities, this incident should lead to the protection of other apartment house dwellers who probably live in similar danger," is the meat of the whole editorial.

It brings to the attention of the citizens of this section of Washington that the Tansey report recommends the removal of Engine No. 1, the first engine due at the scene, from K street to four blocks east of that location and four blocks farther away from 2131 O street, where the tragedy occurred.

It also recommends the removal of other firehouses in this district, which will leave without protection that section of the city bounded on the south by the Potomac River, on the north by U street, on the west by Twenty-first street and on the east by Thirteenth street, which includes the White House.

The work of Engine No. 1 was heroic. They saved dozens of lives by their quick arrival at the fire and their work afterwards, which was continuous for 12 hours. They laid four lines of hose, an unprecedented number at any one fire in the District of Columbia. And the Tansey report recommends its removal.

Congress last week appropriated $28,220 to shuffle our highly efficient fire department, as requested by our city officials. Unfortunately, Mr. Hazen is ill, Mr. Allen is on his way out and the Engineer Commissioner is only a temporary member of the board, and Mr. Tansey is to return to the War College on September 1, 1940, for more schooling. The District residents, not knowing the situation, sit and take it, and some die.

Might I suggest, if a survey of our highly efficient fire department is wanted, that official Washington request some fire-fighting chiefs of large cities who are men of experience and deeply interested in fire department work to investigate, report and recommend to Congress any improvements that might be necessary, and not spend over $28,000 dollars of the citizens' money recommended by four employes of the District.

Sales Tax

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For months now the newspapers of the District have been filled with tax discussions centering on the question of what kind of tax should be levied here. The lads on the Hill who will eventually make the decision, it seems, are deadly afraid to enact a sales tax, which would be certain to settle most of the points of the present discussion.

Those opposing a sales tax want to broaden income taxes and increase taxes against real estate, so that certain groups, instead of the entire community, would make contribution to the cost of District upkeep. Because a man or woman has the ability to earn a sum within the income tax classification is no reason for him to pay the entire cost of District government, while the greater number below that classification share the same benefits at no cost.

There is no logical explanation for this fact, except the one throughout the country that the great bulk of voters who pay no income or real estate tax control the elections and for that reason alone the politicians refuse to make them bear their proper share of government. And that is the sole reason why a sales tax as proposed for the District is opposed in Congress. Look at the opposition locally to it—organized unions, etc.

A sales tax makes every person contribute his proper part to the cost of government and the wealthy, by reason of their additional purchasing power, pay substantially more than those less wealthy. That is the way it should be. In addition, those paying income and property taxes will continue to pay them, but the fact that those who secure the benefits of government for nothing now will have to pay a sales tax, will relieve a burden of excessive taxation now aimed at those paying income and property taxes.

Spiritualism

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was relieved to see in The Post of March 31 Mr. Denis Doyle's reply to my letter of the 22d in which he clarifies his position concerning the religion of spiritualism and mediumship.

Mr. Doyle in his letter states: "I still contend and shall continue to do so that the word spiritualism is an unfortunate misnomer, or, if Mr. Terry prefers it, a deplorable, inadequate and unsuitable description of what this great subject really represents."

I would like to say that Mr. Terry does not prefer such a definition of the term spiritualism, for quite the contrary I believe it to be the most appropriate, accurate and expressive word in the English language to clearly and concisely express the purpose and message of the religion of spiritualism.

The National Spiritualist Association, of which I am one of thousands of members, recognizes the terms spiritualism and spiritualist as ideal, for they are the opposite of materialism and materialist, therefore they completely symbolize the supreme message of spiritual truth, which the revelations and manifestations of the religion of spiritualism bring to humanity.

I entirely agree with Mr. Doyle where he says, "The spiritual powers of seership are more highly evolved than those of mediumship," for seership is the development of one's own spirit to where a conscious and intelligent contact with the spirit world can be established personally and individually, but I still contend that as far as substantial evidence for survival after death is concerned, mediumship transcends seership greatly in value.

The Post Impressionist

It Took Lester Ward Five Months . . .

"I am in Washington . . . I went at once to Cobb's, and found him well and very glad to see me. He advised me to make out another application and go to the War Department and see Mr. Dana there, if possible, in order to submit the application to him . . ."

Thus, in January, 1865, did Lester Ward, who was destined to become the first great American sociologist, begin his search for a Government job.

He visited his Congressman . . . even as you and I.

He went to see Mr. Dana and then a dozen other Mr. Danas in a dozen other departments; well-fortified with recommendations from his friends back home in Pennsylvania, from his county political leaders, from his Congressman.

Was it as tough to get a job then—back in 1865?

It wasn't too easy—even for a wounded veteran of the Civil War who was brilliant, resourceful and industrious.

Lester Ward was 25 when he came to Washington. In his carefully detailed diary he records the painful days of his young manhood in Bradford County, Pa., his slow, laborious self-education by candlelight, his dismal failure as a rural school teacher, his wounding in the war . . . But compared to his struggle for a Government job these early difficulties seem less trying.

Ward began his assault on the hard-hearted dispensers of Government pap on December 8, 1864, when he mailed his application to the War Department for a clerkship. Did he expect an immediate reply? Job? He didn't get it.

"Hon. E. M. Stanton, Sec. of War: . . . I made application for a clerkship . . . which is now on file in the War Department. After waiting more than a month without receiving any reply, supposing it lost or overlooked, I have come to the Capital to urge its acceptance. I renewed and submitted the application personally in the 18th inst. with testimonials inclosed . . . I am now in the city on expense and out of employment . . ."

Young Ward was informed at the War Department that "such things require time and a natural course. That discouraged me," he says, "and I began to look for some place to stay. I found a place to eat at 368 Eighth street, and a room at 313 Eighth street. Then I went to look for temporary employment at the Sanitary Commission, but I did not find any . . ."

How many modern young men, rebuffed by the current directors of personnel, have envisioned that some day when the whole breed of patronage purveyors would grovel before them . . . Division chiefs, Cabinet officers or what-not?

Lester Ward, who was, at 25, gradually flourishing through a morass of convention and prejudice toward a new conception of society, who in a few brief years was to write his "Dynamic Sociology," which had the unique distinction for an American book of being ordered burnt in Czarist Russia, was no exception. But he was a very discouraged young job-hunter on February 8, when, having withdrawn his application at the War Department in disgust, he sat down to write to the President of the United States.

"Sir: Having repeatedly sought your audience in vain, I take the liberty to address you this brief letter, inclosing an application to the Secretary of the Treasury, indorsed by two members of Congress, for a clerkship. The reason I have not let it be placed on file in the Treasury Department is that it would doubtless be there indefinitely, while I am here in great need of immediate employment . . . I need employment at once. If I cannot have a permanent I ask a temporary appointment that I may prove myself qualified. I am aware of the boldness of this step, but I cannot believe you deaf to the appeal of a young aspirant to wisdom and usefulness through just and honorable labor."

President Lincoln wasn't exactly deaf, but he didn't give the young aspirant to wisdom and youthfulness much encouragement. He referred the application to the Treasury Department.

Young Ward's hopes varied from day to day. On Sunday, February 19, he felt so encouraged that he celebrated by going to the Baptist church in the morning and the Presbyterian in the evening, he who was to be denounced by them soon as a heretic and rebel.

But a few days later "I talked with Mr. Blatchford. He told me the commission did not wish to hire me. I had told my girl to come, and what could I do? I was crazy."

The girl, who was his young wife, Lizzie Vought, arrived on March 12, and still no job. They found a room "on Seventh street, No. 427, care of Mrs. Payne. It costs us $15 a month."

Ward's thinning pocketbook made him desperate and he assaulted the Treasury officials day after day. On Wednesday, March 23, he finagled an interview with the Secretary himself. "He told me not to count on receiving the position, but he assured me that he would do all he could for me . . . I cannot take much hope from what he said. I set out immediately to look for another job."

A temporary job at "the hospital" kept the young couple from hunger through the rest of March. But it paid little, and all through the turbulent month of April, 1865, Ward kept up the search for a job that would keep them from falling apart.

The day before Lincoln was shot Ward received a summons to the Treasury. The tragedy that followed kept the department in confusion for weeks and it was almost a month later, after numerous interviews, and an all-day oral examination, that Lester Ward finally got his Government job.

Mobsters In Miami

AL CAPONE'S Miami home is on Palm Island, and the Miami City directory lists Dan'l Coughlin as caretaker at that address. Dan'l Coughlin is a brother-in-law of Capone and is business agent of the local Bartenders' and Waiters' Union of the American Federation of Labor. Like the Chicago Bartenders' Union, this local is a racket of the new Capone mob which has now muscled into labor with a capital L. There are thousands of bartenders and waiters in the Miamis during the winter, and Capone's brother-in-law and household guard, or caretaker, endeavors to collect an initiation fee of $12 each from them and dues at $2 a month.

In the old Army, bums who enlisted for the winter in order to hole up against want and deserted in May, were known as snow birds, and many of these waiters and bartenders may be so described, too. They pay their initiation fees and their $2 a month each for the months that they work there, then vanish. If and when they return they must be initiated again, and the waiters have been hearing that the initiation fee will be raised to $25 next year.

THE AREA is not well organized, for the sentiment of the community is anti-union, and Labor there is in desperate need of a decent organization. However, Danny Coughlin does all right, and Frank Nitti, the boss criminal or regent of the new Capone mob in Chicago, now risen to considerable power in the Miamis, is doing very well, too. Nitti was the operations officer, so to speak, of the old mob and went to prison for income tax evasion, but he is now the dominant force in Tropical Park, the horse yard on the outskirts of Miami, a fabulous political perquisite of metropolitan criminals. Nitti also deals in sparkling water, which is diligently shoved by the waiters and bartenders in the joints where Danny Coughlin has extended his racket under the authority of the American Federation of Labor.

The organizer of the Building Service Employes Union, a department of the Chicago labor mafia dominated by criminals with records, has been sojourning in Miami Beach for some time and has run into a jurisdictional question. This racket tentatively claims jurisdiction over bartenders and waiters, but Danny Coughlin will not give over. The dispute probably will be settled amicably, because, after all, both rackets are under the general supervision of the Capone mob, and it seems unthinkable that anyone should be permitted to intrude on the private union of Capone's brother-in-law and household guard.

The bartenders' union is strangely coy or modest about the distinction which it thus enjoys. A phone call to the headquarters revealed a certain demureness.

"Is Danny Coughlin your business agent?"

"What do you want to know for?"

"Call it curiosity."

At this point the voice of the union end uttered some remarks which, though appropriate to the headquarters of an underworld racket of the new Capone mob, would raise a question of taste if repeated in a home newspaper. In substance, the voice refused to say whether Capone's brother-in-law was or was not business agent of the bartenders' local. The speaker was Mr. Al Berlin, also of Chicago, also a business agent of the union, whose local citations include a fine of $25 and costs for slugging a Boy Scout in 1938. Mr. Berlin admitted under pressure that Mr. Coughlin still was a business agent of the union.

And further delving disclosed that Mr. Coughlin usually tries to compel the proprietor of a restaurant, hotel or joint to permit him to name the head waiter and head bartender, who, in turn, would have power to select the other waiters and bartenders. This would permit the head waiters and bartenders to sell these jobs and load the staffs with help from the underworld dives of Chicago and Cicero. Mr. Coughlin has met resistance from the proprietors.

IT IS OF INTEREST to note that although the rank-and-file workers in the hotel and restaurant trades must submit to fingerprinting and are subject to deportation if they have police records, criminals are not similarly policed. Criminals who come as sojourners or to establish rackets are supposed to register with the police, but Capone was excused and Nitti is not on the guest book, although he is, next to Capone, the most vicious criminal veteran of the hoodlum wars of Chicago. As to Capone, it was held that his failure to share with the Government the millions taken from the prostitution of hundreds of degraded women, from extortion and other rackets did not constitute moral turpitude. Nitti's vicious character is compensated by the fact that he resides in a chaste gem of Miami architecture and lists his racket as a business. He is a fellow citizen.

FRANK NITTI
Described by Mr. Pegler as the operations officer of the old Capone mob of Chicago. He is now in Miami where his thriving interests are said to include sparkling water and the Tropical Park track

Elmer And The Circus

THE CIRCUS is on the way again, and this department is afraid. It is filled with grave misgivings. It is apprehensive. It fears the modernistic trend will be continued and that there will be further attempts to make an elephant glamorous, give "oomph" to a camel and envelop the big tent as a whole in an atmosphere of silks, satins and sex.

For the last three or four years this influence has spread to a point where the customers have been coming home a little confused and declaring that they have just been to the "Barnum and Billy Rose Circus" or "The Forepaugh and Shubert Combined Shows."

"The Greatest Show on Earth" left the South last week and formally opens the circus season in Madison Square Garden in a few days. Not much has been said about its habiliments for 1940, but if the Broadway and Hollywood influence isn't checked this year there may be a revolt on the part of the cash customers.

"Old P. T. Barnum had the right idea about a circus," declared Elmer Twitchell, chairman of the National League to Preserve the Flavor of the Big Tent. "It should look like a circus, act like a circus and smell like a circus. Last year they even advertised that it would be air-conditioned and perfumed. I thought the elephants and camels acted very depressed about it all summer."

"The circus was really a circus when you could smell it a mile away. The smells made it. Air conditioning is all right in its place, but the circus should be left untouched by it," continued Elmer. "However, that's all done and over; what I'm afraid of is that the Follies' decorative influence will spread, especially in the opening pageant.

"The opening pageant has always made a hit with me, but especially so before George White, the late Flo Ziegfeld, Earl Carroll or any of those boys could touch it. I warmed up to the pageant when you could tell that Sir Galahad was just a bum, that Ben Hur was a hustler who needed a shave and that Cleopatra and her ladies were just a lot of faded women.

"For the last few years the idea has been to put an Errol Flynn on every horse and a Hedy Lamarr on every elephant. It softened up the whole show. I can stand for one of those Winter Garden ensembles and for those Hollywood super spectacles from the Arabian Nights, but I like my circus parades straight."

"I'm just hoping for the best," concluded Elmer, "but I fear the worst. One more yard of lace in that opening pageant, however, and I'm through!"

Elmer Twitchell says he is trying to arrange a fight in Madison Square Garden between Joe Louis and Mickey Mouse, and he feels confident it will strike the management and the fight public as a great battle.

Books And Things

By Lewis Gannett

The Sunless Mud

IF THE TEST of a novelist's work is his power to create a world and a folk all his own and indubitably alive, then William Faulkner is a powerful novelist. Yoknapatawpha County, Miss., lives if you read Faulkner's eleventh novel, "The Hamlet" (Random House, $2.50); the Snopeses and the Varners and Ratliff are as real as the unpainted, tumbledown houses in which they camp. But if the test of a novelist is the dimensions of his world then Faulkner is a small novelist indeed.

For 15 years now Faulkner has been digging in the sunless mud and rotting vegetation of that terror-haunted corner of a fictional Mississippi which he has made his own, where the sour land yields only yellowed corn and every man's heart is sour and curdled. He has made it live with such an intense, if morbid, life that his books are entitled to be judged as great literature is judged. Always he has seemed to be on the verge of transcending his own limitations. But "The Hamlet" adds nothing to his stature.

This is the story of the Snopeses' slow conquest of the Frenchman's Bend section. That had been the Varners' territory. A milder mannered man than old Will Varner, as Judge Benbow, of Jefferson, used to say, never bled a mule or stuffed a ballot box. He had a rare quality of active laziness and a dull shrewdness, and his ninth son, the only one left in that countryside, was Jody, who kept the Varner store, a black-coated, gold-collar-buttoned, prime bulging man, "who was not only unmarried but who emanated a quality of invincible and inviolable bachelordom as some people are said to breath out the odor of sanctity or spiritualty" And neither Will nor Jody was a match for the slow oozing of Ab and Flem Snopes and their pestiferous kinfolk into Yoknapatawpha County.

AB SNOPES HAD a vague reputation as a barn burner. Flem Snopes had no reputation at all, and he seemed to slide through life without talking. He was "a thick, squat, soft man of no establishable age between 20 and 30, with a broad, still face containing a tight seam of mouth stained slightly at the corners with tobacco and eyes the color of stagnant water and projecting from among the other features in startling and sudden paradox, a tiny predatory nose like the beak of a small hawk. It was as though the original nose had been left off by the original designer of a radically different school or by some viciously maniacal humorist or perhaps by one who had had only time to clap into the center of the face a frantic and desperate warning."

"The Hamlet," like most of Mr. Faulkner's books, is as much a sequence of short horror stories as a novel.

MR. DEWEY
While, generally speaking, Wisconsin primaries are an unreliable barometer of national politics, there is a good deal of significance, Mr. Sullivan thinks, in Mr. Dewey's decided victory over Senator Vandenberg. See the discussion below

Ways Of Wisconsin

By Mark Sullivan

Peculiarities Of Its Primaries

WISCONSIN as a barometer is subject to many qualifications. Of all the States, it is one of the last to be regarded as typical in its voting, as an index of the Nation. When it goes Democratic it usually does so more heavily than the country. Yet sometimes it goes Republican more heavily than the country. In few elections during the past 40 years has Wisconsin conformed to the pattern of the country as a whole. In fewer still has it been possible to deduce from the April primary in Wisconsin convincing light on the party nominations for President at the subsequent national conventions, or on the national election in November. Yet that is just what we are all trying to do this week.

For Wisconsin's political eccentricity, there are several reasons. One is that Wisconsin has a local third party, the Progressive, large enough to have carried the State in most State elections. Another reason is that Wisconsin has an "open" primary. That is, a Republican can vote in the Democratic primary and vice versa—with the Progressive a kind of "joker" in the pack, able to vote in either primary. (The Progressives, as a State party, do not name any candidate for President, and hence do not have a Presidential primary of their own.) In short, Wisconsin is a maverick State—with its "mavericksness" heavily weighted on the Progressive or radical side, and therefore likely to favor the shade of political thought symbolized by Mr. Roosevent.

FIRST, BECAUSE it is rather more simple and more dependable as an index, consider the outcome of the Republican primary. Mr. Dewey won over Senator Vandenberg rather heavily. That has meaning. Wisconsin is for many reasons a State in which Mr. Vandenberg should have been able to put his best foot forward. Mr. Vandenberg in the Senate was strong against the neutrality act, he was the outstanding symbol of the policy of isolation—and this policy is strong in Wisconsin, with its large population of German descent, and its memory of hardships to which Germans and pacifists were subjected in the Great War.

Further, Mr. Vandenberg is an outstanding opponent of Secretary Hull's trade pacts—and States like Wisconsin, abutting on the Canadian border, are supposed to be exceptionally antipact. Finally, Wisconsin is next-door neighbor to Mr. Vandenberg's Michigan. In many respects the two States are similar in racial makeup and industrial interests. In short, Wisconsin is a State in which Senator Vandenberg should have made an exceptionally good showing. That he was beaten rather heavily by Mr. Dewey will give the latter's supporters much satisfaction.

Would this Republican outcome have been different had there been more entrants, had Senator Taft and some of the other Republican aspirants been in the race? About this, it is impossible to say. In some future primaries we shall see how Mr. Dewey does when the field is larger.

On the Democratic side we see in Wisconsin the opening development of something we have never seen before—a President in office, serving his second term, entered in primaries for a third term. As to how this novel situation would work out, there has been much discussion. Apparently it turns out to be much the same as in the frequent case of a President serving his first term and seeking a second. Never since the direct primary came has it been possible to defeat a President in office seeking another nomination. (It was practically the same before the direct primary came, back to the Civil War.)

SO EASILY possible has it been for a President in office to get himself renominated that only rarely is serious attempt made to prevent him. The more conspicuous case was that of President Taft in 1912, when Theodore Roosevelt tried to prevent his renomination. That was the first Presidential year after the general introduction of direct primaries. That extremely pretentious attempt failed. Since then Presidents in office seeking another nomination have encountered no serious difficulty.

Apparently we are now about to learn that a President in office can be nominated for a third term almost as readily as for a second. This fact is a reason why a President serving a second term, if he is willing to give consideration to the long-range interest of the country, should think seriously before attempting a third term, or letting others make the attempt in his behalf. For if the rule works about a third nomination, there is no reason it should not work for a fourth. What Mr. Roosevelt is permitting to go on in his behalf is the beginning of a path which America would hesitate to take if it could see the end.

In the Wisconsin primary, with only Mr. Roosevelt and Vice President Garner entered, Mr. Roosevelt appears to have got about three votes out of four. That ratio, applied to the national convention, would be something over 800 out of a total of 1094 delegates. It would mean the nomination, of course. It would mean the nomination even if the old two-thirds rule were still in effect. Yet it would not be a unanimous nomination—unless all the anti-third-term delegates swallowed their convictions and made it unanimous. That is not likely to happen.

WE HAVE BEEN speaking of a third nomination, and the conclusion seems clear Mr. Roosevelt can get it if he wants it. But now consider the Wisconsin outcome in its bearing on a third term, which is a different thing. The one out of every four Democrats who voted against Mr. Roosevelt were voting against a third term on principle. While they cast their ballots for Mr. Garner, most of them must have done so less in the hope of nominating Mr. Garner than as an expression of opposition to a third term.

Of this 25 per cent of the Democrats who in the April primary voted against a third nomination, how many, in the November election, would vote against a third term? This is a question which Mr. Roosevelt and those promoting the third term movement must reflect upon with some apprehension.

The Liberal Landslide In Canada

Returns Obliterate Parliamentary Opposition

By Our Ottawa Correspondent

Ottawa.

THE RESULT of the general election held in Canada on March 26 was a smashing victory for the Liberal Party led by Premier Mackenzie King. Political experts expected the party to secure a fresh mandate by a comfortable majority but not to perform the remarkable feat of increasing slightly its majority in the last House of Commons, by far the largest in Canadian history.

The final results will not be determined until the votes of the troops on active service are allocated to the different districts, but they can affect only a few seats where the pluralities are narrow. The Liberals are at present assured of 183 seats out of 245, which means that they will have a majority of about 120 over any possible combination of parties.

The Liberals completely wiped out the small Conservative contingent of 5 from Quebec, capturing all this province's 65 seats, and in Ontario, a traditionally Conservative province, where they were prepared to lose about 20 seats they actually gained 1 on the balance; they suffered trivial losses in Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Prince Edward Island. Their only real setbacks were in New Brunswick, where the Conservatives made four gains, and in Saskatchewan, where the C. C. F. Party won a few seats, but they got considerable compensation for these losses in Alberta, where they took seats from the New Democracy, whose leader, Mr. W. D. Herridge, former Canadian Minister at Washington, was badly defeated in a three-cornered contest.

The Conservative Party, which had been disguised as the National Government Party for the election, will emerge with its feeble representation of 40 reduced by 1, the C. C. F. Party, with 8 members, has increased its strength by 1 and the New Democracy, which was known in the last House as the Social Credit Party, will be only 8 strong as compared with 17.

NOW THERE WAS widespread agreement with the verdict of the Ottawa Citizen that the late House of Commons was the most subservient and least efficient in Canadian history and this condition was due largely to its lopsided alignment with a huge unwieldy ministerial majority faced by an opposition just one third as strong in numbers but split into three factions which could rarely agree upon any issue. The opposition was only occasionally capable of sustaining a prolonged debate.

The government got its own way too easily. It became contemptuous of criticism. It was confidently hoped that the election would produce a marked invigoration of the opposition. But the reverse is the case, and the King ministry will be in a more dominant position in the new Parliament than in the last.

NOT ONLY has Dr. Manion, the Conservative leader, been defeated in his own home town but Messrs. Stevens, Cahan, Stewart and White, his three most experienced colleagues, have also bitten the dust, and only two Conservatives of front-bench rank survive. Few of the promising recruits which the party had brought out as candidates have been elected. The already parlous plight of the Conservative Party has been seriously aggravated by the election, and its whole future is now dark and uncertain.

There is a disposition among many Conservatives to make a scapegoat of Dr. Manion and to insist that in view of humiliating results of his debut as leader in a general election campaign he must not try to retain the party leadership, and there is some excuse for fastening upon him a large measure of responsibility for the disaster. At the time of his selection many Conservatives had grave misgivings about it, arguing that an Irish Catholic was a very unsuitable leader for a party, whose support was predominantly Protestant. The hopes cherished that his religion would make a powerful appeal in Quebec, the terrain heretofore most unfavorable to the Conservative Party were illusory.

DR. R. J. MANION
His winning Irish ways did not win him many votes

There is inside the Catholic Church in Canada a long-standing feud about educational and other matters between the French and Irish Catholics, and a member of one group could not count upon cordial support from the other. The event proves that these fears were fully justified, for not only did Dr. Manion fail to attract much support from the French Canadians but analysis of the results in rural seats in Ontario, where the Orange Order has a large membership, shows that scores of Conservative Protestants could not bring themselves to vote for a Catholic. These either voted Liberal or stayed at home.

In most Canadian elections the manufacturers have been the stanchest supporters of the Conservative Party. But on this occasion the tariff was not an issue and many industrialists, who disliked the Liberal tariff policy, had developed very friendly feelings for the King ministry as the result of profitable war contracts they had received from Ottawa. They were not disposed to quarrel with it.

When Dr. Manion proceeded blithely to discard for the exigency of the election the historic name and traditions of conservatism and christen his followers the National Government Party, the industrial interests felt freed from any obligation to support him, as did other Conservatives who objected to the change of name. Again the radical nature of some of Dr. Manion's pronouncements had antagonized many financiers and businessmen. It was their discontent with him, reflected in the chill neutrality of the two great Conservative papers of Montreal, the Gazette and the Star, which enabled the Liberals to capture three seats in Montreal hitherto rock-ribbed Conservative strongholds.

SUCH DEFECTIONS were serious enough to make a victory for Dr. Manion unthinkable, but he contributed materially to his own downfall by his conduct of the campaign. Admittedly he did not spare himself and worked tirelessly at speeches and making personal contact with as many voters as possible. His pleasant personality insured him friendly receptions everywhere. But he alienated hundreds of voters who were prepared to be sympathetic to him by his constant disposition to besmear his opponents with violent personal abuse.

He was much too fond of telling folksy stories and indulging in cheap witticisms on the platform and did not manage to convey the impression that he had any adequate grasp of Canada's war and domestic problems. He had considerable material for the effective indictment of the ministry, but he did not handle it well and he did not convince the voters that he and his associates could supply a more efficient and honest administration, or that his national ministry project was anything more than a temporary facade which had no chance of support from other parties.

THE CONSERVATIVE Montreal Gazette, which is not friendly to him, declares that he has once more "demonstrated his uncanny ability to outguess and outgeneral his political opponents," and other hostile papers pay similar tributes. Curiously enough, his own majority in the Prince Albert division of Saskatchewan was severely cut. But all his ministers were returned, although two of them only scraped home with minority votes.

There may be some reorganization of the cabinet in the near future as at least one of its members is anxious to retire, and it is understood that Mr. King plans to use his authority given by Parliament to create a ministry of supply which would assume the functions of the present war supply board and enlarge them. Nobody need envy the King ministry the problems and responsibilities which it has to face, and they are likely to multiply as the months roll by.

Massachusetts Avenue Bridge Project, Present and Future

A photographer, an artist and engineers of the District Highway Department and National Capital Parks Office pooled their efforts to produce this present-future depiction of the Massachusetts Avenue Bridge project, now under way. Today a narrow 22-foot roadway passes, in dangerous bottleneck fashion, through a tunnel which originally was built to span Rock Creek only. Since the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway was completed and opened to traffic several years ago, this point has been a peril spot for motorists, walkers and horseback riders. All this will be changed. The embankment bridge, shown in photograph, is to be replaced by a concrete span faced with rubble stone masonry. A third of a billion pounds of earth will be removed. Instead of a single 22-foot roadway, as at present, two 24-foot roads will pass beneath the bridge, one for northbound and the other for southbound traffic. Separating them will be a center parking five feet wide at its broadest point. A bridle path and a foot trail also will be built. The highway's present bottleneck will become a graceful curve, signaling an end to the series of accidents which have occurred here. The improvement also will do away with the detour nuisance when Rock Creek overflows its banks because precautions have been taken against the road's being flooded at this point. Width of the new span will be 150 feet, twice as great as the present one. Construction of the bridge itself will begin as soon as the temporary detour trestle is ready for use, which is expected to be in about 10 days. The permanent span is scheduled to be completed next January. Potts & Callahan, of Baltimore, holds a $477,000 contract for the construction, which is being supervised by the District division of bridges. Roadway changes will be made by the office of National Capital Parks

Take Notice— Next time a U. S. park policeman yells to pull over, maybe, just maybe, you can turn his gushing into blushing by saying something like, "My what a snappy uniform you're wearing." Here's Officer B. J. Beckman modeling both the new outfit, just adopted, and the old. Mannequin Beckman looks grim, sort of, as though he might be anticipating kidding by his fellow cops as he poses in the new whipcord number, a year 'round uniform distinguished from the old winter uniform chiefly by its longer coat, pleated breast pockets and slightly lighter weight

Hitler Opposed Bund in U. S., Says Attache

Forbade American Germans to Join, College Group Told

Baron U. E. von Gienanth, Second Secretary of the German Embassy, told a University of Maryland audience of 300 persons last night that Hitler had forbade American Germans to join the bund.

Denying flatly the bund had any official sanction, Baron von Gienanth said, in referring to Fritz Kuhn's visit to the Fuehrer several years ago:

"If Hitler had known what a row Kuhn was going to start, he wouldn't even have seen him."

The embassy secretary, who holds the rank of captain in Hitler's personal troops, the Black Elite Guard, also denied Nazi persecution of churches.

Dr. Reuben Steinmeyer, of the university's political science department, asked the Baron how Germany expected to progress on a pro-Russian basis after the government's former hostility toward the U. S. S. R.

Baron von Gienanth replied that Germany was opposed only to the international aspect of Communism. He added:

"I believe that Stalin is probably thinking more about a national program than about international Communism."

Referring to Hitler's so-called "broken promise" in marching into Czecho-Slovakia six months after the Munich pact, Baron von Gienanth said it was necessitated primarily by the Czech government's agreement to permit Russian planes to land in its territory.

"At that time our attitude toward Russia was still hostile," he added.

Baron von Gienanth was roundly applauded at the conclusion of his talk and responded with a stiff Nazi salute.

Dr. Steinmeyer announced that the International Relations Club, which sponsored the meeting, would be host next month to Capt. Joseph Gainard, of the City of Flint.

Miss Merchant To Get $15,000 From Bull Estate

Under a compromise agreement reached in Orphan's Court at Rockville, Md., yesterday, Berenice Merchant, 19-year-old Kensington, Md., girl and Washington debutante, will receive $15,000 instead of $10,000 from the estate of her foster father, Col. Llewellyn Bull, of Clarke County, Va.

Miss Merchant had instituted proceedings in Clarke County Circuit Court to have the will set aside on the ground her foster father was mentally incompetent at the time the instrument was executed.

Under yesterday's agreement, Miss Merchant possibly may inherit another $10,000 if a codicil to Col. Bull's second wife's will is admitted to probate in New York City, where she died last fall, several months before her husband.

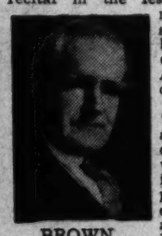
The disputed codicil revokes a former will and leaves Mrs. Bull's entire estate to Col. Bull.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

D. C. Chapter American Guild of Organists presents Katherine Fowler and E. William Brackett in recital Wednesday night in the Washington Chapel of Latter-Day Saints. Program of compositions by Bach, Franck and Widor.

Johann Sebastian Bach was the composer who received most attention last evening at the third recital in the festival of organ music being presented this week by the local chapter of the American Guild of Organists. Two of his preludes and fugues and five of his chorale-preludes were included in the program played by Katherine Fowler and E. William Brackett, organist of St. John's Church, Georgetown. What one heard was the organ music of Bach as it was probably registered in his time, and there was an opportunity to compare the original with the transcriptions for piano and for orchestra by means of which it has been expanded and metamorphosed.



BROWN

Miss Fowler opened the program with the A minor prelude and fugue which had the inevitability of a mathematical equation. It is in works of this strictly logical character that the fundamental relation between music and mathematics can be most readily perceived. From the first statement to the last deduction each step leads to the final "quod erat demonstrandum."

Of the chorale-preludes Miss Fowler chose five: "I Cry to Thee, Lord Jesus Christ," quiet as a prayer in the heart; the positive and almost dogmatic "Lord Christ, the Only Son of God;" the genial and optimistic "A Saving Health to Us Is Brought;" the meditative "My Heart Is Filled With Longing" and the confident "In Thee Is Joy." These preludes were composed for church use preceding the chorale, to be sung by the congregation, and would now be called meditations of improvisations on a hymn.

Mr. Brackett played the brilliant and sonorous "Military" prelude" and fugue in G major, ending the Bach contributions of the evening. It was he, who contrasted the organ style of Bach with the sincere mysticism of Cesar Franck and the dramatic manner of Charles Marie Jean Albert Widor. He gave an excellent reading of Franck's noble Finale in B flat and followed that with two movements from Widor's sixth symphony.

It is to Widor, who died in 1937, that we owe the adaptation of the word symphony to large organ works of several movements. A man of many activities, he was organist at the Church of St. Sulpice, teacher of composition at the Paris Conservatoire, and composer of orchestral symphonies, concertos, ballets, operas and chamber music. In his organ symphonies one can see traces of his theatrical interests, and in the two movements heard last night were echoes of Meyerbeer and Gounod.

Authors Seek Direct Action On Labor Bill

By the United Press

The House Labor Committee yesterday voted to use all forms of parliamentary strategy in an attempt to secure direct floor consideration of its four Wagner Act amendments without sending them through the anti-Labor Board Rules Committee.

The move, requiring suspension of House Rules, is designed not only to circumvent the Rules group but to head off 17 drastic amendments proposed by the Smith NLRB investigating committee and insure that the act will be retained in a form acceptable to President Roosevelt.

The changes approved by the Labor Committee would:

Increase the Board's membership from three to five.

Compel the Board to recognize a craft union—most of which are A. F. of L. affiliates—for bargaining purposes if a majority of the craft workers involved so choose.

Permit employers caught in the middle of dispute between rival unions, to petition the board for an election.

Make bargaining certifications effective for a full year, thereby assuring employers that they will deal with the same union at least 12 months.

Green Praises Proposals

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday called the four amendments "clear, straightforward and constructive."

Green said the A. F. L. firmly believes that the four changes "will provide a cure for maladministration of the Wagner Act from which the entire Nation has suffered." In no way, he added, do they weaken or impair the fundamental principles of the Act and "we are, therefore, calling upon our affiliated organizations to register their support."

Representative Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, chairman of the Labor Committee, will attempt to carry out the committee's mandate. Opposing her will be Chairman Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, of the investigating group; Representative Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan; Representative Eugene Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, and others.

People from All Over the U.S.A. Return Home With Vivid Memories of This Super-Smooth Dry Beer-y Beer!

Good beer is a rare treat. And when someone makes an unusually fine beer, its fame soon spreads. Cities have become famous for their beer. Before the war, Pilsen was largely known the world over for its Pilsener Beer!

Today Maryland is becoming famous for its "special dry lager"... the beer that has been ranked ahead of world-famous European beers! This beer is called Gunther's. You know that name backwards. You see people drinking it everywhere. But do you know how good it is? Do you know how much lighter and drier and more satisfying it is than other domestic beers?

Drink this delightfully dry beer-y beer for a week or two. Then you'll never go back to the sweet-type beers. In fact, living right here, so close to the Brewery, you are able to get this superlative beer for only ten cents.

If you lived in Milwaukee or St. Louis or in some distant city, you'd have to pay a pretty premium to drink Gunther's.

Gunther's has actually had requests from places as far away as Hawaii. They're willing to pay fancy prices to get it out there.

So try your own Gunther's today! And learn why its fame is spreading!

Conscientious Parents Question Propriety of College Girls Taking Young Sisters on Unchaperoned Trip

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a college senior and my sister is a high school senior. We are making tentative plans for a short trip to New York City in June, with two other girls (one of her classmates and one of mine). Both these girls live in distant cities and have never been in New York, while my sister and I are fairly well acquainted with the city. Our parents have met their parents and these girls have been close friends of ours for several years.

We had thought to meet in Washington and go by train to New York, take rooms in a good medium-priced hotel near the station, see the usual sights, take in one of the Broadway shows and "do" the World's Fair as well as our time and money will allow. None of us drink and there will be no men concerned during any part of the visit.

My parents trust all of us implicitly and have no doubts about our behavior under any circumstances. But they say that people would think it not quite proper for four young girls to go off unchaperoned on such a trip, staying in a hotel overnight. They claim that from the purely conventional standpoint, two college seniors are not acceptable chaperons for two high school girls. While they have no fears for our actual well being, they oppose the trip for conventional reasons.

We have offered to stay in a women's hotel—which would be rather inconveniently located and also a drain on our purses—but still they are not quite convinced of the propriety of the undertaking. There is no older person available to accompany us. Had there been, we would gladly have accepted anyone whom Mother or Dad designated as a suitable chaperon.

They know that I am writing to you, Miss Haworth, and while your answer, if favorable to our plan, may not drastically alter their opinion, still they might reconsider and let us go, if you think that our staying at a women's hotel would put a more conventional and respectable aspect on the trip. Sincerely yours,

COLLEGE GIRL.

Madame Grundy Herself Could Find No Fault

DEAR C. G.: It is pleasant, indeed, to learn of the remarkably harmonious spirit of cooperation which exists between the younger and older generations in your household, and your parents' respect for the proprieties is indicative of good common sense. However, it is my belief that no one (not even Madame Grundy herself) could read any impropriety into your plan for a foursome holiday in New York City, unchaperoned—particularly if you put up at a woman's hotel while there.

The fact that you and your classmate would have younger sisters under your respective wings should be sufficient proof, to the most skeptical mind, that you would exercise the utmost prudence in your comings-and-goings. And a friend of mine, who is a globe-trotter and sometime Manhattan dweller, tells me that either the Allerton House, near Grand Central Station, or the American Women's Association, located on West Fifty-seventh street, are women's hotels which would afford you convenient and "proper" headquarters at modest rates. Or, for more detailed suggestions, you may inquire of the Y. W. C. A. central offices at 600 Lexington avenue. M. H.

How Seat Dinner Guests When Hostess Is Widow?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been a widow for several years, and during this time I have done little entertaining. Now I find my social obligations piling up and as most of my friends are married couples I would like to include husbands and wives when I do entertain.

I am expecting a house guest shortly and would like to give a dinner party for her. My problem is: What seating arrangements to make? Since there will be no host, would the guest of honor sit opposite the hostess? Or should one of the men guests have that place? Also, since the dinner will, of necessity, be given at a hotel, should I order the dinner in advance, or should each guest select from the menu? WIDOW.

Emily Post Suggests Seating and Service Plan

DEAR WIDOW: On page 206 of Emily Post's 1935 edition of "Etiquette," you will find a suggested "seating and service" plan for a dinner of eight persons where there is no host. The hostess is seated at the head of the table. At her right is the "first gentleman" of the company, and at his right is seated the "lady of most importance" (i. e., your house guest, for whom the dinner is given). At the hostess' left is seated the "second gentleman," with a woman at his left. A woman guest is seated at the foot of the table, with a man at her right and left.

This plan presupposes, of course, that there will be an equal number of men and women in the dinner company. And since you will be inviting married couples, you would need a couple of extra men to fill in this formal arrangement. But if your dinner list does not include extra men, no doubt you can work out a satisfactory, but more informal, substitute seating arrangement, using Mrs. Post's plan as a guide.

When giving a dinner in a public dining room it is best if the hostess orders the menu in advance, just as she would if the dinner were being prepared in her kitchen and served at her own table. In this way, all emphasis is upon hospitality and sociability during the dinner hour, since the check for food and service can be settled ahead of time. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Women's Page.

Plant Flowers In a Terrarium

GAY terrariums! Bright fairy-like scenes of greenery and flowers. And you can so easily make delightful glass gardens for any spot, sunny or sunless.

Use a clear glass container—a fish bowl, a glass teapot or a fruit jar. So your terrarium will present a cherry face to the world, line the lower part with moss, the green side next to the glass. Now fill in with soil (fiber and rotted leaf mold are also good) and cover the soil, too, with moss, as our diagram shows. To put in plants, poke holes in the moss.

If you moisten soil well before planting and put cover on immediately afterward, your terrarium will not need watering. But, if the cover is removed frequently or kept tilted, give a spoonful of water now and then.

What to plant in a terrarium that gets full sun? Coleus with leaves of green and yellow, the lantana for orange bloom, the croton with leaves interestingly mottled.

For a spot that gets little sun, plant wandering Jew, delicate maidenhair fern, the bright little begonia for rosy blossoms. And where there's no sun—moss, ferns, tiny evergreens will thrive.

Do you like to experiment? Fun to plant a quart of woodland soil in your glass garden, watch tiny unfamiliar plants appear. Fascinating, too, are cacti with their odd-shaped leaves.

And your house plants—how to keep them thriving during spring and summer? Our 40-page booklet, "Success With House Plants and Flowers," describes all-year care for many lovely foliage and flowering plants, tells how to grow bulbs, ferns, vines.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "Success With House Plants and Flowers," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Ninteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Statuesque Pebble Melton poses here against the French doors of a suite at the Shoreham Hotel overlooking budding Rock Creek Park. It might well be her own boudoir for she has just completed her toilette for this highly provocative negligee. The gown, with its flowing sleeves and scalloped waistband, is one of an exclusive group featured at a recent fashion showing stressing corresponding gowns and cosmetics. Pebble wears blonde telecast makeup as a sparkling accent to her at-home gown done in two shades of sky blue chiffon. This same gown was modeled in a vigorous combination of white and black chiffon, the mannequin wearing dark brunette telecast makeup, just as dramatic as the name implies. The youthful upbrushed coiffure on the model above, with its large cluster of flower buds, also contributes to the springlike effect

A Woman's New York

New York, April 3.

I OFTEN wonder what the carrot thinks of itself these days. Does its old hat still fit? Once it was the lowliest of vegetables, practically shunned as mere rabbit food. My old man, Hall, cannot so much as taste carrot today, having been subjected to for some years as part of the daily blue-plate special when he was a pauperized newspaperman.

ALICE HUGHES

But today the bunny food seems to lord it over all known vegetables, as it seems to be practically bursting with all the essential vitamins from Alpha to Omega. People poke mugs of carrot-juice at us, we get it pushed toward us in all forms of grub, and Gayelord Hauser, Garbo's great and good friend, has practically founded a health and beauty cult on the once despised legume. And now comes Dr. Erno Laszlo, a Budapest beautician, to further boost the proud carrot and extend the hand of fellowship to another humble fruit, the tasteless turnip.

Doc Laszlo is the latest to appear in our arena with a regimen for health, beauty and one of those shapes that Hollywood buys in carload lots. Here are some of his recipes for the Good Life. Do your shopping on foot. For five minutes each morning dance to the radio or just run around the room. If Hall catches me at this, he'll have a stroke. Don't starve yourself. Brush the hair frantically and often. Grate two turnips, add three tablespoons of melted butter, apply pdste to face and wash off after a couple of minutes. Then he gives the modest cucumber a hand, too, by recommending its juice as a wash for oily skin.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—We have been peering enjoyably at young Ingrid Bergman, the Swedish beauty first seen on our screens in "Intermezzo," with Uncle Leslie Howard. She's seen in Molnar's "Liliom," opposite Burgess Meredith. A beauteous being, she is a fine actress, showing well the thorough training that young European troupers get. But I don't blame her if she doesn't think much of our town manners. I hear that a rejected autograph lizard actually kicked her as she hurried out of the stage door. That, friends, calls for a slight case of hanging.

School kids certainly have fun these days. "A Flying Geography Class," consisting of 18 lovely girls from Frances Shiner Junior College of Chicago, flew in the other morning, shepherded by their prex, Dr. Alvin Bros. Then think of the wondrous junkets made by the girls of that college in Columbia, Mizzoo. Yep, sisters, we were born just a few years too soon.

The town is interested in the report that Henry Ford 2d, grandson of the flivver king, is being instructed in the Roman Catholic faith by Msgr. Fulton Sheen, who guided the late Heywood Broun into what Kipling's Mulvaney called "The Ould Church." Young Ford, now at Yale, is to marry Anne McDonnell, a Fifth avenue girl. Henry says he hasn't yet gone far enough with the monsignor to be sure of his ultimate destiny in religion.

Hawaiian Food Featured at Congressional Club

THE HAWAIIAN "luau" is a feast in honor of many occasions—births, wedding and anniversaries. Today at the Woman's Congressional Club Hawaiian Day will be celebrated. Although the romantic Hawaiian Islands are 2,000 miles away, Mrs. Samuel W. King, wife of the delegate from Hawaii, will impart to the gathering a bit of their delightful customs and foods.

From the time one drops the admission ticket into a 150-year-old calabash bowl, hears Representative King tell of Hawaiian life and industry, sees Elizabeth Henney give authentic Hawaiian dances that she learned when she lived in Honolulu, until the refreshments made from native foods are served, there will be a Hawaiian aura prevalent.

Orange sherbet in Hawaiian pineapple juice, cookies, and flavorsome macadamia nuts, one of the taste sensations of the year, are to be a part of the refreshments. Macadamia nuts made the news when the Duke of Windsor purchased a macadamia plantation. Hawaii is quite proud of the macadamia industry and hopes to make it the third industry of the Islands in time.

Perhaps, the thought of orange sherbet in pineapple juice is one that many will want to serve in the home. If you are looking for a delicious food item rife with vitamins and all things nice follow the recipe given here.

Orange Sherbet

Boil 2 cups sugar and 3 cups water for 10 minutes. Cool, add 2 cups orange juice, ½-cup lemon juice and 2 egg whites stiffly beaten. Freeze to a mush. Serve in pineapple juice or any other combination of fruit juices desired. Be sure to serve the sherbet in your prettiest punch or beverage glasses as this is a food deserving of the finest consideration.

New Lamp Shades Brighten Dreary End-of-Season Rooms

By Elizabeth McRae Boykin

LAMP shades do for a room what sheer white collar and cuffs do for an end-of-winter suit. So, if your refurbishing budget will permit nothing more revolutionary than new lamp shades, don't feel sorry for yourself. We've seen many a room pulled up out of the decorative dumps by lamp shades of distinction. Consider what some of these new shade fashions could do for your home.

Fawn and beige are important colors; in fact, they're the only serious rivals to off-white. There is some pale gold to be seen, and occasionally a flame tone.

Silk Shade Leading Type

The stretched silk shade is the leading type for the formal room with variation achieved by overscale trimming. You'll find padded welting of self silk as popular finish. Some will have wide ruchings and bias treatments so intricate that they will make the shades themselves look like Easter bonnets perched on fancy hat stands. Most of the time these trimmings are of self tone but sometimes they are contrasting both in fabric and color—velvet, plaids, crystal beads.

Metallic paper covering for parchment shades, especially gold and silver tea box papers, are still smart looking. Very shiny metal paper in emerald, ruby, amethyst are high fashions. The tole types of parchment shades in dark colors such as brown with a classic gold laurel wreath are going to be stressed. Striped paper shades, in horizontal direction, can lend a crisp smartness to a room. The marbleized papers will also be used increasingly for lamp shades.

Big Lamps Are Vogue

Lamps continue to be big in scale. Almost no small ones are to be seen in important rooms. And few little prints or maps are used for shade designs. There is some inclination toward a longer narrower shape in shades. Not so many petticoat flounce shades are to be seen but there's a trend toward curving bonnet shapes, which had better be kept in check so they won't go too far.

Faces Need a Pick-Me-Up in Spring To Banish Tired Look, Relieve Strain

'Upsy-Daisy' Exercise Aids Circulation Of Face; Relaxing Program Necessary

By Ida Jean Kain

EVERY WOMAN has days when she looks older than necessary and days when she looks surprisingly young. But in the spring—perhaps it's the contrast of the new bonnets—faces seem to be in need of a general pick-me-up.

A facial and a change of cosmetics will afford a temporary lift. But to completely banish that tired, old look, you need a thorough-going campaign: a little practiced relaxation, a tonic in the form of fruits and vegetables, and exercise, particularly exercise in the upsy-daisy position which sends a fresh flow of blood into the tissues of the face and throat.

Strain causes most wrinkles, and if we could only relax as we should we could almost do away with them. When you hurry, try not to hurry with your face. Keep calm inside as you make quick movements so that the hurrying won't leave its mark in crow's-feet.

Train Self to Relax

You can train yourself to relax and ease the pressure and its imprint. The best plan is to set aside a definite time each day for practice in doing nothing. Lie down and let go with mind and muscles. Begin with the toes and try to relax each segment of your body separately. You can train yourself to relax beautifully.

Fruits, green vegetables and milk constitute as good a spring-tonic as the old sulphur and molasses mixture and are much more palatable. Make it a rule to have daily: Six pieces of fruit, two cooked vegetables, two raw vegetables, three glasses of milk.

Now for your upsy-daisy exercises! The idea is to exercise with your feet higher than your head so that the blood flow is reversed. The foot elevation should be from 12 to 14 inches. A Fifth avenue beauty salon recommends elevating the foot of the bed with wooden blocks and not only exercising but resting in that position!

If you have a small bed, you can prop the foot of it up on your dressing table bench or an exercise bench can be improvised with the ironing board. Place one end of the ironing board on the seat of a low chair or stool and let the other end rest on the floor. Lie with the head down, heels up. Hook the heels over the end of the board so that you cannot slide down on the floor when exercising.

Flex Knees

Best exercises for this position are those which streamline the midsection and also freshen the face. Try this one: Lie on the back on the board, hands holding on to the sides. Raise alternate legs straight up in the air to right angles, five counts for each leg. After that, flex alternate knees and raise to chest, five counts each leg.

A third exercise which may be performed in this position is the following: Lie on the right side with the legs straight up on the board. Raise the left leg up from the hip as high in the air as possible, hold for a second, and return to position. Continue for ten counts, rest, and change sides.

A boon to facial and throat tissues is the upsy-daisy position in exercise, in which the feet are placed higher than the head. As shown above by Joan Valerie, screen starlet, a chair or stool does the trick

If you experiment, you will find any number of slimming exercises which can be performed in this position. Why not double up and have your exercise and a facial at the same time?

Old Faithfuls Make New Dish

Here's a new dish that combines two old faithfuls and produces a brand-new flavor: Put about two-thirds of a cup of cubed spiced beets into your regular spinach ring. Bake as usual, unmould and then surround it with creamed asparagus, hard-cooked eggs or mushrooms. Use all three, if you're in a generous mood. Your palate will welcome them.

You can get nearly the same flavor by using plain cooked beets with three tablespoons chopped sweet pickles and a tablespoon of lemon juice. Take your choice.

Shadow Boxes Back in Vogue

After having been forgotten since grandmother's day, shadow boxes have sprung into a new vogue. To be hung in bedrooms, game rooms, children's rooms, any room in the house that needs keying up with color and fun, they take hilarious gay nineties pottery figures for their subjects—but they have more than a touch of the modern about their colors and frames.

A shadow box is really a box within a box behind glass and within a frame. Colorful little figurines are set against backgrounds of cutouts against real wallpaper, or soft blue paper to look like the sky. Mats between the inner and outer box are of fabric, sometimes old fashioned black velvet, sometimes modern bold stripes.

New Deodorant Checks Excess Perspiration

It takes more than a slick hair-do, expertly manicured nails and an immaculate wardrobe to pass the test of impeccable grooming. Claims to good grooming must be backed up by banishing the slightest suspicion of perspiration odors. And with the approach of hot weather, the problem of keeping ever dainty becomes more and more acute.

There are many ways and means of ridding the body of perspiration odors. Many products are on the market for that purpose. But none is more effective than a new preparation, long famous in Paris, that is being introduced at a store here. It comes in the form of a sparkling perfumed cologne, with a fragrance that blends with your favorite perfume or toilet water, but it is definitely a deordorant and a checker of excess prespiration. Put up in a two-ounce dressing table size bottle, it has as its companion a handy purse size. You use it as a cologne, splashing it on after the bath, concentrating on parts of the body that are most susceptible to excessive perspiration. It neutralizes and subdues the perspiration and does not injure the fabric of the clothes.

Retaining its fragrance for hours, this new type of deodorant comes in twelve scents ranging from apple blossom, clean smelling heather and light flower odors for women to balsam, fern, tumble weed and piney scents for men.

Thyroid, Pituitary Extracts Help Some Acne Victims

One of the torturing things about adolescence occurs to that unhappy minority which suffers from pimples or acne. While this may be a joke to other people, it is not only serious but tragic to the young victim.

It is no comfort to him to tell him that the condition will wear off; that when he gets to be 25 or 30 years old, he will look like everybody else. He realizes in his heart that it is his birthright to have a peaches and cream complexion, and the sight of crops of ugly pimples engenders a feeling of deep resentment against the powers of the universe. It interferes with his appearance, his dignity and his lovemaking, which are the principal preoccupations of the youth, male and female, from the age of 13 to 18.

Inasmuch as at this period of life all the endocrine glands are in a lather of activity, it is natural to conclude, theoretically, that there is a relationship between the skin infection and some disturbance of the glands.

Gland Extracts Used

On this basis, treatment with thyroid extract and with pituitary extract has been extensively carried out. In some cases very striking and brilliant results have been obtained. There is, however, no way of telling exactly which case is going to respond. It may be put down as a truism that there certainly is no successful treatment which will apply to all cases of acne.

Attention to the diet is also a method of treatment which has been tried out very thoroughly. Patients are advised to abstain from sweets and fats. I have never seen the slightest result from such restrictions, and I think that it is time that it should be said quite definitely that it is cruel to impose these unnecessary restrictions on young people at the time when they most crave these articles of diet.

Certain dietary indulgences, however, do cause acute outbreaks of acne. The person who has it usually knows what these foods are; he finds them out by experience and very sensibly avoids them. There is no food, however, which applies to all cases

Removal of Grease

Local treatment of the skin includes the removal of grease. There is no doubt that this occurs in greasy skins and that the infection invades the oil glands of the skin. It is in those crypts that the pustules occur. Treatment with strong soaps and frequent cleansings are a natural and sensible procedure.

Local treatment also includes the removal of the blackheads with a comedone extractor. A comedone extractor is a small celluloid instrument, on the end of which is a cup-like depression with a hole in the bottom. This is placed exactly over the blackhead and pressed down, and the contents of the blackhead are expressed. The blackhead is simply a plugged up sebaceous or oil gland of the skin, and invites infection.

Drainage of the pus in the pimples that come to a head, the use of vaccines and the use of the X-ray—one of the qualities of which is to kill infection—are all established accessory methods of treatment.

Although the average head size of American men is 7⅛, of 12 men recently chosen "most distinguished and well-hatted" by American hat manufacturers, only one, Fred Astaire, took average size. Among the others, Gene Tunney wore 7½; Bing Crosby, 7⅛; Herbert Bayard Swope, 7⅛, and Lowell Thomas, 7¼.

Another notable departure from average was the eighteenth century Scottish philosopher, David Hume. His size was 8⅛. The head size of the British royal family runs small. George V wore 6¾, as do George VI and the Duke of Windsor.

Society Tries on Hats At Mrs. Tydings' Tea

Bonnets for Benefit Fashion Show Are Previewed by Those Who Will Model Them Thursday to Aid Hospital Cases

There's nothing like a new hat to give feminine morale a life—and yesterday a group of some of the best looking young women in the Capital tried on a score of stunning models at a tea given by Mrs. Millard Tydings.

Most of those present will model at the fashion show to be held Thursday, April 18, at the Shoreham for the benefit of charity cases in Washington hospitals. Some of the bonnets to be shown there have arrived from New York already, and were unwrapped from their tissue paper yesterday at the party so everyone could have a look.

Mrs. Robert Grosjean, sister of Mrs. Tydings, is chairman of the benefit, and will also model in the show. Yesterday she looked like a fashion plate in a navy blue dress with a collar of fine lace.

Another sister, Mrs. Aldace Walker, was also present, wearing a bright green coat over her spring dress. Mrs. Tydings poured tea and Mrs. Emlen Knight Davies mingled about chatting with her daughter's friends. The party took place at her hourse on Massachusetts avenue.

The tea table was centered with a silver bowl filled with white tulips. Other spring flowers were here and there in the drawing room, which has floor-length curtains of soft blue brocade and comfortable chairs upholstered in yellow and blue.

Fashion Models At Tea

There was a definite spring touch to many of the costumes seen yesterday. Mrs. Claude Pepper set off her tailored suit with a corsage of pink camellias and a little white flower hat. Mrs. "Happy" Chandler and Miss Angelica Lloyd wore spring prints.

Miss Patricia Prochnik, who is chairman of the debutante committee for the show, wore a sky-blue sweater with her pink wool skirt. She was accompanied to the tea by Miss Joan McKenna.

Miss Emily Davis, who will model in the show, wore a black and white checked dress and a black skull cap with a white flower in the front. Others at the tea who will show new spring fashions at the benefit included Mrs. Sam Conner, wearing a becoming red print silk handkerchief tied over her curls; Mrs. Edward Page, in pale blue with a little white collar. Mrs. James Reid, Miss Betty Beale and Mrs. Paul Fox.

Miss Bambie McKenna drifted in, asking for ideas for the posters which she will design for the show.

Also modeling will be such well-known beauties as Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., and Countess de Baillet Latour. The countess is in New York but will come to Washington especially for the show.

Other models include Mrs. William Byron, Mrs. Scudder Doeg, Mrs. Charles Lispscomb, Mrs. William T. Mann, Miss Yolanda Alfaro, Miss Edith Pearson, Miss Rosemary Merrill and Mrs. Harold deVeau.

Hats Have Funny Names

The clothes will be shown following luncheon at the Shoreham, April 18. Mrs. Davies is among those who have already made reservations for a table.

The clothes and hats are being furnished by the well known New York designer, Lenore Krill, who did all Mrs. Grosjean's trousseau when she was married lost spring. She has named her creations imaginatively or humorously. For instance, one of her hats is called "blushing second bride," and is described as "peony pink to produce a blushing effect if you have stopped blushing yourself."

Mrs. Grosjean originally planned the show for Belgian relief—she is married to a citizen of that country and her father, JJoseph Davies, was formerly Ambassador there. But since Belgium is not actually at war, it was decided to donate the funds to local charity instead.

Miss Cantwell, Becomes Bride

At a quiet ceremony yesterday morning Miss Virginia Estelle Cantwell became the bride of Merrell W. Whittlesey, jr., in the rectory of St. Michael's Church in Silver Spring, Md., at 11 o'clock. The Rev. Thomas Calman officiated at the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert C. Cantwell, of Lindon, Md. Mr. Whittlesey, who is on the sports staff of The Washington Post, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Merrell W. Whittlesey, of Silver Spring.

The bride wore a blue crepe frock with a cluster of orchids. She was attended by Miss Doris Beek who was gowned in a navy blue flowered print frock. Edward Stephens served as best man.

House Speaker, Wife Depart For Florida

Younger Members of Society To Assist in Tableaux Vivants

Mrs. Frank Slingluff, jr., chairman of the committee in charge of the program of Tableaux Vivants, sponsored by the alumnae of the Convent of the Sacred Heart and to be presented at the Mayflower next Monday, at 4 o'clock, has a group of young girls assisting her on the benefit.

Miss Julie Cahill is responsible for the programs, and Miss Peggy van der Straten-Ponthoz, Miss Eugenie de Sosa, Miss Marie vom Rath, Miss Claire Cotter, Miss Ada Dannemiller, Miss Mary Elizabeth Tilghman, Miss Elizabeth Langlais and Miss Jacqueline Keyes are members of her committee.

Miss Laura Recinos, treasurer of the benefit, is visiting her homeland, Guatemala, and Miss Helen Crean, assistant treasurer, is serving in her absence. Miss Sylvia Alexander, who will return from Florida for the Tableaux Vivants; Miss Cecilia vom Rath and Miss Leonie McCoy are working with Miss Crean for the benefit.

Still another group, under Mrs. Daniel William O'Donoghue, jr., chairman of the committee on ushers, is composed of Miss Madeline Cotter, Miss Marie Therese Houser, Miss Eleanor Flynn, Miss Isabell Johnson, Miss Julie Worthington, Miss Evelyn Walker and Miss Isabel Badger. Mrs. W. Gwynn Gardiner, jr., and Mrs. John A. Dillion are alos assisting Mrs. O'Donoghue.

Proceeds from the entertainment, in which students in the junior and college preparatory classes of the convent will represent characters in pictures selected from various schools of painting, will be used for the alumnae scholarship fund and the school charities.

Taking Time Out From Golf

Frederick Richardsons And Daughter to Give Breakfast Sunday

MR. AND MRS. Frederick Richardson and their daughter, Miss Randolph Richardson, have invitations out for a breakfast Sunday at their home, White House, at Fairfax Courthouse, in honor of Miss Elizabeth Rice Barrett. The latter will be married to Douglas Smith April 20 at St. James Episcopal Church, in Warrenton, and afterwards there will be a large reception at Ridgelea, the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Richard Rice Barrett. The wedding of this popular couple will be the most important social event of the month in Warrenton.

Among the guests at the Richardson breakfast will be Miss Anne Barrett, sister of the bride-to-be, who will be maid of honor at the wedding; Mrs. Barrett, and Mrs. Baldwin Day Spilman, grandmother of Miss Barrett. Also Mr. and Mrs. Rathbone Smith, of Alexandria, parents of Mr. Smith; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pozer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham, Robert McCandlish and Miss Phyllis Walke McCandlish.

THE POTOMAC HUNT will hold its fourth annual point-to-point races Saturday at 2:30 on the farm of Edward Beale, The Glen, Md.

Three races will be run during the afternoon and hunting groups from Maryland and Virginia will take part.

The first race on the card will be an open race, minimum weight 175 pounds with tack. The course will be about 6 miles over natural hunting country and Mr. and Mrs. D. L. R. Harris have donated a trophy.

Something entirely new for racing fans is the second event, which is called a "larkers" or "dawdlers" race. The line and pace are to be set by the master or a designated whip. Horses will be required to lay off the pace until all are fairly over the last fence, where they will hold hard and await the master's signal to go away. Any horse overriding the master before the last fence may be disqualified. This will doubtless cause more merriment than ever seen before in a point-to-point race, for the master will probably be overridden many times and numbers will be disqualified. It will be interesting to see how many will have patience to obey the M. F. H.'s command to hold hard.

THIRD RACE of the afternoon will be the Dunboyne Challenge point to point, minimum weight, 160 pounds with tack.

The event is for ladies or gentlemen and is about six miles over natural hunting country. Horses must be qualified by the master as having hunted regularly with Potomac Hunt during the current season. The plate may be retained by the owner of the winning horse until March of next year, and his name and that of his horse will be engraved permanently thereon.

Chairman of the committee on arrangements is George T. Walker. Members of the committee are Dr. Joseph Horgan, William Laird Dunlop, 3d, Miss Elizabeth Jackson, Mrs. Paul Brower, Dr. Fred R. Sanderson, M. F. H.; Harry H. Semmes, M. F. H., and Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Beale. Judges at the finish will be Maj. Henry Leonard and someone appointed to fill the place of Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, who is in a hospital.

The Potomac Hunt will hold its annual hunter trials April 20. Details will be announced later.

The couple were married in the rectory of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, the Rev. John Coady officiating in the presence of the two families and close friends. The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of net and point lace, caught with a wide taffeta bow at the back. Her veil was that of her godmother, Mrs. Herbert Wessel. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of early spring flowers.

Miss Louise Finneyfrock was maid of honor for her sister, wearing ashes of roses crepe with navy accessories and a corsage of sweet peas. Charles J. Maddox, jr., was best man for his brother.

About the Town with DUDLEY HARMON

MARINELAND, FLA.

DEAR DUDLEY:

Here, rolled up into a strip of land no longer or wider than a city block, is a world of enchantment—Marineland. This world is bound on one side by a white, wind-swept beach, as soft and fine as talcum powder, and on the opposite side by sand dunes covered with sharp grass, fir trees and scrub pine.

There's a glorified tourist court—a restaurant where the food is delicious . . . paddle tennis courts . . . bowling alleys . . . swimming in pale aquamarine water . . . and most important of all, the only oceanarium in the world.

HERE, 18 MILES from St. Augustine, tourists can sleep for $1.75 a night in a room with pearl-gray walls, Bahamian mats on the floors, furniture painted in sea greens or blues, a private bath, and wide windows looking toward the dunes and ocean. There's a Dolphin restaurant, with modern curtains, an amusing Penguin bar, bright blue glassware and colorful table mats and napkins. Terraces on several levels lead down to the sea.

The man responsible for Marineland is W. Douglas Burden, whose beautiful blonde bride is well-known to Washington, where she lived with he first husband, the late Thomas Cammack. Financial backers of Mr. Burden's brain child include Harry Payne Bingham, brother of newly elected Representative Frances Bolton, and Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney.

THE MANAGEMENT is in the hands of Count Ilya Andreyevitch Tolstoy, grandson of the great Russian novelist. Countess Tolstoy, who was formerly the wife of the Hollywood scenario writer, Donald Ogden Steuart, has done all the decorating of the tourist court.

The great tanks for undersea life which give Marineland its name are the high spots in interest. The feeding of the porpoises always draws the largest crowds, who press their noses against the glass to see the creatures leap high out of the water. There is one baby orphan porpoise who pokes his nose right into the feed basket and eats so much that everybody is fascinated as to how he can wedge it all in.

THE FEEDING of the sea lions at 3 o'clock is another entertaining feature at Marineland. They are as tame and affectionate as a house pet.

Count and Countess Tolstoy live down the shell road a few miles at Summer Haven in a miniature house which Countess Tolstoy has fixed up with an open fireplace, sliding screens, dozens of books, and a handy little bar.

The open fire felt good the other rainy evening when Mrs. Ayard Warren, of Boston, and I stopped in. Mrs. Warren, by the way, is a cousin of Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge and a sister-in-law of Mrs. Samuel Wreeen, who has been visiting Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins in Washington.

OTHERS OF INTEREST who have been down here this season include Cornelius Vanderbilt (Sonny) Whitney and his handsome wife, passengers on the first clipper flight to Europe; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Laughlin and Nicholas Ludington and his wife, whose exquisite silver blonde bobbed head has been so extensively photographed. Polish Ambassador Potocki also paid Marineland a visit.

Well, it's shortly goodbye to this enchanting place and back to the coal mines for me, so I will conclude this letter.

Loneliness Outlawed By Wanderbirds Club

Anyone May Join Sunday Hikes; Group Will Give Banquet, Dance April 13 at the Gingham Club

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor

Who said Washington was a lonely city? Someone, no doubt, who had never heard of the Wanderbirds Hiking Club.

April 13, it will give its sixth annual banquet and dance at the Gingham Club, one of the four social affairs of the season allowed under its by-laws. All the rest of its activities are outings suitable to the season, and which anyone interested may join. Rain or shine, the members meet at a given place, go by bus to starting point for the actual hiker any distance from 30 to 100 miles from Washington, and then spend the day out of doors, walking from 5 to 10 miles.

The group includes usually 40 or 50 hikers, although sometimes there are as many as 100. In the winter, more men than girls come out and in the summer girls are usually in the majority. They range in age from 18 to 80 and there is a spirit of friendliness and good comradeship which welcomes newcomers and dispels any shyness they may feel among strangers.

Helen Mishanec, the retiring corresponding secretary, came to Washington four years ago from upper New York State, to take a position in the Interior Department; when she arrived, she knew no one. A month later she heard about the Wanderbirds, joined the club and now she seldom goes down the street without meeting someone she knows, she says.

Many of Club In Government

Many of the club members are from Government offices. Not only do they hike together, rain or shine on Sundays but those who discover other interests in common enjoy them in the meantime. Within the Wanderbirds' group, there is a skating club which skated in Baltimore until the Ice Palace was opened here; a group that attended a dancing class together; one which has joined the Youth Hostels and is planning trips this summer to the Adirondacks and the Smokies; another interested in swimming, one that plans canoe trips and another interested in photography.

Picture-taking rather than walking is the primary interest of many of the hikers and an annual contest and exhibition of photographs are sponsored by the club. This year it was in February in the auditorium of the National Museum.

Some of the club members also attend National Geographic Society lectures together, hearing about places they would like to go. Many romances have developed in the club and several of the married couples who now belong met for the first time on a Wanderbirds hike.

Within the membership are persons who also belong to some of the hiking clubs that have been formed by various Government departments. Among the groups are those of the Security and Exchange Commission, Treasury Department, Social Security and the Farm Credit Bureau.

It is a pleasure to talk to the hikers about their trips. They will tell you about the mountain laurel and the spring violets they soon expect to see; the fun of tramping in the rain; the beauty of the sunshine on a hillside, or the deep shade of woodlands in the sumer. There is something refreshing about their description of their trips—"We stop when we are tired, in some attractive place, perhaps beside a stream, where we can listen to the water and rest awhile."

Breeches, Lunches Standard Equipment

"Riding breeches, slacks or even riding jodphurs" are recommended in the bulletin issued giving a schedule of hikes. "Skirts may be distressing, climbing rocks or slipping through a barbed fence," it says. "Footwear should be sturdy as your feet are your transportation. Bring lunch, as hikes are all-day hikes; canteens, too, are desirable unless you have a friendly neighbor and he usually expects to use his own refreshments—springs cannot always be routed."

1920-30 Group Entertains Wellesley Club

Alumnae of Decade Compete for Award For Novel Party

"Wellesley Through the Looking Glass" was the theme of the party given last night by members of the 1920-30 decade group for all club members. It was at the home of Mrs. Gerrit S. Miller, jr., and was one arranged in the prize competition series for the award offered to the decade group providing the most novel form of entertainment, at a meeting of the whole club.

Miss Grace Lee, assistant dean of women at Maryland University, was chairman of arrangements. There were decorations characteristic of the 1920-30 period and a photograph gallery of decade members when students at college.

Out-of-town guests of the club were Washington undergraduates home for spring vacation and five members of the Wellesley faculty: Miss Bertha-Monica Stearns, professor of English literature; Miss Edith Moses, member of the speech department; Miss Elizabeth W. Manwaring, professor of English composition, and two members of the Wellesley library staff, Miss Ruth Catlin and Miss Helen Laws.

Early in the evening there were reports on the happenings at alumnae council which were given by Mrs. Walter DuBois Brookings, president of the club, and Mrs. Dorothy Pletcher Howerth, chairman of publicity. They were sent to Wellesley in February as the club's representatives.

First on the program presented by the decade group was the club's well-known pianist, Mrs. A. Nelson Sayre, who played Percy Grainger's arrangement of "An Irish Tune From County Derry," "Intermezzo," by Schumann, and "Declaration," by Enrique De Soro.

Next came an "Information Please" session, conducted by Miss Dorothy Grover, a member of the staff of Friends School. Questions were all based on the history and activities of the college. Members of the audience who failed to answer correctly were obliged to contribute coins to the Washington Wellesley Scholarship Fund.

Following this came the amusing 1920-30 style show, accompanied by music reminiscent of the period and a running line of style chatter by Miss Lee.

The clothes worn were all authentic models of the 1920 era.

Miss Nina Kinsella Addresses Zonta Club at Its Luncheon

Assistant Director of Bureau of Prisons, Who Is Former President of B. P. W. C., Discusses Standards for Penal Institutions

Miss Nina Kinsella, assistant director of the Bureau of Prisons, and former president of the local Business and Professional Women's Club, yesterday addressed the Zonta Club at its weekly luncheon at the Y. W. C. A.

Introduced by Miss Vera Lundquist, a member of the Business and Professional Women's Club as well as of Zonta, she told of the standards required for penal institutions and how few county jails in the country met them.

Of the 3,078 county jails in which Federal prisoners are held awaiting transfer to Federal prisons, only nine are rated between 80 and 90 per cent of the required standard in sanitation, trained personnel, medical care and discipline, she said.

Although sheriffs in every county are provided with the list of requirements to meet the standard of the Bureau of Prisons, there is no way to enforce them, said Miss Kinsella. Sheriffs are elected because of political popularity rather than on the basis of their qualifications and poor county jails are one result.

The only means of encouraging higher standards in the institutions is that of paying for the Federal prisoners according to the rating of the jail, she explained. This means that the revenue to the county from this source is low where the jails are poor.

No county jail in Virginia rates over 59 per cent, said Miss Kinsella. Of these throughout the country, 2,340 are under 50 per cent and of these 2,275 have been condemned as unfit for Federal prisoners.

Miss Mary Sigman, president of the club, presided.

Ore Blockade To Avoid Force, Norway Thinks

Chamberlain Speech Taken as Forecast Of Economic Pressure

By Otto D. Tolischus.
Copyright by New York Times

Oslo, April 3.—Although warning voices continue to be raised in the Norwegian press that the danger is by no means over, all Scandinavia breathes easier today as the result of Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech yesterday, which was interpreted to mean that Scandinavia had gained another respite from the imminent peril of being dragged into the war.

Due notice is taken of Chamberlain's statement that the Allies have not yet reached "the limit of our effective operation in this region" and that "other measures are under consideration," but most Norwegians agree immediate danger of Allied intervention to stop German iron ore shipments through Scandinavian territorial waters, is past, at least for the present.

The general impression is that Allied efforts to make the blockade more effective in this region will first take the form of diplomatic and economic measures, consisting principally in putting Scandinavia on short rations to prevent shipment of these exports to Germany and in utilizing superior Allied purchasing power to buy up all Scandinavian supplies.

But Chamberlain's reaffirmation of the war trade agreements with the Scandinavian countries is also accepted here as assurance that there will be no undue pressure in that respect.

Simultaneously, the Allies are also expected to intensify their naval activity "close to the German bases," that is, the Kattegat and in those spots along the Norwegian coast where German ships must leave territorial waters for reasons of navigation.

The authoritative Copenhagen newspaper Polatken commented on Chamberlain's speech:

"It is through the increase of pressure on neutral states that London will try to strengthen the blockade of Germany. It is a new war of nerves which is being started."

Growing anxiety in Sweden was reflected in a speech which Defense Minister Skold made last night at Upsala.

"As long as the big powers are involved in a war of life and death our fate will be uncertain," Skold declared. "There may suddenly appear a new danger and we must be prepared."

D. C. Officials Fought Change, Seal Reveals

Almost All Wanted To Be 'Let Alone,' Counsel Tells Lions

Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal yesterday told the Lions Club of Washington that "almost" every head of a District government department desired to be "let alone" in the Seal reorganization plan.

"From the very beginning we received requests from the various District officials that they were opposed to any change whatsoever in their respective departments," he said.

He spoke at the luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel.

Edward Arnold, Hollywood star, who is appearing here in behalf of the "I A man American" movement, told the members he was anxious to "get across" to the youth of the country the importance of suffrage. He said he favored suffrage for Washington.

In winding up his address, Seal said, in regard to the reorganization bill:

"We haven't gotten anywhere yet."

State Capitol Officer For 50 Years Honored

Richmond, Va., April 3 (AP).—Governor Price today presented Captain J. P. (Jack) Pettis, 75, of the State Capitol police, with 50 one dollar bills and a silver pitcher, given by his friends in and about the Capitol, as he reached the end of his fiftieth year in the State's employ.

Animal Trainer Says You Can't Trust a Tiger

Tigers are far more dangerous to work with than lions, according to Capt. Roman Proske, animal trainer with the Frank Wirth Circus which will open a week's engagement April 15 in Riverside Stadium for the benefit of Children's Hospital.

"After a lion gets to know you he is like a great big kitten, playful and with very little treachery in his makeup," says Proske. "But the tiger is a Jekyll-Hyde sort of beast, fawning one moment and snarling the next."

Capt. Proske works tigers exclusively. In the cage he uses no whips, chairs, guns or other defensive properties.

Silver Spring Women Demand Income Tax Action

Repeal or amendment of the Maryland income tax law was demanded yesterday by the Silver Spring Women's Club, meeting in Jessup Blair Community House, Silver Spring. The club also asked that sale, delivery or display of fireworks, except by permit at public celebrations, be prohibited.

Five resolutions from the State Federation of Women's Clubs were adopted. These opposed sale of obscene literature, opposed legislation inimical to the sugar industry in Maryland, urged State scholarships for the needy, asked an opportunity for juvenile delinquents to rehabilitate themselves and opposed the sale of firearms.

Mrs. John C. Keele and Mrs. Charles Krueger were appointed delegates to the convention of the State Federation at Baltimore, April 23-25.

Adriatic Route For Nazi Ships Tests Blockade

British Action There Would Offend Italy In 'Critical' Period

By Herbert L. Matthews
Copyright by New York Times

Rome, April 3.—Fascist leaders analyzed the present as one of the truly critical periods of the war in which Italy must behave with the utmost caution and skill not to be driven off the tight-rope of non-belligerency.

It is considered a time of uncertainty and contradictions, with sensational threats and promises that heat the atmosphere but leave the general situation unchanged, although it is expected to end in a great clash of German and Allied interests, among other places, in the Balkans.

Already the shadows of trouble are being cast over the Adriatic, which is as vital to Italian interests as the Baltic is to Russia. The Germans are apparently going to defy the British blockade there and take bauxite from Dubrovnik to Trieste.

Outside territorial waters anywhere the Allies are technically entitled to take action, but politically any action in the Adriatic is sure to be a source of great irritation to the Italians.

Yugoslavia Agreeable

Belgrade, April 3 (AP).—Yugoslavia will sanction use of her territorial waters for German freighters seeking a blockade-proof route for carrying Yugoslav bauxite to Trieste, Italy, an official source declared today.

The government declared units of the British fleet, on the watch for blockade-evaders, thus far had not been sighted north of Corfu by Yugoslav ships. Corfu is the Greek Island near the entrance to the Adriatic.

Bauxite, mineral base of aluminum, "is not considered a war material" by Yugoslavia, this official source declared.

Yugoslavia also considers that Prime Minister Chamberlain's warning to neutrals against trading with Germany does not apply to her since the Yugoslavs "have maintained the strictest neutrality toward both sides since the start of war."

(Rome dispatches said there was no confirmation of a report that three Yugoslav freighters already had been halted by British warships.)

Accidental Shot By Aged Farmer Kills Md. Wife

Salisbury, Md., April 3 (AP).—Rex A. Taylor, Wicomico County State's attorney, said Daniel Maddox, 71-year-old farmer, accidentally shot and killed his wife at their home near here today.

Maddox told Taylor that he was standing in the living room of his home with a shotgun, intending to shoot stray dogs in the yard.

His wife, 70, called to Maddox and as he turned around the gun was discharged, Taylor said.

"It can't be so, I didn't even have the gun cocked," the sheriff said a daughter quoted her father.

Board Seeks Child Actor Law Change

Age, Hour Limits For Appearances On Stage Offered; Pupils Reinstated

The Board of Education took action yesterday, affecting the activities of young people in two directions—in appearing on stages in Washington theaters and in joining unapproved fraternities in high schools.

The board approved the draft of an amendment to the controversial proposed amendment to the District child labor law which would permit the appearance of juveniles on stages.

The board's draft would eliminate its responsibility for censorship of plays in which juveniles appeared, but would set up other limitations on age, educational level and hours for stage appearances.

Submit Draft

The board's committee on legislation and Dr. F. W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, submitted the draft in the belief that it "establishes reasonable and necessary conditions in accordance with which permits would be issued and also adequately safeguards children against possible exploitation."

The bill proposing an amendment to the Child Labor Law was sent back recently to committee by the House, after an effective "ladies' lobby" had protested against the bill.

The board voted to restore to "full standing" in Woodrow Wilson High School eleven students who had been barred from holding school offices because of membership in unapproved fraternities and other organizations. The students' voluntary admission of their membership and their voluntary severing of the connection were large factors in the board's decision.

The students will be restored with the proviso that each one agrees not to join any unapproved organization in a Washington high school.

Quit Organizations

Among the eleven, eight boys resigned from unapproved fraternities; two girls from unapproved sororities and one girl from another unapproved organization.

Several of the students held positions in student government, on publications or on the football team. They forfeited these positions last semester when they voluntarily went to the principal and "confessed their errors." When they are restored to full standing they will be eligible again for such positions.

The board's action yesterday was on recommendation of Dr. Ballou, following a conference earlier in the week with a group of high school principals. Dr. Ballou said yesterday questions involving rules on fraternities are now under consideration, but he had no prediction as to the effect on the future of the fraternities.

The board authorized prosecution of the claim for unpaid tuition charges for a nonresident pupil of Central High School for the school years 1937-38 and 1938-39. The corporation counsel will be requested to "take such further action as he may deem advisable."

This step by the board may foreshadow such action in similar situations. The Corporation Counsel in a decision on the girl at Central said that the question of whether an action should be brought for back tuition bills if payment is refused "is a matter within the discretion of the Board of Education."

Suggested Amendment

In the board's suggested amendment to the child labor law amendment, the following provision is substituted, setting up requirements for the issuance of a stage permit to juveniles:

The minor must be at least 14 and must have completed eight grades of elementary instruction or its equivalent.

The child shall not appear on the stage in more than two performances a day or more than six hours a day or more than six days a week or more than 24 hours a week, or after 11 p. m.

Application for permit must be made to the Board of Education or its authorized agent, at least 14 days before such appearance. The board may issues a permit, if satisfied that the child's parent or guardian has provided for education, health and supervision. A copy of the draft will be sent to the corporation counsel immediately.

A date during the week of April 29 will be set for the board's next annual meeting with representatives of citizens' associations "to consider school needs" for the 1942 budget.

A proposed course of study in airplane engine mechanics at Phelps Vocational School was presented in a report from Dr. G. C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of schools. The board voted to let it lie over until the next meeting for their further study.

The board voted to protest issuance of a Class "B" liquor license at 3000 Georgia avenue northwest (near Monroe School) and a Class "D" license at 1855 Seventh street northwest (near Cleveland School).

Sick Man Takes Ambulance to Son's Wedding

Edward L. Koepenick, sr., bedfast since May, went by ambulance from Doctors Hospital to the Wardman Park Hotel yesterday to attend his son's wedding reception, then returned to the hospital. He is shown with the son-bridegroom, Edward L. Koepenick, jr., and Mrs. Koepenick, the former Evelyn Thurn, of Chicago. Because of a slight fever, the father was unable to attend the ceremony held a few hours earlier at Sacred Heart Church. Until forced to retire by illness, Koepenick was secretary-treasurer of Embassy Fairfax Dairy.

Government In D. C. Called 'Inadequate'

Local Institutions Neglected, Says Post Editorial Writer

The District's present form of government is "inadequate to deal with problems of a modern city," Merlo J. Pusey, Washington Post editorial writer, charged last night at a meeting of the Lafayette Home and School Association. He spoke on "Chaos In the Capital" in the Lafayette School auditorium, Northampton street and Broad Branch road northwest.

"No Centralized Responsibility"

"There is no centralized responsibility in our local government," Pusey said. "The task of governing is divided among many hands—the Commissioners, the Budget Bureau, the Secretaries of War and Interior and even the President, himself."

On one side, he cited the city's fine buildings, expensive monuments and wide areas of park land. And on the other, he pointed to the slums, obsolete schools, crime and disease.

Washington has 6,000 acres of park areas, twice the average of any city of similar size, Pusey said. It also has an elaborate zoo, is spending $3,500,000 on bridges and another $2,750,000 for a National Guard Armory.

"These projects," he told the meeting, "represent a national interest in the Capital City—so money is plentiful."

Institutions "Neglected"

Yet, he added, local institutions have been neglected, school buildings are ancient and obsolete, welfare facilities fall far below par. He described conditions at the Home for the Aged at Blue Plains in the language of a recent investigating committee as "closely approaching what one would find in the writings of Charles Dickens."

The District's present situation, Pusey concluded, offers a direct challenge to its citizens who are interested in civic betterment. It is for them to seek and find a solution, he said.

Transfusions Fail; Policeman Dies

Ernest L. Taylor, of 4535 Iowa avenue northwest, a policeman attached to Tenth Precinct, died yesterday at Georgetown Hospital after five blood transfusions in five days proved unavailing. His illness was said to be pneumococcic menigitis.

He was taken to the hospital Saturday and the first call for blood donors brought offers from 20 brother officers. Transfusions were given daily until his death.

Friendship Heights Citizens Ask U. S. to Pay 'Fair Share'

Association Opposes Tax Boost For District, Supports Joint Levy On Incomes Above $10,000 and Sales

A renewed plea that Congress pay its "fair share" of the cost of governing the District was voted last night at the monthly meeting of the Friendship Citizens Association, held in the Janney School, Wisconsin avenue and Albemarle streets northwest.

Coupled with the plea was a resolution opposing any increase in District taxes and a second resolution asking that, if taxes can not be avoided, they take the form of a tax on sales and incomes of $10,000 and over. A bill to this effect is now pending in the Rules Committee of Congress.

Harry S. Wender, District born lawyer who is president of the Southwest Citizens Association and vice president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, was indorsed for Police Court judge, on motion of Martin A. Cook.

The meeting went on record against rezoning the area bounded by Wisconsin avenue, Fortieth, Van Ness and Warren streets partly from residential "A" restricted to commercial "C" and partly from residential "A" restricted to semi-residential "A".

The rezoning question touched off heated argument in the course of which one citizen charged that the District Zoning Commission exercises "czaristic powers."

'Trade' Opposed

A proposal by an official of the Federation of Citizens Associations to trade the Federal contribution to the District budget for suffrage, made recently before a Congressional committee, was challenged as without authority by the Association of Oldest Inhabitants last night.

A letter, prepared at the association's direction and reported to its meeting in the Old Union Engine House, mentioned no one by name but declared that the official "had no authority to suggest waiver of an equitable participation in the financial support of the National Capital by the United States for suffrage or anything else."

The proposal to trade the annual "lump sum" contribution—now $6,000,000—for the right of Washingtonians to vote was made at a House hearing on District reorganization by Harry S. Wender, vice president of the federation.

The association's letter, which had been ordered sent to the House reorganization subcommittee, characterized the contribution as a "just and natural obligation . . . independent of the right of suffrage." It called "political and fiscal equity a matter of simple justice" and explained that by "political equity" the association meant a franchise to elect representatives to Congress.

The letter was signed by Jesse C. Suter, John B. Dickman, sr., and Harry A. Barr.

The association elected to membership Austin M. Cooper and noted the deaths of Guy V. Collins, William K. Kienle and Edward Nottingham.

John Clagett Proctor presided at the meeting.

Adam Always Was to Blame, Says Editor of Catechism

There is nothing new about the contention that Eve is not to blame for the sins of the world.

This message for womankind was offered yesterday at Catholic University in explanation of the new Catholic catechism. The new edition will soon be released for use in parochial schools.

Adam "as head of the family" has always had to shoulder all the responsibility, it was explained, and rewritten passages in the catechism involve no change in Church doctrine.

The Rev. Felix M. Kirsch, O. M. Cap., of the faculty of Catholic University, who edited the new catechism, yesterday quoted the following passage from the catechism to absolve the first woman from responsibility:

"Adam harmed us by losing grace, because he passed on to us his sin as well as death and the other punishments of his sin."

Page 44 of the new Catechism supports this statement by quoting from Romans v:12 as follows:

"By one man sin entered into this world and by sin, death. And so death passed upon all men in whom all have sinned."

Then follows this passage from the Catechism:

"Adam transmitted his sin to us because he passed on to us a nature deprived of that justice and holiness which God wished us to have."

A decree of the Council of Trent in 1545 is offered as supporting proof:

"If anyone asserts that the sin of Adam harmed Adam alone and not his descendants, and that the holiness and justice which he had received from God was lost for himself alone and not for us, let such a one be anathema."

Gloria Regan Wins Initial Round In Speech Contest

A pretty, third-year student at Immaculate Conception Academy last night emerged victorious in the first round of the archdiocesan oratorical contest of the Catholic Students Mission Crusade.

An overflow crowd in Holy Cross Academy auditorium heard Miss Gloria Regan, of 930 Madison street northwest, and three other contestants interpret their "personal views" on what she termed "those strong men and women"—Catholic priests and nuns.

Other youthful orators who praised the religious vocation were Miss Mary Jane Humphries, of Immaculata Seminary; Miss Genevieve McGlaughlin, of St. Rose's School, and Edward Donovan, of St. Paul's School.

D. C. Doctors Drop Prepaid Medical Aid

Interest Lagging, Society Declares; Halt in Project Is Approved

Prepaid medical service, established here nine months ago by the District of Columbia Medical Society, has been temporarily abandoned because of lack of interest.

In a somewhat rueful report, describing its efforts to present the plan to Government employes through their department heads, the society's executive board last night recommended that the plan be held in abeyance until "a sufficient number of employes voluntarily subscribe." The society, at a regular meeting, adopted the report.

Mutual Health Service, a prepayment medical plan to meet low incomes, was launched, the report pointed out, July 1, 1939, after three months of organization and two years of study. Subscribers to the plan would be permitted to choose their own physicians and 600 members of the society supported the program.

Circularize Bureaus

In view of the preponderance of Government employes among wage earners here, the trustees of Mutual Health Service decided to ask for permission to circularize the departments, explaining the plan. This, the report said, is what happened:

No answer to its request was received from District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, the Postoffice Department, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, the Treasury Department, and the Interstate Commerce Commission. In most cases, the report said, two letters were sent and in that of the ICC a personal call was made on the director of personnel.

The third letter to the Department of Commerce brought an answer from the director of personnel that nothing could be done until there was an opportunity to study the plan. Nothing further was heard.

Conference Arranged

The chief clerk of the Interior Department arranged a conference at which "it was agreed that material furnished by the society to circularize 3,000 employes would be used." Several employes reported they had not seen the material, the board said, and a memorandum was circulated by the chief clerk that ". . . it should be understood that the department is not sponsoring Mutual Health Service and that any dealings between employes and that organization should be conducted outside Government business hours."

Officials "of some agencies of the Government," said the report, "were helpful."

These included the Department of Agriculture, where 6,960 of 12,000 employes were circularized and the director of personnel "forwarded a friendly letter" to each employe reached. Others were the Railroad Retirement Board, Works Progress Administration, Federal Reserve Board, Federal Communications Commission, Social Security Board and the United States Public Health Service.

As a result of its efforts, 2,219 replies were received by the health service, of which only 265 were both eligible and interested. Of the balance, 940 were eligible but not interested, 536 were not eligible, but interested; 473 were neither eligible nor interested and 5 were undecided.

Agriculture Leads

By far the greatest number of replies, 1,782 of the 2,219 total, came from the Department of Agriculture.

"These are startling figures," exclaimed the report, which ". . . would seem to refute frequent public statements that there is a great demand for prepaid medical service . . . Reports indicate similar disinterest elsewhere." Similar experiences were reported with employes of private firms in the District.

Under its program, Mutual Health Service would have been made available to single persons with incomes not above $2.00 a year, married persons with incomes not over $2,500 and $200 allowed additionally for each child.

Bill to Amend D.C. Jobless Act Offered House

Rival Plans for McGehee And C. I. O. Threaten Subcommittee Fight

Representative McGehee (Democrat), of Mississippi, yesterday introduced in the House a bill to amend the District unemployment compensation act in accordance with recommendations of the Commissioners and the Unemployment Compensation Board.

As chairman of the judiciary subcommittee of the House District Committee, McGehee said that he will call a meeting this week so that the legislation may be reported favorably to the full committee next Monday.

No public hearings will be held, McGehee said, because of the conferences held at the District Building prior to the drafting of the bill.

A fight within the subcommittee may delay approval of the McGehee bill, however, as Representative Eberharter (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, has introduced another measure which embodies the ideas of the C. I. O. for amendment of the Unemployment Compensation Act.

One difference between the two bills is that the McGehee bill provides for a sliding scale pay roll tax ranging between one-half of 1 per cent and 2.7 per cent, whereas the Eberharter bill reduces the levy from the present 3 per cent to a flat 2.7 per cent.

Both measures propose to increase benefits from $15 for 16 weeks to $20 for 20 weeks, but the McGehee bill fixes a minimum at $5 a week and the Eberharter bill $7.

The Eberharter proposal would enlarge the board from five to seven members to permit additional labor and employer representatives.

Mrs. Kephart's Funeral Tomorrow

Funeral rites for Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Kephart, 84, widow of John Alonzo Kephart, Confederate soldier, will be at 1:45 p. m. tomorrow at her residence, 1445 Madison street northwest. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

A native of Washington County, Md., Mrs. Kephart came here 35 years ago. She was active in the Petworth Baptist Church.

She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Charles R. Klose, Mrs. Margaret Jensen and Mrs. John C. Hohman, all of Washington, and four sons, John A. Kephart and Richard L. Kephart, of this city; Paul H. Kephart, of College Park, Md., and Reginald Kephart, of Chicago.

Coughing Thug Hunted in Theft Of Cab, Cash

Mother, Daughter Held Prisoners As 2 Loot Store

A "coughing" bandit who robbed a taxi driver of his cash and car, and two men who sneaked $15 from a grocery store cash register were sought by police last night.

Rudolph Quarles, 46, a cab driver of 5401 Fourth street northwest, told police that a man, who coughed all the time he talked, asked to be driven to the 600 block of Girard street northeast just before midnight. When he reached the destination Quarles said he felt a cold object press against his neck as his passenger ordered:

"Let's have it."

Quarles handed over his cash, $3.90, then at the bandit's command stepped out of the car, while the gunman climbed into the front seat and drove off.

Mrs. Clara Brody, 37, and her daughter, Annette, 13, were in the kitchen at the rear of their grocery store at 1915 Benning road northeast, while two men cleaned the cash register in the store. Mother and daughter could see the men through a glass door. One of the men held the door shut, while the second got the money.

Earlier in the day Francis L. Carpenter, 20, of 2400 Sixteenth street northwest, was treated at Garfield Hospital for cuts to his head and face following a tussle with four men which left him unconscious in Meridian Park early yesterday.

Mrs. Verna Starling, 41, manager of a High Ice Cream store, 1924 Fourteenth street northwest, frightened away a would-be sneak thief yesterday when she discovered him in the store.

Many Protest Cut in WPA Teaching Aid

Mothers See No Reason to Deny Instruction to D. C.'s Crippled Children

Local WPA cuts, made as a result of Col. F. C. Harrington's order to trim the Works Projects Administration pay roll in the immediate future, drew quick protest last night from the mothers representing more than 200 physically handicapped children in Washington.

These mothers learned yesterday that effective April 15, 12 teachers will be discharged from the staff of 20 professional workers employed on the WPA project for teaching crippled children.

This means that 120 children now receiving instruction will be without teachers, said Mrs. Ethel Fuschene of the Association for the Education of Handicapped Shutin Children of the District, which met in special session last night to discuss the emergency.

"Don't See Why"

"And we don't see why," Mrs. Fuschene added. "We thought we were sure of teachers for our children the rest of this school year."

Mrs. Mary Steele, director of the division of women's and professional projects for the WPA, provided the answer:

"We have been asked to make cuts," she said, and we are making them all along the line. The handicapped children's project is just one to suffer. Eight of my projects are being eliminated completely. The rest will all have to take personnel cuts."

Mrs. Steele has 40 projects under her supervision.

Employes to be discharged were notified yesterday so that they might have a two-week notice, said the director. Most of the discharges are scheduled to take effect in mid-April.

"Of course, we haven't taken final action on the discharges," Mrs. Steele added, "Those that have been announced are in line with proposals of my committee. There may be changes, but we thought we should notify those who may be discharged as soon as possible."

Mrs. Fuschene said her organization was distressed because the mothers thought their "worries" about teachers over until next year."

$15,000 Provided

These "worries" were relieved last week when a $15,000 item for teaching shutin children at home was included in the District Supply Bill.

"That amount ($15,000) isn't enough to pay as many teachers as we need," said Mrs. Fuschene, "but we decided we would meet that problem when it arose, and not worry now. We thought everything was set for the rest of this year."

WPA professional projects slated for elimination, according to Mrs. Steele, are those at the Self-Help Exchange, the Smithsonian Institution, the toy repair shop and include the vocational rehabilitation and four records projects.

Renoir's "Human Beast" Packs Stunning Power

Simone Simon-Jean Gabin Starred at Little; Joe Pasternak Aided Marlene Dietrich; Sidelights on the Washington Stages

Substituting for Nelson B. Bell

A STUNNING, SAVAGE drama of uncontrolled passion, filmed by the masterful French Director Jean Renoir, "The Human Beast," opened yesterday morning at the Little Theater, a vastly different but worthy successor to Renoir's unforgettable "Grand Illusion."

Punctuated by the incessant thundering of symbolical railroad trains, "La Bete Humaine" was adapted from one of Emile Zola's twenty volumes on the tragedies of a diseased and terrible ancestry. This story is a psychological study of a railroad engineer subject to homicidal impulses which he cannot suppress. It is told with the terrifying honesty that so distinguished that early preachment of a peace now dead, the ironically titled "Grand Illusion."

Jean Gabin, quite as forceful as he was in the earlier film, plays this unhappy soul with a strangely vibrant Simone Simon as his partner in crime. She is bound to a husband she does not love because together they shared the horrible murder of her godfather. Gabin is held by his awful inheritance of violence and death. Their story takes place in the railway property between Paris and Le Havre; every event of their lives is bitterly underscored by the rumble of the trains, the wracking roar above which one must always shout to be heard.

This sounds like a strong and unpleasant story—which it is. But it is told with such observance for suspense, such masterly use of detail, that "The Human Beast" becomes as grippingly fascinating to watch as a great and terrible disaster. Of such is memorable film-making.

The stirring Gabin and Simon performances are well matched by that of Ledoux as the woman's husband, while the minor characters are sharply etched with that impressionism that is a birthmark of the truly French cinemas. Forceful stuff, this combination of Renoir and Zola is impressive miming that will keep your eyes glued to the screen.

Certainly next week and quite likely the next two will find the National Theater dark. Which is going to take a lot of brightness from E street. Our playhouse sets its next date on the twenty-second as the eagerly awaited Lunt-Fontanne play by Robert E. Sherwood, "There Shall Be No Night," more of which, thanks to Bill Fields, later.

As Mr. Scott Hart hinted so expertly yesterday morning, Joe Pasternak is a wise and astute motion picture man. The discoverer of Deanna Durbin and Gloria Jean, however much we are pleased by those young ladies, has always had an added appeal to us for his success in retrieving fortunes that were rapidly sinking away from Marlene Dietrich. Uncle Joe produced "Destry Rides Again," bringing back La Dietrich into money offers that, high as they are, have been refused by the witty lady in her desire to play the game with the man who gave her another chance. Seems that Pasternak read "Destry," felt that it was perfect for the glamour girl then taking an extended "at leisure" period in France. Reached by transatlantic phone, the star was amazed, finally acquiescent. That hunch has led to a new life, the next cycle of which will be in "Seven Sinners," in which Producer Pasternak says "Marlene becomes a destroyer in the U. S. Navy."

Stage-show news in the local variety houses has three angles: (1) In the Earle Theater's "Say It With Girls," opening tomorrow morning one of the Roxyettes will lead the band. No word has leaked out as to just which lass it will be, but if she doesn't have an Irish smile, blonde hair and E. H. on her blouse, we'll leave in high dudgeon! (2) Sam Jack Kaufman is remaining in the Capitol orchestra pit for another week. This makes five and for it he's whipped up another original overture, "Swinging the Operas." That decidedly explains that. (3) Next headliner, the week of the twelfth, at the Capitol will be Harry James and his orchestra.

In Hollywood

Hollywood, April 3.

"We, the people, own the box office," is the sum and substance of the thousands of letters and postcards giving Republic Studio officials a lot of headaches after their announcement of the filming of "Women in War," with Elsie Janis, Wendy Barrie, Patric Knowles. Those who write believe the picture will glorify war. In reality, it's the opposite, showing war as the horrible, useless mess it really is. Otherwise, Elsie Janis wouldn't be in it. May I suggest to Republic that they change the title to better fit the story and call it "Women Hate War?" How about it?

From Paramount Studio comes this honey. Ouida Bergere Rathbone declares that if Hollywood doesn't accept that offer of hers and Basil's free services for her recently completed "Life of Franz Liszt," she'll go to New York and personally finance the picture as an independent production, because she's tired of seeing her husband as nothing but a meanie.

Gene Fowler suggested as a gag to Leo McCarey that his latest and best picture, "My Favorite Wife," should be previewed in the Tombs to the members of that nonpaying Alimony Club that's been housed there for so many years, and I'll be darned if Leo isn't going to do it.

Bill Gargan narrowly escaped being a public nuisance in Beverly Hills. When his two boys, 7 and 10, read that our zoo was to be closed and the animals disposed of, they ordered 30 monkeys. Unfortunately for the boys, Bill answered the phone when the manager of the zoo called up for delivery instructions, and, of course, vetoed the order pronto.

Hollywood Parade

By Jimmy Fidler

Cleveland, Ohio, April 3.—Dear Staff: Hollywoodites who smugly marvel at recent improvements in picture-making would be less self-satisfied after talking to typical fans and discovering just how analytical those long-suffering entertainment buyers have become.

FIDLER

After pumping every "average theatergoer" I've encountered on this tour, I'm convinced that the old-fashioned ga-ga fans who were ecstatic about a picture as long as it featured favorite stars, are now as extinct as the giant pterodactyl. Make no mistake about it, people have grown picture-wise, and Hollywood is kidding itself if it believes that the star system, bank night, high-pressure publicity or anything else can substitute for real-honest-to-gosh entertainment value.

As the pretty young lady at the candy counter here in Cleveland puts it: "Ten years ago, movies were just about the only cheap entertainment; now, if we think the picture's bad, we can always stay home and listen to the radio."

I'm being perpetually astonished by the professional tone of fan criticism. If the direction of a picture is bad, Mr. and Mrs. Fan know it. They appraise the ability of the star with uncompromising shrewdness. And they carry their appraisals right on down the line to include each important member of the supporting cast. They pick plots to shreds, challenge the logic of situations, and even talk intelligently about the musical score.

The handwriting's on the wall. In one way—and one way only—can Hollywood please such careful buyers. By making GOOD pictures.

JIMMIE FIDLER.

Dear Caliban: So! While we slave to keep the Fidler's purse strings properly tuned, you're gallivanting around the country, chatting with pretty candy clerks—chatting very confidentially, too, since you admit discussing what she does on her evenings off! Well, it just goes to show that even a hard-boiled newshawk can't turn ham actor without getting a John Barrymore complex. If the "pretty young lady" was smart enough to compliment your profile, she's probably headlining in your act by now.

Should you be in the mood for anything so prosaic as Hollywood news and rumor, please be advised that: Mrs. Knute Rockne trains in Wednesday to give the script of her late husband's screenography an okay, and to consult during the pic's production . . . Cecil B. De Mille is so agog about the screen possibilities of Romere Darling, Indian beauty, that he's considering a THIRD remake of "The Squawman," to give her a chance . . . The McMillan Publishing Co.—which used to concentrate on literary classics—is dickering with Gloria Dickson for book rights to a compilation of her fan mail . . . On recent visit to Helena, Mont., Myrna Loy was greeted by more than fan acclaim—the city librarian handed her a dun for a book 15 years overdue! . . . So many gapers have discovered that road overlooking Ginger Rogers' swim pool that she's erecting 10-foot canvas screens as modesty insurance. THE STAFF.

The New Yorker

IRVING BERLIN, whose new show, "Louisiana Purchase," is all set, still doesn't speak to Oscar Levant because of the references to him in "A Smattering of Ignorance" . . . Oscar returned from San Francisco Monday, and asked a friend: "Have you seen Berlin lately?" . . . "Yes," was the answer . . . "Did he say anything about me?" asked Oscar . . . "No," he was told. "I guess it means he's forgiven you" . . . "No," said Oscar. "It means only that he's busy in rehearsal" . . . The newest member of the Murder Syndicate gang to be removed to a place for safekeeping is Magoon, who was taken out of the penitentiary and transferred to a Bronx cell—as a prelude to his confession . . . The latest stunt used by O'Dwyer in inducing witnesses to talk is having them measured carefully and explaining: "We're doing it because the mob just ordered a coffin—and we want to check up to see whether you're the one it's supposed to fit."

ANTOINETTE PERRY, of the Theater Guild, went to Idaho to visit her daughter, Margaret Perry—the former Mrs. Burgess Meredith . . . Mrs. Perry got off the train at the station nearest to Margaret's ranch, and hired a cab to take her there—240 miles away . . . Margaret, who had been snow-bound earlier this year, purchased a dog sled . . . "And were you able to buy good huskies to draw the sled?" she was asked . . . "No, I bought Irish setters," she replied. "They match my red hair."

WHEN SUMNER WELLES returned from his European trip, the ship news reporters were completely frustrated in their attempts to elicit any information from him . . . During their examination, a messenger delivered a telegram to Welles, who glanced at it, smiled, and started to pocket it. The reporters, hoping that it had been a message from the President, asked Welles about it. He obliged by showing them the wire, which read: "You are cordially invited to become an honorary member of our organization—The Explorers Club."

THE MOST CREDIBLE story advanced concerning the President's sudden decision to send Welles to Europe involves two famous American industrialists, who have interests in Germany . . . They talked to Hitler in Berlin, and came away with the impression that there was a basis for a possible peace. They related this to the President, when they returned, and so Roosevelt sent Welles on this assignment . . . The industrialists are James Mooney, vice president of General Motors, and Tex Reber, head of Texaco.

WHEN HARRY CAREY, now touring with "Heavenly Express," arrived in Washington he was escorted through the Senate Building. He met Vice President Garner, whose role he had portrayed in the movie, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington." Carey was allowed to sit in Garner's chair, and to finger the Vice President's gavel. Garner saw him observing the details of the Senate Chamber, and said: "This is a pretty good reproduction of the Hollywood set, isn't it?" . . . Vilma Ebsen, who is resuming her dance partnership with her brother, Buddy, convinced him that her name should be first in the billing—Vilma & Buddy Ebsen—"because then your full name will be kept intact" . . . Sammy Fain, the songwriter stopped writing tunes with William Guggenheim, the copper magnate, because Guggenheim wanted a 50-50 royalty split.

TONY BIDDLE, the American Ambassador to Warsaw, is known to the sporting fraternity here, ever since the days when it was fashionable for socialites to manage prizefighters . . . Hymie Caplin, manager of Lew Jenkins, read Berlin's White Paper based upon documents alleged to have been left in Warsaw . . . "I can believe that Biddle left them there papers around where anyone could pick 'em up," said Caplin. "I know that—because he handled Rene De Vos the same way."

JOSEPH P. KENNEDY will return from London to attend the Democratic Convention . . . The National Democratic Club in New York will tender a dinner to Jim Farley on April 18 . . . N. B. C. will televise "Hospital Scene" next Sunday. It's a play written by a Yale drama student, and will be performed by the Eli drama group . . . Funk & Wagnalls will publish, next month, a book clearing up all the intricacies of the Federal Civil Service system . . . Sherman Billingsley, who once operated the most successful speakeasy in New York, has been on the wagon for six weeks. He drinks only a nonalcoholic beer imported from a Dry State . . . Al Jolson, preparing to return to show business here, did a break-in routine at El Morocco Sunday night.

Actor Traces His Missing Calls

If anyone has phoned Albert Dekker lately, and left a message, will they please call again? The star of "Dr. Cyclops" has suddenly discovered that he has been missing important calls.

It seems that the Dekker daughter, Jana, aged 2½, has but lately discovered the telephone. She spends a lot of time sitting in front of the instrument, waiting for it to ring. Jana manages to carry on a pretty intelligent conversation, despite her tender years, but her penmanship—well, she's only 2½. Her memoranda of callers are indeciperable.

The Federal Diary:

Forest Service, Food and Drug Administration Welcome Omission From Reorganization Plan

President Roosevelt's third reorganization program yesterday was receiving its warmest welcome in two agencies which it failed to mention.

In both the Forest Service and in the Food and Drug Administration hopes were rising that their omission from the reorganization was more than a temporary breathing spell.

Reports have been current that the Forest Service was destined to go from the Agriculture Department to Interior, while the Food and Drug Administration has been believed headed from Agriculture to the Public Health Service.

While officials in both agencies declined formal comment on what their prospects of transfer might be, the third reorganization noticeably lightened their concern over what the fourth, expected later in the week, might bring.

Transfer of the Forest Service has been fought by farm groups and others. Its own leaders are understood to bitterly oppose a switch which would place them in a department they believe would subject the service to more highly centralized control.

Chief fighting cry against the change has been the argument that forests are a crop, closely related to the problems of other crops, and should remain under Agriculture control.

Food and drug officials saw hopeful signs in outside protests from trade groups against having the Food, Drug and Cosmetics Act administered by doctors. Their opposition has run along the line of showing that most of the act concerns matters closer to general economics than to health. For example, much of the recent work of the administration has been in detecting and cracking down on misleading packaging—an economic rather than health factor.

Key to the opposition of trade groups to administration by doctors has been the fear that much more strict controls would be set up, based on health standards alone.

Officials of both groups regard the outside opposition to transfers as their best insurance against a change. It is the feeling of many who would be affected that the transfers face enough of a Congressional tumult to make their suggestion pretty well out of the question.

In agencies affected directly by the newest reorganization plan there was immediate approval, along with curiosity.

Civil Aeronautics officials were surprised but undisturbed by the President's proposal to clarify relations between Administrator Clinton Hester, and the five-man Civil Aeronautics Authority, headed by Chairman Robert H. Hinckley.

In practice Hester has been directly in charge of the field force for airways and landing fields, and has held other delegated functions as supervisor for the board, in charge of civilian training, certificates and inspections, and enforcement.

Both Hester and Hinckley were out of town, and remaining officials said it would take some study to determine just how the changes will be worked out.

Flood Cuts Down Guests for Dinner Honoring Stark

Flood-swollen waters of the Susquehanna River sweeping through Wilkes-Barre, Pa., may have washed some names from the registration list for a dinner to be given in honor of Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, by natives of Luzerne County, Pa., at the Wardman Park tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Some 350 persons in service, Congressional and Luzerne County circles made reservations for the dinner to pay tribute to the admiral, a native of Wilkes-Barre, Luzerne County.

Now, however, 15 to 20 per cent of the reservations have been canceled due to the flood, Andrew B. Glodeck, in charge of reservations, said.

Economic Conference Tomorrow at G. W.

The opening session of a conference on National Economic Policy will be at 8 p. m. tomorrow in the George Washington University hall of government.

Government economists have cooperated with the university's department of economics in arranging the conference. Subsequent sessions are to be April 26, May 15 and June 7.

3 D. C. Artists to Show In Democracy Exhibit

Three Washington artists will exhibit their works at the "Art in a Democracy" show to be held in New York April 5 to 28.

Auriel Bessemer, 1367 Connecticut avenue; Nicolai Gikovsky, 1640 Thirty-second street northwest, and Phyllis de Lappe, of 423 North Thomas street, Arlington, will display their works along with that of artists from all parts of the United States.

Home Products Exhibit

Exhibits of effective cooperation between growers and the chemical industry to substitute home products for imported goods will be featured tonight at a dinner of the Agricultural Chemical Association, at 7 o'clock in the Washington Hotel.

Union Pickets Funeral Home, Files Charges

Members of the Federation of Morticians, Local 1043, yesterday began picketing Hysong's undertaking establishment at Thirteenth and N streets northwest, charging that the funeral home discharged three employes for union activity.

The funeral home management asserts that all employes who have recently left the firm have done so of their own volition and that no employe has been told he cannot join the union.

Gilbert C. Vincent, secretary of the local, which is affiliated with the C. I. O., said last night the union has filed charges against Hysong's with the NLRB.

Over the Top, Capitol Gives More to Boys

$600 to Aid Clubs Received, Money Still Coming In

Although the $500 quota of the Capitol Hill fund in the Police Boys' Club campaign has been oversubscribed, its chairmen are still on the lookout for more donations from anyone—from Senator to page boy.

Lawrence J. Bach, night clerk to the superintendent of the House Office Building and cochairman of the Capitol Hill fund, said last night that "more than $600" has been collected and "more is coming in." He is cochairman with Howard Venable, Metropolitan Police officer on Capitol Hill.

He pointed out that the total would be even larger had not some members of Congress had sent their checks directly to Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent.

Rufus G. Byars, vice chairman of the Police Boys' Club campaign, yesterday became a member of the advisory committee for the drive as he reported his first $100 contribution from a single donor. The gift was made by A. E. Lichtman, who becomes a member of the "Hundred Dollar Club."

Byars yesterday named 1' members of his committee to work in the campaign for a "pile of dimes." First report meeting of the group will take place at 7 p. m., April 12, in the Police Boys Club branch at Twelfth and U streets northwest.

Named on the committee were Mrs. J. A. Cuney, Emory Bryant, W. T. Grady, H. T. Jones, George W. Johnson, C. T. Toliver, Mrs. A. B. Ewell, Mrs. Estella Labat, Roland W. Valentine, Walter Brooks, Detective Sergt. Daniel D. Fittman, J. Finley Wilson, Mrs. Cecilia Smith and T. Clifford.

James H. Himelright To Get Pershing Medal

James H. Himelright, of Winchester, Va., will be among nine youths to be decorated with the John J. Pershing medal for outstanding achievement in the 1939 Citizens' Military Training Camps Saturday. The ceremony will take place at 11 a. m. in the offices of Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, U. S. Army, in the War Department at Washington.

British Flier Battling Bomber, Radios Running Story Home

Copyright by New York Times

London, April 3.—The brassy voice of a loudspeaker at a British airdrome told today the running story of how the first British fighter was lost defending the coasts of England—but only after it had shot down a German Heinkel over the North Sea.

The story was told in minute-by-minute reports by a young flight lieutenant piloting the lost Spitfire, who was picked up safely after he brought his machine down to the water in flames.

About 1 o'clock in the afternoon came word that the enemy had been sighted. Then the report came that he was down. The pilot of the Spitfire then told how the German crew of five, two of them injured, had been picked up by a drifter which had fired on the Heinkel with a Lewis gun.

The base was preparing to give orders when the pilot said, "I am on fire," and a moment later "I am making a landing on the sea." He was picked up by a fishing trawler 12 miles off the Yorkshire coast.

The British claim this is the first British coast defense plane lost against 51 Nazi craft shot down while attacking England or ships in its coastal waters. At least ten more were believed to be seriously damaged.

The admiralty reported two attacks on convoys today. Enemy aircraft dropped 15 bombs on one convoy, doing no damage, and were driven off by the escort's antiaircraft fire, the Admiralty said.

Germany asserted the attack was carried out "successfully," however, in the northern part of the North Sea.

Another convoy was attacked by a lone Heinkel which was driven off by the fleet air arm, the British communiue reported.

Reports from Scapa Flow today belittled German claims of damage in last night's raid on the fleet. It was said all the bombs from 20 attacking German planes fell in the water harmlessly, except two which landed on the shore. Two civilians and one service man were slightly injured ashore by shell splinters. A German reconnaissance plane, apparently investigating the scene, was sighted over the Shetlands today. (The Germans had claimed direct hits on several warships.)

From British headquarters in France came a report that three Hurricanes attacking a reconnaissance Dornier ran into a superior force of Messerschmidts above the Saar sector. One British plane crashed, the pilot landing within his own line by parachute. Two other British planes are said to have bagged two Germans, and possibly a third.

(The German high command already had acknowledged that two German planes were missing in Western Front action, but that three "enemy" pursuit planes had been shot down.)

Nazi Down in Norway

Copenhagen, April 3 (INS).—A Nazi Junkers bombing plane made a forced landing in Norway due to engine trouble and was burned by its crew tonight, according to reports reaching Copenhagen. The crew of four was interned.

Staggering through the skies on one motor, the crew of the Nazi plane signaled a Norwegian military plane and was directed to the Sola airport. Before authorities could interfere, they set their plane ablaze.

Four Nazi aviators, who were rescued from a rubber folding-boat in the Kattegat today by the crew of a Danish fishing vessel fought efforts to intern them.

They told Danish government officials that they claimed the status of shipwrecked mariners, since their bombing plane sank following a forced landing this morning off the Danish island of Samsoe.

French Claim Captures

Paris, April 3 (AP).—The French high command tonight reported the capture of German prisoners on the Western Front.

"A quiet day," said the nightly communique. "During last night the enemy attempted a raid on one of our outposts. The raid failed completely and some prisoners were left in our hands. There were no losses on our side.

"It is confirmed that the third German plane which was mentioned as probably destroyed in last night's communique was actually brought down."

One French plane was forced to land in Luxembourg, the French command said.

Contract Bridge

Plays which to the whist experts, who played the game with all hands closed represented the extreme in complexity and skill, are available to every beginner of contract. The Vienna Coup, for example, a squeeze which such whist wizards as Clay Cavendish and Pole called the most difficult play, is the humble tool of every good contract player today.

The hand in the box is the Great Vienna Coup problem as it was first discovered and solved by an Austrian whist player some time before 1864.

Today's Hand

Great Vienna Coup

	♠ J 10 3 ♡ A K Q J 3 ◇ 5 2 ♣ 7 4 2
♠ K 6 ♡ 10 9 7 6 5 ◇ J 10 8 ♣ 8 6 5	WEST / EAST	♠ 9 8 7 5 4 2 ♡ 8 4 ◇ K 9 ♣ J 10 9
	♠ A Q ♡ 2 ◇ A Q 7 6 4 3 ♣ A K Q 3

Clubs are trumps and West leads. North and South must win thirteen tricks against any defense.

Here is the solution:

South takes four club tricks, immediately squeezing West. Since he cannot let go a diamond or a spade without presenting South with the necessary two tricks, West must throw a heart. South cashes the ace of spades, establishing the king in West's hand.

This is the distinguishing feature of every Vienna Coup. It is a giant unblocking play which is necessary for the success of the squeeze. It sets up a winner in the adversary's hand for the express purpose of later squeezing him of that very card. The card of next lower rank, in this case the spade jack, must be in the opposite hand for the play to be effective.

After taking the ace of spades, five heart tricks are won. South throwing the spade queen and three diamonds. On the last heart, West is forced to throw either a diamond or the king of spades. By finessing the diamond queen South will win a spade and two diamonds, or three diamonds, for the remaining tricks.

Gangdom's Poetical Superman Is Jailed for Safekeeping

By the Associated Press

New York, April 3.—Oscar, the poet, who made "hot cars" vanish for Brooklyn's kill-for-cash syndicate, was put in jail today to keep him from becoming a clay pigeon for the guns of the mob he betrayed.

The 38-year-old bard of Murder, Inc.—whose favorite poem is Wordsworth's 'Ode on Intimations of Immortality"—was held in $50,000 bail in connection with the theft of 15 motor cars he "disintegrated" by way of sales to junkyards.

The subdued little figure, whose ankle-length overcoat makes him look like a man standing in a hole, was still clutching his dog-eared anthology of verse when he was led away after arraignment before County Court Judge Franklin Taylor.

This oddest of the gallery of characters uncovered by District Attorney William F. O'Dwyer in his investigation of a gang to which he attributes more than 30 cut-rate "contract" murders, was identified as Oscar Freidman, junk dealer and father of a boy, 12. At first he would admit only to the name of Oscar.

"Friedman will probably be a material witness in one of the gang murders," said O'Dwyer.

The district attorney declared that Oscar—something of an orator as well as a poet—was hired by the mob after he convinced its leaders he could disintegrate their tell-tale cars by a secret process.

Actually, O'Dwyer said, Oscar just drove the cars to a junk yard after collecting his fee and there sold them for scrap.

Backtracking Oscar's drives to profit, police found in junk yards today 15 engines of motor cars they described as having been used in crimes of Brooklyn mob men.

While they were piecing together the bits of cars scattered under Oscar's magic, 21 more detectives were assigned to O'Dwyer's office, bringing to 50 the number actively engaged in ferreting out the manifold activities of Murder, Inc.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Orlando, Fla., April 3.—Pepper Martin is now entitled to pop the cork and wine himself. He is the president and lone survivor of the Last Man's Club. He is what is left of the Gas House Gang, that rootin', tootin' bunch of Cardinals who fought the Giants out of the 1934 pennant and laughed at Detroit in the World Series.

POVICH

Ducky Medwick was on that 1934 team and he is still with the Cardinals, but Medwick was not truly a Gas Houser. That distinction belonged to Martin, and Leo Durocher and Dizzy Dean and Manager Frankie Frisch and First Baseman Rip Collins. They were the warp and woof of the Gas House Gang. Save for Martin, they have all parted company with the Cardinals.

The name fit 'em. They were the Dead End Kids of baseball, looking tough and acting tough. They were the ragamuffins of the majors. The dirtier their uniforms the better ball they seemed to play. With them, an umpire was somebody to be insulted at every opportunity. They snarled and growled at the opposition and in a tight spot a Gas Houser would walk up to bat and tell the pitcher to "Chuck that thing in here and I'll knock it back down your throat."

The reason for the Gas House Gang was undoubtedly Frankie Frisch, the manager. It was his kind of baseball. It was John McGraw's, too, and Frisch was schooled by McGraw. He was explosive. He loved the fray. He set the example for his men. He was lucky, though—lucky that the Cardinals of his era were blessed with the presence of guys who needed only leadership to arouse their full fury.

Pepper Martin, of course, was naturally a tough guy, only too willing to ride herd if given the office. Durocher was a good enough ball player to back up what he would say, and he had the most biting tongue in the league. Dizzy Dean never needed any prodding to grandstand it and show his contempt for the hitters. Rip Collins was simply a tough guy and a raucous bench jockey. And Frisch himself was a bundle of fury.

Pepper Martin sat in the dressing room at Tinker Field today and talked about that 1934 team. "We were wonderful," said Pepper immodestly. "We scared the Giants out of the pennant. We went into New York seven games behind and insulted every Giant within shouting distance before our four-game series started. We told 'em we'd collar 'em and win the pennant. We had them believing it, too.

"Sure, our uniforms were dirty, but they had to be. We couldn't keep clean. We were always hitting the dirt head first or scrambling back to bases after taking big leads, and it was that kind of base running that won us ball games.

"I guess Frisch was the guy who made our ball club. He had inspiring leadership, and all of that hokum. He didn't ask us to do anything he couldn't do himself, though. He was pretty smart. He knew that the big leagues were getting soft and that the first club that would get real tough in there would take the others by surprise. We always played to upset the other guys.

"Of course we had some swell ball players. Dizzy Dean won 30 games for us in 1934. Daffy won 19, I think. Medwick was a quiet sort of guy, but he could bank that ball. Frisch and Durocher were swell around second base and Bill Delancey and Jimmy Wilson were great catchers. We had enough good ball players to back up most of the threats we made."

Pepper Martin's 36 now and he isn't a regular with the Cardinals. But other players have come along, and the Cards will enter the 1940 race cofavorites with the Reds to win the pennant. The reason is simple enough: The Cardinals are the power club of the National League.

There isn't another team in the league that can match the concentrated batting strength of the Cards. Batting third, fourth, fifth and sixth are four men, any of whom would be welcome as the cleanup hitter on any big league club. Slaughter, Medwick, Mize and Padgett will have a collective batting average of at least .335 or Cardinal fans will be disappointed. Medwick and Mize are National League batting champions, and Padgett in 90-odd games last year slugged at a .390 rate.

If the Cardinals do win their first pennant since 1934, it won't be a Gas House Gang product. The Cardinals are no longer a colorful club. They simply have a lot of good ball players. And Manager Ray Blades is a dull character compared to Frankie Frisch. But that won't matter. Playing percentage baseball is still a sound way to win the pennant.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, April 3.—Old Corneel Vanderbilt, who founded the Vanderbilt fortune, once thundered "the public be damned!" when one of his palsied stooges suggested to him that something that Corneel was about to do might wring a bleat of indignation from the citizens.

CONSIDINE

Today, old Corneel's great-great-great-etc.-grandson, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, has a wonderful opportunity to make up for his forefather's historic rudeness. The young squire of Pimlico and Belmont is in a position now to make himself the greatest friend the public—the racing public—ever had. We think he's idealistic enough to try it.

We believe that with any kind of cooperation young Vanderbilt wields enough power today to rid his tracks, and perhaps others, of racing's No. 1 evil—the trainer who sends a horse into a race just for a gallop. The money that will be lost on good horses which are just out for the breeze this year would go a long way toward writing off the public debt, because nobody will think to tip off the gullible public not to bet on the favored fleabag.

An owner or a trainer who wants to warm up a horse for some future event should be made to do his qualifying and his "tightening" in the morning workouts. Or, if young Vanderbilt can't swing that, then he might insist of them that they give notice before a warm-up race so that thousands of defenseless form players at the track that day can be warned. Of course, it is no disgrace to toss a good horse in a tune-up race, with jockey-instructions to the effect that there should be no thought of winning. That has been a traditional part of sharpening a thoroughbred's edge.

But it doesn't necessarily follow that the public should be kept in the dark about the seriousness of these tryouts. A race track sucker has enough to contend with, trying to read a ringing message in his form charts. He shouldn't be loaded down with the additional burden of never knowing whether the horse he finally dopes out is running for keeps or just to loosen his liver, or to shed a few pounds for his next race.

Before he attained his present place in racing, Vanderbilt cried out against the vicious fraud, but he was promptly shushed like a fresh child, by his elders in the racing game. He has been quiet since then, but in that intervening time the slight, friendly young man has become one of the truly dominating figures in the game, and as the years go on he'll grow bigger. They say he'll eventually be asked to take over Hialeah, which would give him a lock on the Eastern Coast.

We think he could now put his well-shod foot down on the owners who are beholden to him—and make them try to win all the time with their horses, or at least make them let the public in on their intentions when they're sending their horses out only for an airing.

Young Vanderbilt has done too many fine things in racing to fail to try to do something about stopping this ancient, contemptible practice.

Our pal, Nelson Dunstan, of the Morning Telegraph, doubts very much if Seabiscuit will remain the top-money winner of the United States turf as long as Sun Beau held the title. Seabiscuit dislodged Sun Beau after a nine-year reign (1931 to 1940) by winning the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap early last month—a victory which gave the old gentleman from the Howard barn a total earnings record of $437,730.

The return of rich boom-time purses is the reason why Seabiscuit's fabulous figure soon may be topped. The Derby has been upped to $75,000 added. The Preakness is richer than ever, and each year sees a rich race added to the California calendar. When New Jersey opens up there will be other rich races, and New York is expected to go in more for heavily sugared handicaps. With the coming of the pari-mutuel machines.

Finland to Pass Up Olympics

By the Associated Press

Helsinki, Finland, April 3.—Antii Kukkonen, minister of education propaganda, said today it would be impossible for Finland to organize the Olympic Games this year "because of the abnormal situation prevailing between the great powers.

"We hope fervently, however," he said in the first governmental pronouncement on the Olympics, "that sorely tried Finland will not lose her turn, but will be permitted to organize the next games on whatever date they can be held."

Supporting this point, Kukkonen called attention to the fact that Finland "already has devoted much money and labor to preparations."

At the same time he appealed to the world for aid in restoring the scientific and cultural life of Finland disrupted because of the war.

Hogan Plays Masters' Practice Round in 67

Ben Still Hitting Shots Straight to Pin In 5-Under-Par Performance at Augusta In Preparation for Today's Golf Play

By Bill Boni

Associated Press Sports Writer

Augusta, Ga., April 3.—Ben Hogan still is swinging in the groove. Because of that, and in spite of the law of averages, the former Texas caddie shaped up tonight as a very good bet to win the seventh annual Masters' Golf Tournament which opens tomorrow at the Augusta National Golf Club.

This afternoon, though, a fitful breeze made judgment of shots considerably more difficult. Ben played the course in 67, five under par, yesterday he was 68. It's obvious, then, that he's running right along in the sub-par streak that enabled him to lead the fields successfully at Pinehurst, Greensboro and Asheville.

With wood or iron, he continues to show the accuracy of an expert marksman. Playing with his fellow-star of the winter circuit, Houston's Happy Jimmy Demaret, Hogan hit the pin this afternoon with two brassie shots.

More Pressure Than Others

The four-day Masters' Tournament, of course, will bring considerably more pressure on Hogan than he felt in the other three. It is the most prized plum on the winter circuit, and the one that carries with it the most lasting reputation.

In addition, Hogan is not the only man who has been on his game around here. Bracketed with him in the odds is Ralph Guldahl, winner a year ago, unable to win a tournament since then, but convinced that right now he is hitting the ball as well as he ever has.

Then there's Gene Sarazen. The Connecticut squire had himself a 68 today, and also is in the groove. He was that way at Pinehurst and Greensboro, but there he was hurt by having to play 36 holes the last day. Here, with only 18 holes daily, those chunky little legs may stand

Medalist Poole Also Loses in Annual North-South Amateur

By the Associated Press

Pinehurst, N. C., April 3.—John B. Ryerson, the Cooperstown, N. Y., veteran, today defeated Bill Cozart, of Durham, 5 and 4, in their second round match of the annual North and South Amateur Golf Tournament.

Cozart, the tourney's giant-killer, yesterday eliminated Champ Frank Strafaci, of Brooklyn, N. Y., the 1939 winner.

Medalist Grover Poole, of Raleigh, also fell by the wayside in his match with Chuck Alexander, of Duke University, who won, 2 and 1.

Former Lions Owner Draws $5,300 Fine

Pro League Head Also Orders $8,000 Be Paid to Coach

By the Associated Press

Dayton, April 3.—Carl Storck, president of the National Football League, announced today he had fined George A. Richards $5,300 for tampering with players before he sold the Detroit Lions to Fred L. Mandel, jr., of Chicago.

A fine of $5,000 was imposed, Storck said, because Richards dealt with Clyde (Bulldog) Turner, Hardin-Simmons center, after the National League's player draft.

Richards was ordered to pay $8,000 to Coach Gus Henderson in settlement of a two-year contract before the sale of the Lions to Mandel was approved, Storck said.

Richards also was ordered to repay $300 to the Cleveland Rams the purchase price for Ralph Niehaus, University of Dayton tackle, and Bill Lazateck. The two were given their verbal release by Detroit, Storck said, and eventually connected with the Columbus team. When they were purchased by the Cleveland Rams, Detroit asked and received $300. Later, Cleveland protested and the order for repayment of the $300 followed.

Baltimore Orioles Beat Sea Gulls, 8-4

Baltimore, April 3 (AP).—Baltimore's Orioles, champions of the Eastern Amateur Hockey League, spanked the Atlantic Sea Gulls, 8-4, in an exhibition game tonight.

The Gulls started fast and established a 3-to-1 lead early in the second period. Then the Orioles began clicking, jammed through six straight goals and coasted in.

Honey Cloud Takes $5,000 Rowe 'Cap

Whitey Abel's Charge Defeats Favorites In 6-Furlong Dash

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Bowie, Md., April 3.—Honey Cloud, the veteran campaigner, who was transformed from a claiming sprinter to a stake horse by former Jockey Whitey Abel, turned on the speed of a champion here today to win the $5,000 added Rowe Memorial Handicap, first of the big four races at this meeting. Like two other winners on the program, Honey Cloud came off Alan Clarke's Hunting Farm to finish a length and a quarter in advance of the A. C. C. Stable's Sun Egret, 1938 winner, and an additional three lengths in front of the Millsdale Stable's Silent Host.

Honey Cloud Pays $10.80

Mrs. Yancey Christmas' Rough Time, installed a slight favorite over Sun Egret, failed to race up to expectations and finished in fourth position. The son of Grand Time, winner of the Rowe Memorial last year, bore out badly entering the stretch and failed to put on a rally.

Honey Cloud, winner of several stakes last year and $17,000, was credited with time of 1:11 4-5 for the 6 furlongs, remarkable over the fast but slightly dull track. However, private timers clocked him in 1:12 4-5. But there is no question about the form shown by the hefty gelding. The son of High Cloud had the foot and the punch and the time was the best ever recorded in the race, but well off the track mark of 1:10 3-5 set by Greenock after the track was recushioned some years ago.

Despite sagging skies and morning showers a crowd of 7,000 turned out for the sport and a good por-

Pittsburgh Takes Second Sacker For $7,500; Big Hurler Goes to Birmingham After Unimpressive Start

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent

Orlando, Fla., April 3.—The thinning-out process of the Nats continued apace today when Clark Griffith released Second Baseman Edgar Leip to the Pittsburgh Pirates and Pitcher Paul Gehrman to Birmingham, of the Southern Association.

The Pirates paid the $7,500 waiver price for the diminutive Leip. The little second baseman, who came to the Nats from Greenville last fall, was placed on the waiver list this week and when the Pirates claimed him, the Nats' bosses made the deal with alacrity.

Leip was strangely unimpressive in the Nats' camp this spring after arousing the hopes of Manager Harris with his clever fielding and hitting in a dozen games for Washington last September. In Orlando, Leip was erratic in the field and weak at bat.

Lose on Gehrman

During the winter, Griffith refused an offer for Leip made by Manager Bill Terry, of the Giants.

The Nats took a $2,500 loss on the resale of Gehrman to Birmingham. They had paid Birmingham the draft price of $6,000 for the big right hander last winter on the recommendation of Spencer Abbott, manager of Washington's Springfield farm.

Toledo had also put in a claim for Gehrman, offering the Nats $1,000 more than the $3,500 posted by Birmingham, but in a last-minute development Toledo withdrew from the bidding.

Like Leip, Gehrman does not appear to represent any great loss to the Nats. In the spring games here, Gehrman has been uniformly unsuccessful. His fast ball was not fast enough, and he demonstrated that he is still plagued by a lack of control.

The release of Leip and Gehrman brings to six the number of rookies released by the Nats in the past two days.

This afternoon the Nats almost won a ball game. They were leading the St. Louis Cardinals, 2 to 0, and were at bat in the fourth inning when a cloudburst washed out the proceedings. The 400 spectators were marooned for more than an hour in the stands of Lake Tinker Field so intense was the downpour.

Torres Gains Respect

For young Gilberto Torres, the curve-balling, knuckle-balling Cuban, it was not a total loss, however. Torres doubtless gained a reprieve from the minors by a four-inning stint in which he held the Cardinals scoreless.

Torres allowed the Cardinals a hit in each of the four innings, but all were singles, and not until he walked a batter in the fourth did a Cardinal reach second base. He is now a more highly respected pitcher in the Nats' camp.

Rangers Beat Toronto for Second Time

New York Hockey Team Triumphs, 6-2, Over Maple Leafs

By the Associated Press

New York, April 3.—The New York Rangers, paced by Bryan Hextall, overpowered the Toronto Maple Leafs, 6 to 2, tonight to gain their second straight victory in the final play-off series for the Stanley Cup and the world professional hockey championship.

Toronto jumped into the lead at the five-minute mark and held a 2-1 margin at the end of a fast and furious opening period. Taylor got the first goal on a beautiful individual effort. Taking the puck at the blue line, he skated in on Davey Kerr, fired one short shot and flipped in his own rebound.

A minute later Hank Goldup made it 2-0 on another close-up shot that

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Eighth Hole Requires A Good Drive At Anacostia

This is another of a series on the 19 golf clubs in Metropolitan Washington where the professional selects the hardest hole on the course. The twentieth and concluding story will deal with the hardest of the lot, from a consensus of opinion.

The term "dog-leg" for a golf hole means exactly as it sounds. the hole has a bend and is shaped similar to a dog's leg. But to call the eighth hole at Anacostia a dog-leg would be a gross exaggeration.

For the 300-yard par four eighth requires a good drive and then an approach shot to the green at a right angle, and Manager B. Harry Graham termed the odd-shaped hole as the hardest on the southeast municipal course.

Of course, if you think in terms of a Jimmy Thomson or Sammy Snead clout, you can face toward the green on the tee, cock your wrists and attempt to bang one on the green via a short cut over the trees But Graham has no knowledge of any such drive and it would only lead to grief in the woods that border the hole to the right, or a ditch that carries a stroke penalty

In the picture, Cal Loving, one of the better amateurs, has just spanked a tee shot hole-high to the green and is about to play a niblick approach to the green, atop a 30-foot bank. Of course, if he doesn't get the ball up, it will roll back down the hill and leave a more difficult shot.

Should he nudge it a little too hard, it will settle in a trap over the green. A little to the right, more

St. Mary's Ousts Board That Fired 'Slip' Madigan

Moraga, Calif., April 3 (AP).—The St. Mary's College board of athletic control which recently ousted head football coach, Edward P. Madigan, was dissolved today and a substitute body formed including but one member of the previous group.

The change was reported but no reason given by Brother Albert, college president, who said a three-member president's advisory athletic council would replace the five-man board of athletic control.

Composing the new board are Coach Norman P. "Red" Strader, Madigan's successor; William J. Milliken, college comptroller, and J. Phillip Murphy, chairman of the former Athletic body.

Madigan said he was not surprised at the dissolving of the board.

"They still haven't given a reason for letting me out," he said.

George Washington University Meets Dartmouth Today

Open Season After 2 Years Of Inactivity

Jack Redinger Will Probably Hurl; Coach Morris Has Weak Hitting Team

After two years of going without baseball completely, and another of nurturing a freshman club, George Washington plunges headlong into the collegiate diamond wars today when it meets Dartmouth's potent nine on the East Ellipse at 2:30.

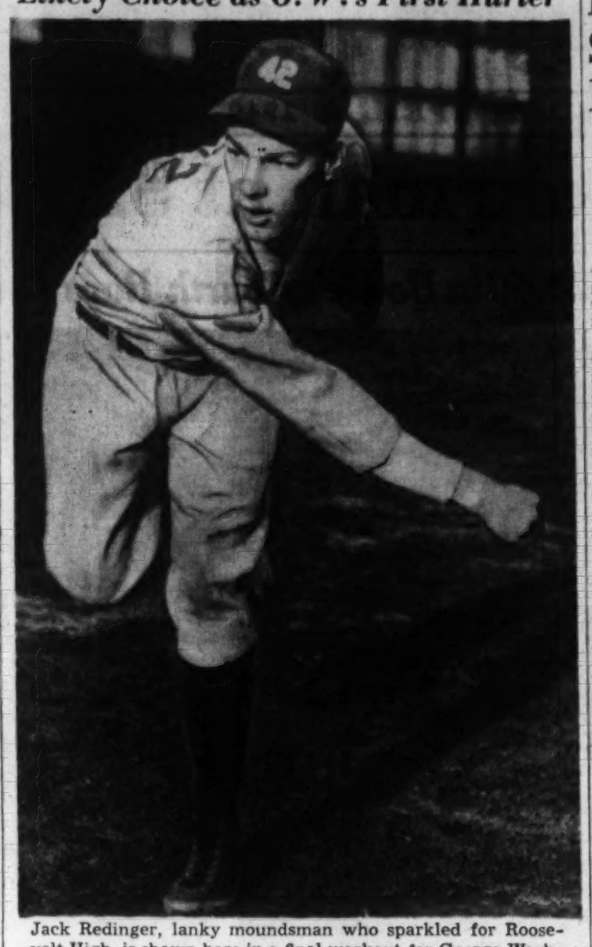
From early indications, the team which Coach Ed Morris will toss at the Indians will be something less than terrific at bat, but highly polished in defense and pitching. Jack Redinger, Roosevelt High star of two years ago, is the probable mound choice though Frank McGinnis and Leaton Kushman, a pair of former Western High aces, could easily win the berth. Each is a capable performer and should be able to hold his own in the throwing department.

Other products of local schools fairly sprinkle the lineup. Western will contribute George Oertel, outfielder, besides McGinnis and Kushman, and Eastern is represented in Lee Lusby at second base and Wes Taylor behind the bat. Roosevelt's other two candidates for the starting team are Harry Gray, outfielder, and First Baseman Roy McNeil.

Despite the youth of the season, and the fact that the Colonials have been out of competition for three years, they have no "breather" in the Indian game. Coach Morris is anxious to find out as soon as possible what his team is able to do this year and today's game should furnish that information.

The Indians are big and experienced. In their first game in this vicinity this year they were edged out by Maryland by a single run, but later came back to trip a capable Virginia U. nine, 6-5.

Likely Choice as G. W.'s First Hurler



Jack Redinger, lanky moundsman who sparkled for Roosevelt High, is shown here in a final workout for George Washington's first varsity game in three years against Dartmouth today. He's one of the standouts of a club which includes a large number of local boys

'G' Club Banquet Honoring Hoya Stars Postponed

Georgetown U.'s fifteenth annual "G" Club banquet, scheduled for April 23, yesterday was postponed until June 8 in response to requests of out-of-town alumni that the event be put off until it was possible for all to attend.

The dinner, annual highlight of the Hoya's spring activities, will be held in conjunction with Commencement Week and under the joint sponsorship of the general alumni committee and the "G" dinner committee.

With the postponement, it will be possible to honor both track and football greats of the Hilltop at the dinner. Players of the Hoyas' two undefeated football seasons, as well as the cinder team which is at present engaged in hanging up one of the schools' most brilliant track records, will be lauded.

Schaefer Beats Cochran in Cue Championship

By the Associated Press

Chicago, April 3.—Jake Schaefer, of Cleveland, tapering off with an unfinished run of 15, defeated Welker Cochran, of San Francisco, 50 to 46, today to strengthen his hold on second place behind Willie Hoppe in the world three-cushion billiard tournament. The match went 41 innings.

Schaefer was trailing by 11 points before he crashed through with his big run, second in the tournament only to tiff Denton's record equaling 17 total.

It was Schaefer's eleventh triumph in 16 starts. For Cochran it marked his final match in the tournament and gave him a record of 11 won and 9 lost and at least a temporary fourth-place standing behind Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo.

Finishing Touches Made on Course

Richmond, Va., April 3 (AP).—The finishing touches were being put on the Curles Neck course today for the deep run races Saturday.

Young's Robson Scott, Richard K. Mellon's Escape III, Mrs. J. C. Clark's Home Sweet Home II, Mellon's Different II, and Rokeby Stables' Enterprise.

Gledhill Upsets Vines In West Coast Tourney

Los Angeles, April 3 (AP).—Keith Gledhill, of Los Angeles, scored the first upset of the West Coast professional tennis tournament today by defeating Ellsworth Vines in straight sets, 6—0, 6—1.

J. Donald Budge, favored to win the round-robin tournament, defeated Les Stoefen, 6—1, 0—6, 6—1.

Harvard Runs Sprees Beat Navy 9-6

4 in Second, 3 in Eighth Decide Game; Middies Win Lacrosse

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., April 3.—Harvard's baseball team picked up four runs in the second inning and three in the eighth, to down Navy's nine today, 9 to 6.

Matched hits and errors kept the game even through the first seven innings and the visitors came to bat in the eighth leading 6 to 5. Fred Keyes made a free trip around the bases, getting a base on balls, taking second on Tom Healy's sacrifice and coming home on a Navy error.

Harvard's Torbie McDonald doubled, to score Bob Fulton, who had reached first on an error, and then came in himself on Les Pitchford's single to make the victory certain.

Navy Stickmen Take Easy 13-3 Victory

Annapolis, Md., April 3.—A green Navy lacrosse team began its season today in high style by cracking down on the Dartmouth stickmen, 13 to 3.

The Midshipmen, with only two veterans on the field, had the game under control from the start. Rusty Crenshaw scored for the academy in the first half-minute and at half-time Navy was leading, 6-0.

With Navy's Coach Dinnie Moore gingerly trying out reserves, the New Hampshire team scored once in the third quarter and twice in the final period, while Navy ran up seven more counters.

Johnnie Wier, who led the Navy attack with three goals, scooped on in after five minutes of the first quarter and three minutes later his teammate, Larry Green, tallied, to put Navy ahead, 3-0, at the quarter.

Navy's Larry Fox dodged in for a score early in the second period, then late in the half "Junior" Moore and Hank Graham sank close shots for Navy's six-point lead.

Treasury Wins, 36-31, Over Mt. Vernon

Treasury's hard-driving cagers romped to an uncontested berth in the city-wide Recreation Department basketball play-offs next week with a 36-31 victory over Mount Vernon in the deciding game of the central division last night. The game was close all the way but Treasury's finish made the difference.

In the only other department game last night, Seven Seas Grill took a large early lead but was forced to hang on to beat Bliss Electric, 34-31. The game decided the second half winner of section 2, Roosevelt division. Seven Seas will meet Bellman Heating tonight at Roosevelt at 8:30, and the winner will face Jewish Community Center Friday for the division crown.

G. U. Plays Harvard Today; Indians Next

Crimson, Eastern Cochampions, Fresh From 14-0 Shutout by Duke, Expected To Put Up Battle on Medical Field at 2:30

Two games in two days is the dose Georgetown University's baseball team, fresh from an unimpressive triumph over Penn in its opener, must take starting today as Harvard and Dartmouth are faced in succession on the Medical Field.

In Harvard, which will be met today at 2:30 p. m., the Hoyas will be facing the co-champion of the Eastern Intercollegiate League and one of the few teams able to defeat Holy Cross' powerful nine last year.

Yet the latest outing for the Crimson was a 14-0, no-hit, no-run, trampling by Duke University Tuesday. Three Duke rookies convincingly trounced the club and the nearest thing to a hit it got was a line drive caught by a Duke player with a sensational leap.

Despite the loss, Harvard can be counted on to make a battle of today's game. Capt. Tom Healey, a 6-foot, 200-pound right-hander, will go on the mound for the visitors in opposition to Bill Wixted, Vinnie Powers and John Dieckelman. Only two of the last named will be used, depending upon the number of southpaw hitters with Harvard.

Capital Club Will Sponsor Kennel Clinic

Owners to Be Taught In Preparation For Show April 25-26

In order that dog owners may be as well trained in the niceties of a kennel show as their pets, the National Capital Kennel Club will sponsor a "kennel clinic" on April 12, at the Lee-Sheraton Hotel.

E. W. Leach, national authority from St. Paul, will lecture on the proper behavior for handlers and otherwise instruct owners in preparation for the National Capital Club's bench show at Riverside Stadium on April 2 and 26.

From earlier indications, the show will be one of the most successful of any in the country. Congressmen, society women, truck drivers and grammar school kids have already sent in entries.

Gordon Louk, president of the club, has assured owners that handsome silver trophies and substantial cash prizes will go to the winners in each breed. The best judges it is possible to obtain will handle the event. No entry will be honored after April 18.

Blue Ridge, Dickinson Nines Meet

Saturday Event Will Launch Season For Both Teams

New Windsor, Md., April 3.—With a strong representation from last year's team out for practice, Coach Pauxtis, of Blue Ridge College, has a good reason for optimism concerning the baseball season which will be opened Saturday against a strong Dickinson College nine at Carlisle, Pa.

Outstanding of the holdovers is Catcher Gloski, a youngster several big league scouts have tried to sign. He will be backed by such veterans as Barnini, Troccia, Palmer, Bartol and Wingrove in the opening clash.

Coach MacAndrews, of Dickinson, is expected to send his ace Bernie Keating, against Blue Ridge in an effort to start off successfully. Harry Wilson, Keating's favorite batterymate for the last two years, will also see action.

Taft Wright Is Star Of White Sox Victory; Reds Beat Boston; Phils, Dodgers Win

By the Associated Press

El Paso, Tex., April 3.—Claude Passeau went nine innings for the Chicago Cubs, but it was their city rivals, the White Sox, who won today's exhibition game, 6 to 4.

The victory was the American Leaguer's seventh in 12 starts against the Cubs and marked the end of their spring series until April 12, when they resume action in Chicago.

The Cubs presented Passeau, who yesterday became the pround papa of an 8-pound daughter, a three run lead in the opening inning. The Sox came right back, however, with three of their own when Taft Wright doubled with the bases loaded, and then clinched the game with three more runs in the next two innings.

INDIANS VICTORS

Waycross, Ga., April 3.—The Cleveland Indians turned on the New York Giants, their traveling companions, with a 19-hit assault today that brought an easy 9-to-5 victory.

Harry Gumbert, who has been effective for the National Leaguers all spring, was shelled for 12 hits and 5 runs in the first six innings and Harry Joiner, who succeeded him, was treated just as roughly, seven hits and 4 runs in two frames.

In contrast, three Cleveland pitchers kept eight hits by the Giants, fairly well scattered and administered eight strikeouts, five by Milnar in five innings.

PEARSON STARS

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 3.—Monte Pearson, the veteran right-hander who pitched a no-hit, no-run game for the New York Yankees in 1938, duplicated the feat today for five innings as the world champions thumped Oklahoma City, 8 to 1.

Also hitting a home run with one on in the midst of a five-run rally in the fifth, Pearson was the big gun of the game. For the five frames that he worked he had a perfect record, no batters getting to first, four being struck out and only three lofting fly balls.

REDS BEAT SOX

Statesville, N. C., April 3.—The Cincinnati Reds and Boston's Red Sox evened things up in their road tour today, giving the customers everything but their uniforms in a carnival of runs, hits and errors good for a 13-to-7 Red victory.

Each team has won two since starting North but there was scant cause today for anything short of remorse. In all, 30 hits rattled through the stadium, the Reds holding a 16-14 edge, while Boston committed four of five miscues.

A first-inning homer by little Lonnie Frey put the National Leaguers to the front but the Sox tallied seven runs through the fifth stanza including a circuit-smash by Jimmy Foxx with one aboard in the fourth.

ROCHESTER LOSES

Miami Beach, Fla., April 3.—A rookie battery obtained from Baltimore's International League team combined pitching and hitting to give the Phillies a -to-0 triumph over Rochester, of the International League, in an exhibition game before 500 fans today.

While Roy Bruner turned in a three-hit mound performance, Catcher Ben Warren pounded out singles in the first and sixth innings to drive in two of the Phils' three runs. Bruner held the Redwings hitless for the fist six innings, fanned three and issued four bases on balls.

DODGERS WIN

Rome, Ga., April 3.—A home run by Pete Coscarart with two on in the eighth gave the Brooklyn Dodgers half of their runs today in a 6-to-1 triumph over the Atlanta Crackers, of the Southern Association.

Although the Atlanta nine got eight hits, one more than the Dodgers, Max Macon and Newell Kimball kept the blows well scattered after the first inning.

BEARS BEAT BEES

Sebring, Fla., April 3.—The Newark Bears, aided by several of the Yankees' discards, pounded three Boston Bees pitchers for a total of 14 hits today as the International Leaguers slugged away a 10-to-4 win.

Casey Stengel hoped that Bill Posedel, who appears to be his ranking pitcher, would go the full distance, but that righthander gave the Bears four runs and six hits during the three innings he lasted. Mike Chatak paced the Bears with a double and a triple, and Jack Graham and Lou Blair got homers.

American U. Opens Against Johns Hopkins

Nine Loses Two Hurlers, With Game April 10

After a ten-day scholastic and athletic vacation at American University, things are once more humming around the sports plant of the Nebraska avenue school.

Baseball, track and tennis are all coming in for attention, though baseball holds the limelight with the opening clash with Johns Hopkins only a week away, on April 10.

The chief worry of Diamond Coach Staff Cassell is the replacement of pitchers Rudolph Zimple and George Brown, lost to the squad due to ineligibility and a shoulder injury, respectively. Neither is likely to be able to play all season.

Big Carl Byham, the 6-foot, 18-year-old junior who starred at football and basketball, is likely to prove the starting hurler, though Ed Nickleson, Ed Morrison and Frank Stoner are good looking prospects. The rest of the first team will probably be Harry Newby behind the bat, either Phil Fellows or Levi McCrady at first, either Carter Edmonds or Dave Thatcher at second; either Bill Maddox or Bill James at third, Hugo Schulze at shortstop, and three of the following in the outfield; Jim Flaherty, Clay Price, John Jablonsky, Keene Roadman and Charles Spencer.

Quartier-Maitre Takes EnglishRace

Lincoln, Eng., April 3 (AP).—Mrs. A. Bendir's French-bred Quartier-Maitre today won the Lincolnshire Handicap, first big event of the 1940 English flat-racing season.

Ridden by Gordon Richards for his thirteenth victory in the classic, the gelded son of Monarch finished the mile two lengths in front of A. C. Marshall's Uncle Archie. The Duchess of Norfolk's Ticca Gari, was another half-length back, third in the field of 21.

Detroit Tigers Leave Florida Camp for Home

Lakeland, Fla., April 3 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers packed up today and started the trip from their training base here to Detroit and the American League wars.

Charley Gehringer, veteran second baseman, was left behind to work out with the Buffalo club of the International League at Plant City. Gehringer has been troubled by a back ailment but expects to be ready for the season opener.

The Tigers play Brooklyn at Gadsden, Ala., tomorrow.

Clever Kids From Home Town Have Chisox Fans in Uproar

Four Promising Rookies May Stick With Club If They Don't Slip

By the Associated Press

Chicago, April 3.—That rosy spring dream of every baseball fan—that his particular club will come up with one or two "kid" stars—has Chicago White Sox loyalists walking on air.

Perhaps it should be pointed out that White Sox fans, as rabidly blind to the shortcomings of their team as any group of leather-lungs in baseball, have been blowing spring bubbles for years. For several seasons now, those bubbles have been exploding with discouraging regularity along about June 1.

Fans Are Convinced

But these fans think they really have something to become excited about this year—something that has a tantalizing home town flavor. No less than four White Sox rookies who call Chicago their home may stick with the club this season, with two of them rated chances to develop into stars their first year. Should that come about, the Jimmy Dykes team could become as scrappy and colorful an outfit as there is in the game.

Bob Kennedy, 19, has sold himself completely to Dykes. This 190-pound 6-footer with the rifle arm is sure to be carried and may start the season at third base if Eric McNair's sore flipper doesn't improve. Bob's father is a hog buyer at the stockyards, situated in the center of the White Sox territory—and how Southside fans would go for this home-town kid if he produced!

Kolloway Has Chance

Don Kolloway, resident of Suburban Blue Island, has a chance to start the season on second and will be carried as an infield utility man. Oral Grove and Ed Weiland, pitching products of Chicago High School and sandlot diamonds, have been doing so well Dykes may keep both on.

Two other youngsters figure in this White Sox youth movement.

Vallie Eaves won 21 games for Shreveport last season and may make the grade. Dykes already has listed Tom Turner, 23, as his No. 2 catcher and the hard-hitting Turner may take the first-string job away from Mike Tresh.

Kennedy, Kolloway and Turner have the aggressiveness Dykes admires. The odds are heavily against it, but should they make good the 1940 season is certain to be a successful one for Sox fans, even should the club finish no better than fourth.

Connie Mack Says Yanks Will Be Third

Boston, Cleveland Picked to Capture A. L. Championship

By the Associated Press

El Paso, Tex., April 3.—Cornelius MacGillicuddy speaking:

"The New York Yankees will wind up in third place in the 1940 American League race."

The veteran manager of the Philadelphia Athletics unburdened himself of this inspired pronouncement as he brought his squad east through El Paso today from Bisbee, Ariz.

"We'll probably fight it out with St. Louis for sixth place," Mack said of his own prospects, "but we'll hit our stride in 1941."

As for the Yanks:

"They are not weaker this year, but no ball club can keep on the pace for years. The Yanks will have trouble keeping the edge which gave them their last four pennants.

"Besides, Cleveland and Boston are strong this year and they are shoving to the top all the time. As a matter of fact, there are six strong clubs, and five of them aren't the Yanks."

Fenlon May Pitch Opener for Frosh

Special Dispatch to The Post

Richmond, Va., April 3.—Bob Fenloh, Washington interscholastic pitching star of last season, appears thus far as the No. 1 hurler on the University of Richmond freshman baseball team, which his brother, Johnny Fenlon, a former George Washington luminary, coaches.

Bob, a speedball thrower, probably will have the first of the Little Spiders' assignments against Chester High School at Chester on April 13.

Klings Take Pin Lead in Detroit

Detroit, April 3 (INS).—Scoring games of 1,008, 983 and 922 for a 2,983 total, the Klings, of Flint, Mich., gave 5,000 pin fans a thrill by moving into the five-man event lead in the American Bowling Congress tourney in Detroit tonight.

The overflow crowd packed the Coliseum, hoping to see the Detroit Goebels retain their crowns, which they won last year at Cleveland in posting a 3,151 total.

The Goebels opened poorly with 876, increased the pace to 957 in the second game and then threaded strikes for a 1,087 finisher to take sixth place with a 2,920 tally. Their final blast was high-team game of the tourney and was featured by a 249 game by Louie Burr, while Charley Kotarski added 234 and leadoff man, Fred Breckle, 228.

Joey Silva Faces Guggino Monday Night

Mexican Now Fights As Lightweight; Concludes Drill Here

Mexican Joey Silva, who last fought here as a featherweight, will come to town today as a lightweight to conclude his training for a ten-round bout with Carl (Red) Guggino Monday night at Turner's Arena.

The popular little Mexican whose whirlwind fighting tactics made him a big hit here a year ago has been training in Philadelphia for a bout with Lew Jenkins, current knockout sensation of the lightweight ranks. Silva had signed to fight Jenkins April 12 in New York until the Texas fighter was called in by Mike Jacobs to battle Lew Ambers, the Mexican's manager, Jack Laken, charged yesterday.

Laken has been in New Orleans negotiating for a Silva fight there. Silva is expected to work out in the Huron gymnasium, at 511 Eleventh street northwest, the remainder of the week.

Meanwhile, Promoter Joe Turner, working on a return bout between Phil Furr and Bill McDowell, was running into trouble yesterday in the form of demands from both fighters for more money.

Chicago Player's Eye Injury Still Baffles Doctor

By the Associated Press

Chicago, April 3.—Dr. George J. Musgrave, optic specialist, said tonight that an eye ailment of Jackie Hayes, Chicago White Sox second baseman sent here for examination, might be due to an infection elsewhere in his system.

In an examination today, Dr. Musgrave also took X-ray pictures of Hayes' teeth, but declared tonight the findings showed no irregularities. He added that the inflamed pupil of the right eye had shown improvement following medicinal applications and that further examinations would be made tomorrow.

It was first believed that the ailment resulted from a cinder that lodged in Hayes' eye while the team was traveling from Los Angeles to Arizona last week.

Frankie Frisch Flies to Wichita To See Physician

By the Associated Press

El Paso, Tex., April 3.—Manager Frankie Frisch, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, flew by air to Wichita, Kans., late today to go under the care of a physician for a stubborn cold contracted several days ago.

FRISCH

Frisch's throat was chiefly affected, making it almost impossible for him to speak. President William Benswanger accompanied the manager, while the Pirates enjoyed an off day sightseeing.

A physician here said the illness was not serious and could be quickly cured by rest and treatment. The fiery former diamond star has been driving himself as well as his team at top speed since the training camp was opened a month ago.

Redskins' Ray Flaherty Arrives Today

Will Make Plans For 1940 Season; McChesney Signs

One of the most important cogs in the Washington Redskins' organization, Coach Ray Flaherty, will arrive in town today from Spokane, Wash., to start preparations for the fall training season of the local pro gridders.

At 2:30 the former Giant star, whose coaching genius is concededly the reason for the 'Skins success, will step from a plane and immediately start the complicated business of getting a professional eleven together. He will interview and sign new players as well as old, select a training site, etc. Most of the next three months he will spend in the immediate vicinity of the city.

Meanwhile, it was announced from Redskin headquarters that Bob McChesney, right end for the last five years, had signed his 1940 contract yesterday. The towering 190-pounder was the fifteenth player from last year's club to get on the dotted line.

McChesney has been employed here for some time. His wife and baby will join him in another month, and the McChesneys will make their home here.

Jimmy Londos, Joe Cox Wrestle Tonight at Turner's Arena

Greek Groan Artist Risks 'Title' Against Flying Tackle Exponent

Jim Londos brings his slightly worn and tattered "world's wrestling championship" back to town tonight to risk same against Joe Cox in the headline bout at Turner's Arena.

Tonight's business will be the second chapter of the Londos-Cox "feud" in the local ring. Jimmy bounced Joe around a month ago and won when Cox flew through the ropes and failed to come back.

Joe has a sometimes-fatal habit of deploying in torpedo form at his opponent's midsection. Last week his flying tackle worked and he defeated the Golden Terror.

The Terror meets Matros Kirlenko in the semifinal, and the preliminaries bring out Hymie Olson against Jack Hader, Warren Bockwinkle against Cliff Olson, and Tom Zaharias against Abie Kaplan.

Armstrong, Junior Fight

Boston, April 3 (U.P.).—Henry Armstrong, world's welterweight champion, has agreed to defend his title at Boston Garden, April 26, against Paul Junior, of Lewiston, Me., New England titleholder, it was announced tonight by Matchmaker Rip Valenti of the Goodwin A. C.

Brooklyn Dodgers Sign Tincup, Ex-N. L. Pitcher

Rome, Ga., April 3 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers announced today the signing of Ben Tincup, former National League pitcher, as a member of Manager Leo Durocher's coaching staff.

"YES, AT A NEW LOW PRICE... $1.14 A PINT!"

PAUL JONES is the same "expensive" whiskey it's always been: still DRY (not sweet), still ALL whiskey, still the same high quality that's made it famous as "A Gentleman's Whiskey" since 1865. Only one thing is changed: it's way down in price! Try it!

Stagehand, With Bowed Tendon, Never to Be Raced Again

Star's Owner Says Injury Is Worse

Sande-Trained Victor In Santa Anita 'Cap, Derby Had Winnings Of Over $200,000

Special Dispatch to The Post

Bowie, Md., April 3.—Stagehand, one of the country's great handicap horses, has been definitely retired because of a bowed tendon, Owner Maxwell Howard, Dayton, Ohio, paper manufacturer, notified Bowie Race Track officials in a telegram today from his Miami Beach home.

"Having been notified by Earle Sande that after a year's idleness and very light training the horse's bowed tendon recently showed signs of weakening, I have definitely decided to retire Stagehand, and he will not again be seen under colors," the telegram said in part.

Stagehand bounded to fame in 1938 as a three-year-old by winning the $50,000 Santa Anita Derby and shortly afterward nosing out Seabiscuit to win the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap.

The Sande-trained horse, which had failed to win a race as a two-year-old, made two starts last year, winning a $10,000 race at Hialeah and running third in the $50,000 Widener Cup.

Retiring with earnings totaling $200,110, Stagehand probably will be used for stud. Stagehand, the son of Sickle out of Stagecraft, is now in Columbia, S. C.

CURIOUS COIN was forwardly placed from beginning and held on gamely. TRAUMELUS showed a good effort. RING STAR had to be rushed to reach SCOUT TIME and weakened gradually through stretch.

SURPRISE BOX, forwardly placed and racing on inside, saved much ground along rail entering stretch and, under energetic handling, was up in the concluding strides. CLOCCKS, off alertly, ran GRAND PAGEANT into submission to take brief lead, but could not resist the winner. DIZZY DAME was first away and raced kindly. BLUE MARVEL appeared sore going to post and was not a factor.

HONEY CLOUD, going in best form and off alertly, shook off RUMBA GUS to open clear lead and held SUN EGRET safe in closing stages. ROUGH TIME went close up in early stages, but bore out at stretch turn and failed to rally thereafter. ARDEN LASS broke through gate, unseated boy and ran off for half, but flashed early speed and dropped back.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADY ORCHID, $9.60, $3.80, $2.80; UVALDE, $2.80, $2.30; BRANDON PRINCE, $2.80.

LADY ORCHID was hustled to take command going to first turn, drew out, but tired through stretch and barely lasted under severe pressure under good handling. UVALDE was allowed to settle into best stride, improved position between horses in stretch, swung out for racing room and was closing on winner at end. BRANDON PRINCE was not hurried in early stages, saved ground and closed namely, but was held safe. AMERICA FIRST was keen forward contender early and weakened.

Bill Bennings

——At the Post

Dear Al:

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Bosley, owner of the ill-fated Chase Me and other horses, has taken over the training for Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' horses which have been shipped into Pimlico. Included in the Lewis string are Gen'l Manager and Jacomar, a pair of candidates for the Kentucky Derby. Going into yesterday's program, nine favorites had won in 14 races. Incidentally, the column had eight winners in the first two days, but they were mostly chalk. I'm going to let H. D. McD., one of the Bennings, write the rest of this column. He has a message worth passing along. Here it is: "As an agitator you are strictly NO BIRDS—it seems the only time you become agitated is when somebody mentions ART BROWN—but what do you think of the idea of a campaign to eradicate a real evil of racing? I wonder if the concerted efforts of the Bennings army, led by Gen. Bangtail Bill himself—could prevail on the State racing commissions of Maryland and West Virginia to scrap that ironclad law that when a horse wins, but is disqualified for foul, he is automatically ruled out of the money and relegated to the bottom of the pile. The other day I had a 'cross-the-board wager on Night Editor, running at Oaklawn. I haven't the details, but it seems Night Editor and Court Dance made it a two-horse race in the stretch with the others far back. Then Night Editor bore over, bothered Court Dance, and went on to win. There was a foul claim and the stewards allowed it, but instead of throwing Night Editor out in the cold, they gave him second place and moved Court Dance into the top slot. The horse with the newspaper name paid this grateful recipient $5.50 place and $3.40 show, which at least covered the original investment with a small surplus. When a horse fouls just one other rival and goes on to win, and the foul is neither heinous nor flagrant—what's the sense in condemning that horse altogether? Even Art Brown can see the justice of this theory. Can't the Maryland and West Virginia racing rules be amended to allow for common-sense procedure as employed in Arkansas and California? Snap out of that BROWN-study, Bill, and let's have some action." Confucius shifted his cud last night and had this to say: Maetake could take it all. —BILL.

First race—Cleo Louise is a racey looking filly which has come to hand very nicely in trials this spring. She makes her initial appearance under the popular Pelleteri silks. Distant Star showed a creditable performance when second to Sun Ginger opening day and is the form horse of the race. Undependable rates a fair chance.

Second race—Iskie held his own, racing with platers of higher caliber in New England last fall and has been prepped for this heat by the veteran Whitey Abel. Affirmation was unable to show his true form when racing in close quarters last start and can be expected to improve. Walkon displaying fair form in California may be a threat.

Third race—Epical was a disappointment in his lone Bowie outing but might be excused due to poor luck in the early running. We'll string along again. Dulie whipped the top horse in that race and looms as the chief contender. Cherachin showed vast improvement in his last Florida race and could upset the dope.

Fourth race—Pictor has been laid up since Saratoga last summer but his sparkling second to Ginobi at that point suggests that he is ready to emerge from the maiden ranks at the expense of this field. Highola failed to make it when favored over mediocre maidens at Tropical but will have the advantage of being fit for this encounter. The Brandon Stable entry for show.

Fifth race—Presidential has accounted for his last three heats competing against platers of similar price and with such an impressive record to his credit receives the call right back. The Queen flashed a bit of her old form when an easy winner opening day and could make trouble on best effort. Miss Ponne won her last and figures to be close.

Sixth race—Personable has the best record in this cheap field. Placed to Interpreter last Tuesday and has fair efforts in Florida. Moon Harvest had the tightener he needed in a spring opening day and might prove the one to beat. Calumet Red rates a good chance, over the others.

Seventh race—Heraldic has been idle since Charles Town where he raced well with such as these and if fit he figures to earn the verdict. Beacon Rock has been away a long time but could make trouble on best effort. Meridian Time should be capable of taking care of the others.

Indiana Issue Will Test SEC Utility Policy

Commission Backs Common Stock Plan As Bond Substitute

By the Associated Press

The investing public's reaction to an offering of 714,835 shares of Indianapolis Power and Light Co. common stock may provide the Securities Commission with a guide for shaping a policy on utility financing.

Yesterday's offering was the largest bloc of common stock to reach the market in a single day since the Securities Act was enacted. It attracted commission interest largely because of a tendency of the SEC, emphasized in the Consumers Power decision last December 28, to insist upon common stock financing wherever feasible, instead of bonds or other types of securities.

Chairman Jerome N. Frank said in an interview that he felt that the law made it clear that an important purpose of the SEC was to "watch the capital structure of utilities and see that they not get overburdened" with fixed interest obligations.

Rail Cases Stressed

There is nothing new in that view, he asserted, adding that the Interstate Commerce Commission had taken a hand in determining the type of financing by railroads since 1920.

Frank said the trouble with the railroads was that ICC regulation came too late to save them from severe financial overburdening, while the SEC hoped to prevent a similar situation in the public utility industry.

Most frequently cited opinion of the SEC concerning equity financing is the Consumers Power case. That company, a unit in the Commonwealth and Southern system, sought authority to issue $28,594,000 of bonds, of which $10,000,000 was to be so-called "new" money for plant expansion.

Issue Scaled Down

The commission, in a decision which split the five members three ways, reduced the bonds to $18,594,000 with an assertion that refunding by sale of bonds in excess of that amount was "not necessary for the economical and efficient operation of Consumers business, because Consumers could satisfy its capital needs, over and above the need for refunding, by the sale, at reasonable terms, of common stock . . ."

Frank said yesterday that no one figure could be set as the ratio for all utilities. He said it was a matter that had to be determined in the light of different circumstances in each case.

The utility industry studied the Consumers Power figures closely. Shortly afterward West Penn Power Co. planned some new financing, but after conferences with SEC officials it revised its original program to provide for 200,000 shares of common stock and $3,500,000 of 3 per cent bonds.

Reception Cheers Company

New York, April 3 (AP).—Gratified over the reception accorded its offering of common stock today, the finance committee of the Indianapolis Power & Light Co. was understood to be considering a plan to refund the entire bond and preferred stock issues of the company.

Goodrich, Firestone Increase Tire Prices

Akron, Ohio, April 3 (AP).—Goodrich and Firestone companies announced today an increase of 2½ to 7½ per cent in tire prices to automobile manufacturers, and a reshuffling of dealer discounts expected to raise retail prices about 1 per cent.

Operations Increase

New York, April 3 (AP).—Operations of the Babcock & Wilcox Co., manufacturers of combustion control equipment aid other industrial machinery, are currently running about 25 per cent above the 1939 average, A. G. Pratt, president, told stockholders at the annual meeting today.

Wisconsin Primaries, War News Spur Market Into 1,725,240-Share Trading, With Prices Lifted From 1 to 4 Points

New York, April 3.—Increased Republican strength in Wisconsin, Field Marshal Goering's declaration that Germany is ready to fight, and a big batch of news reflecting favorably on domestic industry, brought heavy buying into equities today.

Prices on the Stock Exchange were lifted 1 to 4 points and resulted in the most active session in five months and the largest net gain in four. Finishing at or close to their highs of the day, share price indicators were at their best levels since January 10.

A greatly improved type of leadership with seasoned pivotals getting a strong play from buyers attended the rise. Trade was in 907 issues, 100 recording new highs. Gains outnumbered declines in the proportion of 6 to 1. Turnover of 1,725,240 shares was the best since November 3 last year, when volume was 1,815,860 shares.

Pound Loses, Regains

Foreign exchange rates gyrated. Sterling was off more than 3 cents once but recovered more than 2. French francs were slightly lower.

Steel issues were the favorites. Steel common closed 3½ points higher, at 62¾. Republic added 1¾, and Bethlehem 3¾. Crucible, National and Sheet and Tube gained a point or more.

Radio Corporation led the list on 44,700 shares of sales at a fractionally higher price. New York Central, at an advance of more than a point on sales of 23,700 shares, was a feature. Pan American Airways and United Airlines were among the most active issues at better quotations. General Motors was up nearly a point in the motor section, where Chrysler added 2%.

Building Supplies Rise

Tentative reports that the building industry is experiencing some pickup was followed by some interest in shares of companies specializing in construction materials. Johns-Manville rose 1½. Oils and utilities were quiet but firm.

Gains of a point or more were turned in by Westinghouse, Kennecott Copper, Great Northern preferred, Goodyear, du Pont, Delaware & Hudson, Chesapeake & Ohio, Anaconda, Atchison and Atlantic Coast Line. Merchandising shares were moderately better.

Bonds Continue Gain

The steady advance in listed bond prices was continued and begins to assume impressive proportions. Both high-grade and speculative bonds were in demand. Foreign dollar bonds also reflected some inquiry. Turnover was over $10,000,000.

Both long and intermediate dated Treasury obligations were in modest request.

Rails led the speculative section. Gains ranged from fractions to 3 points.

Scandinavian bonds advanced 1 to 4 points in the foreign list. German, Australian and Canadian were in request. Italian and Belgian bonds were dull, and Japanese issues were motionless.

Wheat Gains On Reports Of Short Crop

By the Associated Press

Chicago, April 3.—Two crop estimates indicating winter wheat prospects, although subnormal, have improved the past few months, gave the wheat market a weak start today, but the close was strong.

C. M. Galvin estimated 435,019,000 bushels. The 1939 crop totaled 563,431,000 bushels.

Galvin estimated crop condition at 61 per cent of normal, compared with 55 per cent in December, the lowest on record.

Early losses of ⅝ to ⅞ cent were wiped out later, and in the last hour net gains of ¾ to ⅞ were recorded at times. Closing prices were ¼ to ½ cent higher than yesterday, with May $1.04⅞ to $1.04¾, and July, $1.03¾ to $1.03⅝.

The late rally was associated with strength in securities and continued dry weather in the Southwest.

Corn closed ⅛ lower to ¼ higher. May, 56⅝ to 56¾; July, 58. Oats, Oats ⅛ off to ¼ up. Rye unchanged to ⅛ higher. Lard 7 to 10 higher.

George Hill Wins Fight Over Pay

Jersey City, N. J., April 3 (AP).—The management of American Tobacco Co. informed its stockholders today it had won overwhelmingly in an election to determine whether there should be any change in the compensation of its officers, including George Washington Hill, president.

Paul Hahn, vice president, said the company had received proxies covering "more than 60 per cent" of the voting stock and that of those proxies 97.08 per cent were against any change in the compensation of company officials.

Lewis D. Gilbert, minority stockholder, led a fight to lower the pay of Hill and other executives. Hill once said he would resign rather than accept a pay cut.

Before the vote was finally tabulated, one of the longest meetings in the history of the company had been marred by a succesion of squabbles for more than four hours.

Gilbert sought to limit Hill's salary to $100,000 a year.

Canadian Gold Pours Into U. S. For War Goods

Dominion Supplies $185,825,233 Share Of $231,237,068 Total

By the Associated Press

The Commerce Department said yesterday that $231,237,068 worth of gold came into the United States in the week ended March 27, the largest amount since weekly compilations were begun in 1934.

Most of the metal came from Canada, which shipped $185,825,233—probably in connection with British preparations for the purchase of American airplanes and other war supplies.

Apparently, the bulk of the Canadian gold was deposited to British account in the New York Federal Reserve Bank, because the amount of gold held there increased during the same week by $187,546,182.

Double Previous Week

The week's imports were more than double the $100,644,384 imported in the preceding week, and were reminiscent of the huge shipments which came to the United States during the Czecho-Slovakian erises.

The British Empire accounted for other shipments during the week, including $16,745,697 from the United Kingdom, $1,019,555 from India, $7,272,444 from Australia, and $2,761,741 from South Africa.

Sweden, which has been shipping unusually large amounts, apparently to move part of its gold resources to safety, contributed $13,933,885 to the week's total. Columbia shipped $2,106,926 worth.

Silver imports declined slightly to $1,119,041, including $199,803 from Canada, and $488,980 from Mexico.

Export totals were $874 for gold and $228,321 for silver. The total of foreign gold deposited in this country under earmark of undisclosed ownership was boosted to approximately $1,286,000,000.

Money Markets

New York, April 3 (AP).—The British pound faltered today, after three days of rising prices in relation to the dollar. Sterling lost only 1¼ cents, however. The smallness of the decline taken in connection with the recent improvement led many foreign exchange dealers to believe the British currency might have reached a new "normal" balance.

The Canadian dollar did without a sterling prop and advanced ⅛ cent to 83⅛ U. S. cents. The Swiss franc also posted a minor gain.

First Dengis Marathon Set Saturday

Small Field to Run From Baltimore to Annapolis in Grind

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, April 3.—The men who take their running the hard way—26 miles, 385 yards of it, all in one piece—will hammer the highway for glory and a few pieces of metal and ribbon in the first annual Pat Dengis Memorial Marathon Saturday.

Entries closed officially yesterday with 61 names on the list, but officials said a post-entry arrangement for out-of-towners might bring the total for the Annapolis-Baltimore jaunt to around 75.

Even with an entry list below expectations, the committee said there were plenty of big-timers in the field to make it a fitting tribute to the memory of Dengis, widely known Baltimore marathoner who was killed in an airplane crash last fall.

Distance Official

To make the official marathon distance of 26 miles, 385 yards, a course has been laid out on the Ritchie highway, with the start at Maryland's State House and the finish line at Baltimore's City Hall.

The start will be at 1 o'clock and the sponsors figure the winner will plod into sight of city hall and the cheering throngs three and a half to four hours later.

Experts call the course "easy" because of the flat terrain, and asserted it was almost a foregone conclusion that existing marks for the official marathon distance would be broken.

Back Home Towners

Sentimental Baltimoreans pinned their hopes on Donald Heinecke and Ernie Crosbie to cop the event and perhaps parallel Dengis' Olympic games entry.

Others believe the winner will come from the list of veteran joggers including Ed (Tarzan) Brown, Indian runner who twice won the Boston marathon; Willie Dreyer, of Palatine, Ill.; Bill Kennedy, of Yonkers, N. Y.; Francis Darrak, of Roxbury, Mass., and Frank Kelley, Bill Wilson and Joe Harvey, of Philadelphia.

Texas Tech Grid Coach Steals Line From Films

Dallas, April 3 (AP).—Peter Willis Cawthon, drawling Texas Tech football coach who once scrimmaged his lads for two hours after a four-touchdown victory because "they jest looked terrible," strode from the practice field in spring training the other day.

To Line Coach Dutchy Smith he barked:

Straight to the clubhouse he stormed. Hours later the footballers dragged in. There, in Coach Cawthon's writing, was a large sign: "Any character depicted in today's practice was strictly fictitious, and any similarity to a real football player or team, living or dead, was purely coincidental."

The object from the tee is to hit a long, straight drive for position. That's half the battle. The other is an arched iron with enough bite to settle by the pin. The hole plays to lots of birdies but in the anxiety for a sub-par three, it also plays to sixes.

To the right of the fairway from the drive, the ditch carries the penalty and if the ball is hooked too much, the woods leave nothing but a sacrifice back to the fairway, if you can hit the ball at all.

A clump of trees on the left side of the fairway offers trouble, and even if you miss the trees the shot to the green from the extreme left of the fairway calls for a perfect second shot—or trouble.

Sir Damion Wins At Tropical Park

Coral Gables, Fla., April 3 (AP).—Sir Damion, Marshall Field's 6-year-old which has shown little since winning the Dixie Handicap last spring, finally came through at Tropical Park today in a 1 1-16 miles allowance race.

Sprinting into the lead soon after the start, the son of Sir Gallahad III set all the pace and finished well in front of the Maemere Farm's Maeda, another disappointment of the winter season. A. J. Brown's The Thrush was third in the field of six.

With Don Meade handling the reins, Sir Damion ran the distance in 1:44 4-5 and as the heavily played favorite, paid $3.30 for $2 in the win mutuels.

Tri-County Baseball League Opens May 5

Luray, Va., April 3.—The Tri-County Baseball League will open its season May 5 with teams from Page, Rockingham and Greene County in action. It will be divided into halves with four games with each team in a half. A. B. Cover, of Elkton, is president of the new league.

The first games will be played on May 5 as follows: Stanardsville at Elkton, Shenandoah at Stanley. Games will be played weekly thereafter the first half closing on July 4 when Elkton, Stanley, Shenandoah and Standardsville will play.

Mt. Jackson Nine Trounced in Opener

New Market, Va., April 3.—Broadway High School took the opening game of the season from Mount Jackson, 7 to 1, here today. The winners used five pitchers—Crist, Myers, Trumbo, Harrison and Driver, while Estep went the route for Mount Jackson. The losers lone tally came in the fifth frame. Driver, for the winners, smacked out a homer in the sixth with no men on.

Cavaliers Collect 13 Hits; Sommers Smacks Homer

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., April 3.—Virginia evened the count by taking today's game from Dartmouth, 6 to 5. The Cavaliers collected a total of 13 hits off George Sexton and John Lando, but had 14 runners stranded on the sacks.

Marcel Honowski, who started on the mound for Virginia, was withdrawn after he had filled the bases in the second inning. His successor, John Willey, was greeted with a circuit smash by Sommers, and four runners crossed the plate.

The Cavaliers registered one run in the second frame on Harman's triple and Walsh's infield hit, and added three in the fifth. McCann drew a pass, and Gosney followed with a single to leftfield. Harman then lined out a home run over the leftfield bank.

The score was knotted in the seventh, when Gosney and Gillette tripled in succession, and in the eighth, with the bases loaded, following hits by Dodson and McCann and a pass to Gosney, Lando walked Gillette, forcing in the winning run.

drew a loud protest from Kerr, who claimed the puck had been kicked into the net. A series of gang plays, the Rangers got one goal back at 15:14 on a three-man pass and a fast cross-fire shot by Bryan Hextall.

The Rangers tied the score early in the second period and moved into a 3-2 lead 12 seconds before the period ended. Babe Pratt's tying goal was a long, ankle-high drive from 10 feet inside the blue line. Several players screened Goalie Turk Broda, who never made a move.

In casting about for other likely prospects, you can't overlook Open Champion Byron Nelson, another former winner who has been playing his shots dead on the pin; Demaret, who'd like to get back to the peak he occupied for three months; Craig Wood, who twice has lost out by narrow margins, and Sam Snead, who's a good bet every time he goes to the post.

The main gallery tomorrow undoubtedly will trail Guldahl and Bobby Jones, who played his way effortlessly to a neat par-72 today. Bobby's back, though, is giving him considerable trouble. Having noticed that, after several shots, he'd reach back and sort of rub his left shoulderr blade, we asked if he'd been bothered by "twinges in his back."

"I wish I could call it that," said Jones, "it really hurts like the devil."

The field of 59 which will start teeing off at 12:15 p. m. (E.S.T.) is the largest in tournament history. It includes a delegation of five present and former United States Amateur champions (Jones, Lawson Little, Willie Turnesa, Chick Evans and Bub Ward, the incumbent) and four former British Amateur rulers (Jones, Little, Charley Yates and Bob Sweeney).

APPROXIMATELY TWO ACRES
ALTA VISTA, JUST BEYOND BETHESDA, MD.—$11,500.
Beautifully landscaped; rolling and wooded. Where can one find a lovely place like this at the price, within easy 30 minutes by motor to downtown Washington? A very comfortable four-bedroom house was built on just the right spot about 30 years ago, commanding a splendid view. It is in excellent condition and lends itself to whatever the purchaser's needs might be, in the way of remodeling. Then again the conservative buyer might consider it prudent to move right in as it is—and make changes from time to time as he sees fit. A most attractive feature of the land is its generous frontage—300 feet on a well-paved street, with a circular driveway to the house, which is well back. The consensus is that this section of Alta Vista is the best. Offered to settle an estate and the price is not only interesting as a home, but as an investment.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER.

Listen!
with Slocum

Network notes—Gene Autry's banjo fiend and comic singer on his C. B. S. "Melody Ranch"—Herbie Kratoska—wants to swap his recently acquired, 13-ounce dog, Manchester, for a couple of lions, or almost any kind of an animal that is comparatively house-broken. Herbie and his wife went to the movies, leaving Manchester alone. When they returned several hours later they found (1), neighbors putting out a fire in the living room, (2) a large vase shattered, and (4) the plug pulled from the refrigerator switch, the food spoiled. Manchester had done it all, ending by chewing a light cord in two, setting fire to the living room rug, drapes and chairs.

Dinah Shore, singer with Ben Bernie and All the Lads, on C. B. S., isn't rushing the summer season just because she's now wearing beach sandals. There's an excellent reason—and it has nothing to do with milady's fashions. Dinah happened to bump one of her toes-less mules into the leg of a bureau, fracturing the little toe of her left foot. A beach sandal was the only footgear in which she could walk with any degree of comfort.

Raymond Scott, C. B. S., "Concert in Rhythm" maestor who is noted for the unconventional title he gives his popular compositions ("Huckleberry Duck," "Boy Scout in Switzerland," "Powerhouse," etc.), is planning a house in an equally unconventional manner. The building designs center about a radio loud speaker which he has invented. The house is to be so constructed that music from the stingle loud speaker will be heard distinctly in every room. Should be great for a nice rest.

Another Nero Wolfe Story
BY REX STOUT

OVER MY DEAD BODY

Archie finally got Carla Lovchen from Driscoll's office to Wolfe's by having her dressed up as a bellhop so Inspector Cramer's men wouldn't recognize her coming out of the Maidstone Building. Everybody wanted to talk to Carla because Rudolph Faber had been murdered in the apartment she shared with Neya Tormic, Wolfe's client. Too, both of th girls were instructors at Milton's fencing studio, where Percy Ludlow had been killed earlier. And Wolfe wanted to return to Carla the paper she had hidden in one of his books, giving certain rights for transacting business to his wife from Prince Donevitch. And there seemed to be some connection here with the Bosnian forest concessions in which the Barrett firm was interested.

Chapter 30

HE STARED at me. "Now, Archie, you ought to tap——"

"Okay. I forgot. No cause for alarm. Keep Miss Lovchen here on the quiet for about four minutes till I get back."

He stared again, at her. "Mis Lovchen?"

"Right. You'd better hide her in the pantry."

I put the parcel on the chair, went out the way I had come, through the door in the fence and along the passage to Thirty-fourth street, got in the roadster and drove around two corners to Thirty-fifth street, and rolled to the curb in front of the house. The police car there had been joined by another one, and the taxi was still parked down a ways, and as I crossed the sidewalk to the stoop I saw the dick there with his foot on the running board, chinning with Cramer's chauffeur. I was in too much of a hurry to toss them anything, because I had one more lap to go. I let myself in, shed my coat and hat, and went to the office.

"Oh," I said, "hello."

There was the explanation of the second police car. Over in a corner a dick was looking bored, and on one of the yellow leather chairs sat Neya Tormic, not looking bored. The way her eyes darted at me, I had to control an impulse to sidestep to get out of the line of fire. The dart was a question and I knew what it was, but I ignored it and spoke to Fred Durkin, who was seated at my desk:

"Get out of my chair, you big bum, and come out here and help me a minute."

He arose and lumbered across, and I steered him into the hall and shut the office door

"Are Wolfe and Cramer upstairs?"

"Yes."

"Anyone in the front room?"

"No."

"Stand here and hold this doorknob, in case that dick should get a sudden notion to stretch his legs."

He got his paw on it, and I went to the kitchen. Fritz put down a pan he was stirring and came close to me and whispered, "In the pantry." I pushed the swinging door and there she was, on a chair he had put there for her, with the parcel at her feet. I got the parcel and told her to follow me and keep quiet. In the hall Fred was hanging onto the doorknob and I winked at him as we passed. Up one flight of stairs, down the hall six paces, through a door—and I closed it behand us, turned on the light, put the parcel on a table, and shut the window curtains.

"Hvala Bogu," I said. "This is Mr. Wolfe's room. Don't leave it. If you open a window bells ring all over the house. It's 5:35 and he will be here shortly after six. You might as well put your own clothes on. That door there is a bathroom. Okay?"

SHE JUST looked at me, and I saw she was concentrating so hard on keeping a stiff jaw that she couldn't even nod her head, so I went on out. At the head of the stairs I called down, "All right, Fred, go back in and try another chair," and then proceeded to the next flight up. Two of them took me to the narrow door at the top which opened into the plant rooms. I had to go all the way through to the potting room to find Wolfe. He was at the bench with Theodore, inspecting some recent sprouts with a magnifying glass, and Cramer was on a stool with his back propped against the wall, chewing on a cigar.

I histed myself onto the free end of the bench and sat swinging my legs. In a few minutes Wolfe came to a comma, shook his head disapprovingly at something he saw through the glass, sighed, and muttered at me, "Did you get the goose?"

"Yes, sir."

"Good."

He got busy with the glass again. I swung my legs. After a while the phone rang. Theodore went to his desk to answer it and told Cramer it was for him. The inspector went and grunted into it for three or four minutes, then hung up and returned to the stool. I knew he was glaring at me, but I was interested in the tips of my number nines swinging back and forth.

He said, and I knew what it must be costing him to restrain himself like that, "You, Goodwin." There was even a suggestion of a tremble in his voice. "When did they move the Washington Market to the Maidstone Building?"

"Why," I said in a friendly tone, "that must have been Sergeant Stebbins on the phone! How's that for deduction?"

"Fine." Cramer threw his cigar at the trash basket, missed, went and picked it up and dropped it in, and returned to the stool. "Don't think I'm going to blow up, because I'm not. I'm beyond that. Ten minutes after you left I told Wolfe that Carla Lovchen was trailed to the Maidstone Building this morning and was holed up there, but that was after you left, as I say. All I'm going to do is ask a simple question. Why did you go to the Maidstone Building?"

I grinned at him. "Here's the first answer that occurs to me. There was a phone call here at noon from a certain party, and it was traced to a public phone at that building. All right?"

"No."

I shrugged. "Get Mr. Wolfe to tell you one."

WOLFE, going on with his work, paid no attention. Cramer said, "I still am not going to blow up. I have planted myself here on two assumptions. The first is that Wolfe has got something on this case that I stand little chance of getting uless and until the break comes and he loosens up. The second is, inasmuch as I have never yet found him picking up the pieces for a murderer, that he's not doing that now. If my first assumption is wrong, I'm just out of luck. If my second one is, you are. Both of you. That's all. Now you can take the Maidstone Building and stick it up your chimney. But in case you don't already know it, Carla Lovchen went in that place on Thirty-eighth street at 11 o'clock this morning and came out in 10 minutes. I want her, and I want her plenty. I'm telling you. So if it turns out that she has actually pulled a getaway and you helped her do it . . ."

"The man's mad," I declared.

"Shut up. That's all."

I continued to admire my feet.

At 5 minutes to 6 Wolfe put the magnifying glass away in the drawer, gave Theodore a few instructions regarding the sprouts, and announced that it was time to descend. Never having felt full confidence in the capacity of the elevator as posted on its wall, I left it to him and took to the stairs, and Cramer joined me. Two flights down we saw that the elevator had stopped there and Wolfe was emerging. We halted as he approached us.

"I'll go to my room and clean up a little. Archie, will you come with me? We'll be with you in the office shortly, Mr. Cramer. Miss Tormic is there, you know."

Cramer hesitated, looked at him suspiciously, and then tramped to the stairs and started down. We waited till we heard the office door close behind him and then went to the door of Wolfe's room and entered. Carla was in a straight-backed chair by the wall, her shoulders hunched over, her hands clenched in her lap, her chin down; but she was wearing her own clothes. The bell-boy's outfit, neatly folded, was on the table.

Wolfe stopped in front of her and said, "How do you do, Miss Lovchen."

She looked up at him for an instant, then let her head fall again and made no reply.

Wolfe said, "I have no time now because I am expected downstairs. Mr. Goodwin told me he brought a goose. He did. Whether you killed Mr. Ludlow and Mr. Faber or not, you are pure imbecile. Most people are, under great stress, but that merely gives you company. I don't know how or where Mr. Goodwin found you, but you must have been making an awful fool of yourself or he wouldn't have found you at all. Even though he is fairly good at finding things. If you think I am severe, it is because I have no sympathy to waste on people who come and ask my help and tell me nothing but lies. For the present you will stay in this room. I'll come back pretty soon and ask you some questions."
